Defense Secretary Backs Decision-Making Philosophy

Washington (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, whose decisions have been challenged in some congressional quarters, Saturday night defended his decision-making philosophy.

"The secretary of defense — and I am talking about any secretary of defense — must make certain kinds of decisions, not because he presumes his judgment to be superior to his advisers, military or civilian, but because his position is the best place from which to make those decisions," he said.

McNamara . . . "decisions."

"This same kind of argument applies when economic interests affected by defense decisions generate, as they inevitably will, political pressures on defense officials. Such pressure are an intrinsic and necessary part of a democratic political process.

"There are a good many advantages in forcing public officials to listen to people outside their own staffs who do not share their views and assumptions. But it is the duty of government officials, representing the national interest rather than any smaller interest, to stand up to these pressures where what is asked cannot be reconciled with the national interest."

Last Billion

At another point, McNamara said "You cannot make decisions simply by asking yourself whether something might be nice to have. You have to make a judgment on how much is enough. I emphasize judgment because you can't even be sure yourself, much less prove to others, that your decision was precisely right to the last dollar — even to the last billion dollars. But the decision has to be made."

In talking about "the problem of decision-making in the Defense Department," McNamara touched upon such controversial decisions as that in the contract award for the TFX warplane, the cancellation of the Skybolt missile program and the withered RS70 reconnaissance-strike airplane.

He discussed also some of the results of his management and rearranging of the Pentagon's military and procurement programs.

Among other things, McNamara said actions in his cost-reduction program so far would bring about an ultimate saving of over $1.9 billion and that by fiscal 1967 these reforms would save $3.4 billion a year.

Savings listed

He included in the predicted over-all $1.9 billion a saving of over $300 million through increased use of competitive instead of negotiated contract awards; more than $300 million by shifting from cost-plus-fixed-fee awards to fixed-price, incentive-type contracts; over $300 million through tighter management of inventories and nearly $300 million through closing or reducing the size of 330 military installations.

A realistic appraisal of requested equipment compared with inventories resulted in shaving $24 billion off the total for requests, McNamara said.

In the TFX controversy, a Senate committee is inquiring into McNamara's decision to award the $6.5-billion job for the standard fighter-bomber for the Air Force and Navy to General Dynamics Corp., although the low bidder was the Boeing Corp. and although military officers of the Air Force and Navy initially favored the Boeing proposal.

"On that issue," McNamara said, "the really difficult decision was not the choice of contractor, but the cancellation of the services' two-plane program and the substitution of a single aircraft to serve both the Air Force and the Navy.

Castro Claims U.S. Plotting to Kill Him

Havana (UPI) — The United States has abandoned plans for a second invasion of Cuba in favor of a plot to assassinate Cuban leaders, Premier Fidel Castro said in a speech Saturday.

Marking the second anniversary of the crushing defeat of the American-sponsored Bay of Pigs invasion force, he said the Soviet missiles introduced into Cuba last year were to thwart the then-planned "American invasion."

"We cannot rest on our laurels because the enemy will resort to new measures and new tactics and new plans. They are now making plans to assassinate the leaders of the revolution," he said.

The 3 top figures of the Cuban revolution are Castro, his brother, Raul, and Argentine-born economic czar Ernesto (Che) Guevara.

Castro bore out the contention of resigned leader of the Cuban (exile) Revolutionary Council Jose Miro Cardona that President Kennedy told Miro on Apr. 20, 1961, that there would be another invasion of Cuba.

"The Soviet government and the Cuban government were aware of these plans of aggression against Cuba two months after this last interview in April (1962) and conversations were begun between representatives of the Soviet and Cuban government regarding this situation and the measures that were to be taken," Castro said.

The measures were the nuclear rockets that provoked the October crisis, he said.

Castro quoted from the controversial Miro Cardona resignation document in which Miro said Kennedy told him "the problem of Cuba was essentially a military one of 6 divisions."

King Freed From Jail

Will Continue Present Drive

Birmingham, Ala. (UPI) — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.— sporting an 8 day growth of beard — was freed from the Birmingham jail on bond Saturday and promptly vowed to continue the desegration drive he kicked off here 18 days ago.

King said he decided to post the $300 bond so he would be free this weekend to discuss strategy for a court appearance Monday, when he is to answer charges of contempt.

The charges were brought when King ignored a court order banning further racial demonstrations in this steel city. Although served with a copy of the order, King led a Good Friday segregation protest march that attracted nearly 1,000 shouting and singing Negroes into the downtown area.

He has been in jail ever since, and said he expects to be jailed again Monday on the contempt charges.

King said, however, that this will not affect the desegregation drive since persons "from all over the country" have agreed to come here to direct the segregation protests in his absence.

While in jail, King issued a call for nationwide picketing Saturday against five-and-dime store chains that permit segregation in their southern stores.

The appeal won scattered acceptance.

In Los Angeles, Local 770 of the Retail Clerks Union picketed 16 variety stores with signs reading: "Please do not patronize. This company maintains integration in the North — segregation in the South."

Carriers' Fate Near Decision

Washington (AP) — A Navy estimate on the future of carriers and their aircraft, when the full impact of ballistic missile weapons is felt in the 1965-75 decade, will be ready for Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara by mid-May.

It is expected to project a continuing major role for the big flattops.

The study has been under way since December. More than 20 officers, headed by Vice Adm. William A. Schoech, deputy chief of naval operations for air, have been assembling the material, with help from scores of experts.

Navy sources said Saturday it will be ready for the May 15 deadline set by McNamara.

While details of the study have not been delineated, indications are that it will include a prediction of probable need for worldwide deployment of U.S. Navy flattops.

3 Wallendas Can't Attend Yetta's Rites

Lewiston, Maine (AP)—Aerialist Yetta Grotefent's funeral will be held at Sarasota, Fla., Wednesday but 3 members of the Wallenda high wire family won't be there.

Karl Wallenda's voice broke momentarily as he reported Saturday that he, his brother Herman and nephew Gunther can't attend. They're on the road with a Shrine circus and performed here Friday and Saturday.

"The whole show is built around us," said the 58-year-old Karl, head and founder of the family act. "It would be a tremendous hardship on the other performers if we were to pull out now."

Yetta died in a fall while performing in a similar indoor circus at Omaha, Neb., Thursday night.

Neutralists Cling to Edge Of Vital Plaine in Laos Fight

Rusk Talks To 3 Envoys

Washington (AP) — President Kennedy launched an urgent diplomatic salvage operation Saturday to save neutral Laos from collapsing under Red pressure.

Kennedy held a strategy session of the National Security Council on Laos Saturday. The President set a followup meeting of the top U.S. strategy group for Monday, when the admittedly grave Laos situation will be considered again.

After Saturday's Security Council meeting it was announced that:

1. Secretary of State Dean Rusk was promptly calling to the State Dept. the ambassadors of India, Canada and Poland — the members of the 3-nation International Control Commission (ICC) which is supposed to police last year's Geneva agreement for an independent, neutral Laos. The envoys saw Rusk during the afternoon.

2. Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman will leave today for Paris and London to talk to high government officials. The British and French are members of the 14-nation Geneva accord.

3. The U.S. ambassador to Thailand is cutting short his current Washington visit for consultation and is immediately returning to Bangkok. Thailand, a U.S. ally and a neighbor of Laos, was where Kennedy sent several thousand U.S. troops last year after the Reds threatened Laos.

There was no indication that U.S. military intervention for a show of force was decided on at Saturday's White House meeting. Officials declined to rule out the possibility of a U.S. military move later, however.

According to the U.S. analysis, the Communist Pathet Lao with an undetermined amount of outside Red aid, primarily from neighboring North Vietnam, is pushing hard to eliminate the Kong Le forces and thus collapse the fragile 3-sided government headed by neutralist Premier Souvanna Phouma.

Britain Seeks End To Clash

Reds Have Large Force

Vientiane, Laos (AP)— Neutralist forces withdrew to the edge of the vital Plaine des Jarres in east-central Laos Saturday ahead of advancing troops of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao, military sources reported.

Britain and the Soviet Union agreed to attempt to bring an end to fighting that has stirred up grave concern in Washington and other Western capitals over Laos' neutrality.

Seizure of the Plaine, straddling one of the chief north-south routes, would help the pro-Communist Pathet Lao solidify its domination of northern Laos, bordering on Red China, Communist North Vietnam and neutralist Burma.

The military sources said the neutralist forces of Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma had retreated under command of Gen. Kong Le to set up a new command post at Muong Pan, about 3 miles west of their previous positions.

Ammunition Low

The sources added that Kong Le had left a rearguard of two companies in an attempt to forestall the Pathet Lao advance of an estimated 10,000 Pathet Lao troops.

Kong Le was said to have run low on ammunition and appealed for more.

Map locates Muong Pan

The neutralist general is believed to have 5 battalions of 250 to 400 men each. This contrasted with the previous estimates that he had 5,000 men under his command. There have been reports that 250 neutralist troops sympathetic to the Communists had joined the Pathet Lao.

Defeat of the neutralists could pit the Pathet Lao in a bloody clash with the rightist faction headed by Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, a deputy premier. The Pathet Lao leader is Prince Souphanouvong, also a deputy premier and half-brother of Souvanna.

U.S. Blamed

Laos is governed by a neutralist-rightist-leftist coalition.

A Red Chinese broadcast monitored in Tokyo claimed that "pro-American reactionaries" had provoked the Pathet Lao offensive by bombing Pathet Lao headquarters on the Plaine des Jarres last Wednesday.

Souvanna had been joined by President Kennedy and other Western leaders in a call for an end to the fighting in order to keep Laos neutral.

Rain-Shy Belt From Maine To Virginia Flame-Swept

By The Associated Press

Fires in a wind-swept, rain-shy belt from Maine to Virginia left hundreds of persons homeless Saturday and caused damage running into the millions of dollars.

Known injuries generally were minor and confined mostly to the men fighting the hundreds of blazes fanned by high winds which began to ease off during the evening.

Early assessments of the fiery toll showed over 100 houses destroyed in New Jersey, 100 buildings burned on Staten Island, N.Y., and a half square mile of the Maine textile city of Biddeford in ashes.

The winds, acting as bellows turned a series of grass fires into uncontrollable conflagrations on Staten Island, taxing the abilities of the New York City fire department.

After 12 hours of multiple-alarm blazes — as the wind tossed embers from one fire to start another — city officials declared the situation "pretty much under control."

About 75 Staten Island families lost their homes.

The Biddeford fire threatened to destroy the entire northern section of that Maine city before the combined efforts of 13 fire departments fought the flames to a standstill. Behind, in ashes, were 9 of the 10 buildings of a lumber and building materials plant where the fire broke out, 18 tenement houses and one business building.

Mrs. Marjorie Ganong described the rapid spread of the flames: "I was getting ready to eat lunch when a man yelled 'Get out!' I just grabbed my coat and out I went." She and her 4 sons managed to save only a pet cat and two freshly baked pies.

Biddeford Asst. Fire Chief Paul Garieppy estimated the damage would "well exceed" $1 million.

New Jersey's fires, concentrated mostly in shore area counties, burned thousands of acres of woods and grasslands, as well as the over 100 homes and industrial sites.

Soldiers from Ft. Dix and sailors from Lakehurst Naval Air Station, with bulldozers, fought a blaze along a 10-mile front in Ocean County.

One of the most destructive of the fires roaring through the tinderbox forests in Virginia burned over 2,500 acres in King George County. Military personnel and civilian volunteers helped in the fight.

At least 9 separate brush fires, some destroying and threatening homes, plagued Long Island firemen throughout the day and night.

Mail Curtailment May Start Monday

Postmasters to Make Decision On Deliveries to New Buildings

Washington (UPI)—Tenants moving into new buildings in 50 major cities were faced with the possibility of no mail service after Monday because of a House slash in Post Office Dept. funds.

A department official said Saturday that Postmaster General J. Edward Day has not ordered the cut off of deliveries to new buildings but has directed a freeze on new hiring and suggested the curtailment might be necessary.

Day left it up to the postmasters of the nation's 50 busiest mail centers to decide whether to withhold deliveries to new buildings until they are 90% occupied.

At the same time, it was revealed that the department now is considering the possibility of eliminating deliveries of third class, or so-called "junk mail," to all persons during the first week of each month, beginning July 1.

The proposals were a follow up to a recent announcement by Day that curtailment of deliveries to new buildings served by the 200 largest post offices were among 3 steps the department might be forced to take July 1.

The officials said elimination of third class mail deliveries in the first week of each month was being considered as an alternative to curtailing Saturday deliveries after July 1.

He said the department felt this step might be more palatable to the public because third class mail is made up largely of advertising circulars

Another step under consideration would require magazine publishers to do more pre-packaging of their mail shipments. This would save time for postal employees because they would not have to sort bundles of magazines destined for various cities, the official said.

All of the economy proposals came to light after United Press International obtained a copy of a letter Day had written to Sen. John O. Pastore (D-RI).

The letter protested a House cut of $8,343,150 in the department's request for a supplemental appropriation to cover the costs during the current year.

"It is obvious that if the $8,343,150 is not restored we must consider the other alternatives available to us, by either curtailing present service, postponing warranted service extensions, or crippling some other appropriation by transfer of funds," Day wrote.

Debris Linked To Thresher

Charred By Flame

Portsmouth, N.H. (AP)—Debris which included a piece of plastic shielding charred by what was described as a "rush of flame" was tentatively linked Saturday with the nuclear submarine Thresher, lost at sea April 10 with 129 men.

Frederick L. Downs, a chemist at the Portsmouth naval shipyard, said tests showed that the piece of borated polyethylene plastic—about 18 inches square—is the type used for nuclear reactor shielding on submarines of the Thresher type.

He told a Navy court of inquiry chemical tests indicated charred marks were not from slow burning, but rather a rush of flame.

The shielding was among about a dozen pieces of debris found floating at the last known position of the USS Thresher before she sank about 220 miles east of Cape Cod.

Other debris included two large pieces of padding from a life jacket used on submarines of the Thresher class and several small pieces of white and yellow plastic, also carried in Navy catalogs for interior use in submarines.

Downs said some of the smaller pieces of plastic also were charred and, like the larger piece, had jagged or torn edges. The debris was found in the Atlantic by ships searching for the sunken Thresher.

It was brought to Portsmouth Naval Shipyard and introduced Saturday as evidence before the court trying to learn what caused the Thresher to sink during a deep sea diving test.

Another shipyard chemist, John E. Carrigan, said the large piece of plastic had several fragments of metal imbedded in it. He described the metal pieces as ranging in size from the head of a common pin to a split pea. He said some of the metal was analyzed as lead and some as a low alloy steel.

"Every item could have come from the Thresher," Carrigan said.

Downs told the court the yard laboratory is still subjecting the debris to impact, tearing and compression tests in an effort to simulate what might have caused it to break loose and float to the surface.

There was no indication when the debris was found near the Thresher's last known position.

Donovan In Cuba

Seeks Release Of Americans

Havana (UPI) — New York Attorney James B. Donovan arrived in Havana Saturday to resume negotiations for the release of some or all of the 27 U.S. citizens imprisoned here.

Donovan, who successfully arranged for the ransom of the 1,118 captured Bay of Pigs invaders for $53 million worth of U.S. pharmaceuticals and foodstuffs, recently gained the release of 9 shipwrecked U.S. skindivers and two American women imprisoned here for alleged counterrevolutionary activities.

The defeated Democratic candidate for U.S. senator from New York got into the field of negotiating the exchange prisoners by arranging for the exchange of U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers for convicted Soviet spy Rudolph Abel. He had been Abel's court-appointed defense attorney.

Commies Strengthen Berlin Wall

Tank Traps Are Enlarged

Berlin (UPI) — Communist border guards Saturday reinforced tank traps along the Berlin wall to prevent any more escapes like the one last Wednesday when an East Berlin mechanic crashed through in an armored car.

West Berlin police said the Communist used a dredge to widen an anti-tank trench started Friday across the street where the mechanic fled.

The mechanic, 19-year-old Wolfgang Engels, was recovering in a West Berlin hospital from bullet wounds received when he jumped from the armored car to make the final dash to freedom. He was struck by a bullet in the back and grazed on the arm when the Communist guards fired a dozen bursts.

West Berlin police said the anti-tank trench cutting across Elsenstrasse on the American sector border was now 35 yards long, 9 yards wide and almost 3 yards deep.

"This will hold any armored car or any tank there is," a West Berlin police officer said.

He said a total of 80 Communist border guards and civilian workers were seen working on 10 other spots in the border area reinforcing tank traps. They were placing new concrete plates on tank obstacles already built on the east side of the wall.

Nik Plea Rejected

Communist Shot in Spain

Madrid, Spain (AP)—The Franco government, scorning a clemency appeal from Soviet Premier Khrushchev, executed a Spanish Communist leader at dawn Saturday. Communists outside Spain stormed and called it murder.

Rumors circulated at the Vatican that Pope John XXIII also had sent a clemency appeal. The Vatican neither con*firmed nor denied the rumors.*

A government spokesman here and a spokesman for the Papal Nuncio later denied there had been any clemency appeal from the pope.

Julian Grimau Garcia, 52, a balding, thin-faced member of the outlawed Spanish Communist Party's ruling Central Committee, was the victim He was shot to death by a squad of riflemen in the courtyard of Carabanchel prison. He died less than 48 hours after a military court convicted him of "military rebellion" dating from 1962 back to Spanish civil war days.

Grimau—a man almost unknown in modern Spain until a wave of propaganda abroad made his name familiar after his detention last November—spurned the offer of Holy Communion and confession from an attending Roman Catholic priest in the half-light of a cloudy Madrid dawn. Informants said Grimau was raised a Catholic and that members of his family in Spain are Catholics.

Grimau's' rejection of religious solace in the final minutes of his life recalled the boast he made to the judges who sentenced him: "I have been a Communist since 1936 and I will die a Communist."

The Soviet premier asked mercy for Grimau on the ground that his alleged crimes occured during civil war and more than 25 years ago.

Convicts Release Hostage

New Westminster, B.C. (AP)—Three mutinous convicts bargained with authorites for the life of a hostage guard in riot-torn British Columbia penitentiary Saturday and won quick transfer to other prisons in return for his safe release

The guard, Pat Dennis, was held at knifepoint with arms and neck bound with wire during a night of wild rioting.

He was freed unharmed when the riot leaders were whisked off by plane to eastern prisons after negotiations conducted through a radio commentator.

The climax came in melodramatic fashion after a night of disorder in which police lobbed dozens of tear gas shells into the grey stone prison and many of the 670 men inmates smashed windows, broke kitchenware or shouted defiance.

The commotion began at 9:15 p.m. Friday when the 3 convicts, Gerald Caissey, 28, Wayne Carlson, 21, and Nelson Wood broke a window in the prison auditorium and headed for the wall.

An officer spotted them and fired 3 shots in the air. The convicts ran back to the building grabbed Dennis and hauled him into the auditorium washroom, holding makeshift knives at his throat.

Rioting began and extra police were called to help the guards.

Importance of Colleges Stressed by President

Boston (UPI) — President Kennedy Saturday warmly praised the encyclical of Pope John XXIII and said it indicated the "language of progress and peace" is finally crossing the barriers of sect and creed.

The President flew here to speak at ceremonies marking the 100th anniversary of Boston College, a Jesuit institution.

The chief executive devoted a part of his speech to the Pope's encyclical which he said was a "penetrating analysis of today's great problems—of social welfare and human rights — of disarmament, international order and peace."

"That document surely shows that on the basis of one great faith and its traditions there can be developed counsel on public affairs that is of value to all men and women of good will," the President said.

He devoted most of his talk to discussing what he called the "growing and insistent importance of universities in our national life."

"First—and perhaps most obvious—the whole world has come to our door step—and the universities must be its students."

The university's role in the modern day world is intensified, the President said, by the "strange geometry of modern politics. The distant Congo can be as close to us as Canada—and Canada itself is worth more attention than we have sometimes given."

The President said that at present "there is indeed an explosion of knowledge and its outward limits are not yet in sight.

"In some fields progress seems very fast, in others distressingly slow. It is no tribute to modern science to jump lightly to the conclusion that all its secrets—of particle physics or molecular life, or heredity, or outer space—are now within miraculously easy reach."

Thirdly, the President said, "as the world presses in and knowledge presses out, the role of the interpreter grows." He said it was the university's function to prepare men to "learn to know through one another—to judge across their own ignorance—to comprehend at second hand."

Kennedy said it was apparent to him in his office as President that "there can be no doubt today of the growing meaning of universities in America."

'Human Brain May Have Reached Intelligence Peak'

Cambridge, Mass. (AP)—A disquieting hint comes from a famous evolutionist—that the human race may already have reached its peak in development of brain size and intelligence and that the trend, now, may be in a downward direction.

He is, Dr. Ernst Mayr, professor, author, and director of the museum of comparative zoology at Harvard University.

But he holds some hope for the human race if "the biological aspects of man's evolution are duly taken into consideration by those entrusted with the task of planning for the future of mankind."

He suggests that we start rewarding and stop punishing the superior. And that we take steps to avert a "standing room only" population on the earth.

Prof. Mayr has been a key contributor to modern evolutionary theory during the last 30 years—a period during which biologists have learned more about how animal species evolve than in any other period since Darwin's time.

His views are embodies in a monumental report on new developments in evolutionary theory, "animal species and evolution," which is acclaimed by such biologists as Sir Julian Huxley, George Gaylord Simpson and Prof. Theodosius Dobzhansky of Columbia University. Dobzhansky calls Mayr's report "a landmark in the biology of our age."

The Harvard scientist says the increase in human brain size—a characteristic that sets man apart from all other animals—stopped nearly 100,000 years ago.

Declaring "one cannot avoid feeling that man could still go a long way on the road toward improvement," he adds, "nevertheless, there is no evidence of any biological improvement in at least the last 30,000 years."

He voices agreement with Sir Julian Huxley that most likely "man's genetic nature has degenerated and is still doing so."

How did all these things happen to us? Prof. Mayr takes us back to man's ancestors 22 million years ago, learning to walk upright, freeing their forelimbs to make and use tools, but most astonishing of all—their 3-to-4-fold increase in size of brain.

The need to communicate—to speak—speeded up brain growth. Those who could think best, survived and passed on intelligence to their children. And the children of the brightest parents, since they received better parental care, likewise survived.

What put the breaks on brain growth? Prof. Mayr suggests that when men joined together in bigger groups, the average and below-average individuals became more protected. Ultimately, he says, the below-average individual (if not too far below average) could survive and reproduce just as successfully as the above-average individuals.

But now, Prof. Mayr says, "those who are intellectually best endowed contribute less to the gene (inheritance) pool of the next generation than do the average and, indeed, most of the less-than-average," although the high I.Q. group may be above average in physical health.

What is the answer? Prof. Mayr suggests that we encourage the superior.

"In our present society," he writes in his book just published by the Harvard University Press, "the superior person is punished by the government in numerous ways, by taxes and otherwise, which makes it more difficult for him to raise a large family. Why, for instance, should tax exemption for children be a fixed sum rather than a percentage of earned income?

"Why should tuition in school be based, in large part, on the ability of the father to pay rather than inversely on the achievement of the student? . . Innumerable administrative rules and laws . . . discriminate inadvertently against the most gifted members of the community.

"I firmly believe that such positive measures would do far more toward the increase of desirable genes in the human gene (inheritance) pool than all the negative measures proposed by eugenicists of former generations."

Brazil Signs 5-Year Trade Pact With Reds

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil (AP) — Brazil signed a new 5-year trade agreement with the Soviet Union Saturday A Brazilian official indicated it might be expanded into an economic and technical assistance program with the Russians.

The trade agreement calls for an exchange of more than $600 million worth of goods in the next 3 years. Trade for this year will amount to $160 million—more than double that of last year. It will increase to $200 million next year and $225 million in 1965.

Brazil will export coffee, Cacao and cotton to Russia. The Russians will send petroleum and wheat, two chief Brazilian imports, plus manufactured goods and goods of production.

The Brazilians tacked onto the agreement a guarantee that the Russians would not resell any of the Brazilian products to other countries. There had been local newspaper reports the Russians would sell the coffee to Cuba.

Brazil began trading with the Soviet Union in 1959 on a small scale. The exchange of goods since then has amounted to about $145 million.

U.S.-Brazilian trade for 1962 alone amounted to $1.15 billion worth of goods.

But Finance Minister Francisco San Tiago Dantas gave every indication Brazil wanted to expand economic ties with the Soviet Union.

"Brazil finds in the Soviet Union a market of unforeseeable potentiality not only for coffee and other tropical products, but even for consumer goods manufactured in our country," San Tiago Dantas said

He said at the signing ceremonies he was confident the Brazilian-Soviet economic relations would "extend to that of economic cooperation and technical assistance." He did not elaborate.

A few months back, the U.S. State Dept. was reported concerned about the prospects of a new Soviet-Brazilian trade agreement. Specific U. S. objections were not given, however.

Last month, after two weeks of talks, the United States agreed to a commitment of $398.5 million in loans and other financial assistance for Brazil. The U.S. aid, however, will be meted out in lumps as Brazil's shows progress against inflation.

Nixon Urges JFK To Unleash Exiles

Former Veep Not Advocating Blockade or Invasion Yet

Washington (AP) — Richard M. Nixon urged President Kennedy Saturday to risk the international consequences of unleashing Cuban exiles as part of a stepped-up power drive to liquidate communism in Cuba.

Nixon, who lost the presidency to Kennedy by a whisker in 1960, won applause when he told the American Society of Newspaper Editors that "we have got to take what risks are necessary to do the job" of erasing the Soviet beachhead in this hemisphere.

In response to questions the former Republican vice president said he believes there should be "a fundamental change in policy" by the Democratic Kennedy administration in regard to this matter.

He called for substitution of a "freedom doctrine for the Americas" for the Monroe Doctrine. He said the United States can no longer afford to pursue a policy merely of containment of communism either in this hemisphere or elsewhere in the world.

Nixon said he is not advocating either a blockade or invasion of Cuba at this point. But he said that the United States must "do what is necessary" to restore Cuba to freedom.

"I think we should be ready to take the consequences of such action," he said. "I believe that would be less risky than not acting at all."

Discussing Kennedy's restraint of refugee hit-and-run raids on the island, Nixon said this course also involves risks.

"We cannot sit too long on this powder keg and say to the thousands of refugees 'we are going to quarantine you instead of Castro.' We should turn that policy around."

In wide-ranging criticism of the President's policies, Nixon said the administration's strategy since last October's missile crisis had been to "pull defeat out of the jaws of victory." His general appraisal of the President's handling of foreign affairs was that "the Atlantic Alliance is in disarray, Cuba is western Russia and the rest of Latin America is in deadly peril."

The administration, Nixon said, has "goofed an invasion, paid tribute to Castro for the prisoners, then given the Soviets squatters rights in our backyard . . .

"We have courageously dared a blockade to keep the peace, withdrew the blockade to avoid war, pledged the Cuban exiles that their flag would fly in Havana, then pledged ourselves not to re-invade, then offered the exiles service in our armed forces which are forbidden to invade, then instituted aerial surveillance to determine whether or not we invade."

The upshot of all this, Nixon said, is that Soviet Premier Khrushchev's position in Cuba "with American acquiescence, is stronger today than a year ago."

Border War Brings Major Change in Image of India

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

New Delhi (AP)—Dusty men in turbans chipped away at a brick wall and it tumbled into the narrow bazaar street of old Delhi. A symbol of the Chinese danger was gone.

The wall had been built a half a year earlier at the peak of the Communist China threat to protect pedestrians from bomb splinters.

Air raids have not come—yet. With the fading of fear, the sense of emergency too has dissipated, although India is still under war regulations imposed without a declaration of war with China.

On the surface little difference is visible between India before Oct. 20 and the nation of today, 6 months after the Chinese attack.

But there is a major change in the image that India holds of itself and that others have of this ancient nation of half a million villages. The image reflects the internal change of mood.

The image had been that of a frail little man, Mohandas K. Gandhi, who preached a nonviolent approach to a hostile world, and of his lieutenant, Jawaharlal Nehru, who admonished the world to be less hostile.

Chinese Attacked

Nehru could not believe the dispute with China over 51,000 square miles of rugged Himalayan borderlands would destroy the friendship of the two most populous nations on earth. But the Chinese attacked.

"We were living in an artificial atmosphere of our own creation and we have been shocked out of it," Nehru admitted.

Nehru is now wavering between two conflicting roles: war leader doing what is necessary to defend his people and exponent of nonviolence and nonalignment.

In the first, he has to accept Western help including the promise of fighter planes to operate from Indian airfields if the Chinese should launch air raids. But the second role as well as national pride prevent Nehru from admitting this dependence. The result is a policy that is publicly fuzzy although clear to people who run the Indian government.

Increasingly, however, he is being challenged on both foreign and domestic policy. Some observers think he would have lost the prime minister's job that he has held for 16 years if the Chinese had scored many more victories last Autumn and will lose it if the Chinese attack again with the same success.

Even when shaking with anger, Nehru lacks his old vigor. His age, 73, tells heavily on this once bouncy man.

Nehru was stricken by severe illness a year ago. By July, he looked haggard, his face bloated by drugs and his back bowed. His energy seemed to be gone.

The symptoms had disappeared by the time of the Chinese attack and it acted as a stimulant, invigorating him. Nehru told friends he had never felt better than he did under the pressure of the one-month war.

Physical Letdown

The stalemate since Nov. 21 of the unsettled, unsigned peace has been a physical letdown for the prime minister. He now frequently appears listless and lethargic. At a recent party meeting, he sat on the stage with the blank, open mouthed expression of an empty, fatigued mind.

Yet he is the only truly national leader India has. The rural masses worship him. Nehru is India.

His physical letdown during the stalemate reflects in many ways the national letdown.

"It is sometimes said that the spirit displayed in October and November is now passing away," said Nehru's closest political associate, home minister Lal Bahadur Shastri. The loss of spirit would be wrong, Shastri added, but he did not deny it had happened.

Indian people rallied to the war effort at the beginning with a spirit that amazed many of the more sophisticated city residents. Widows gave their tiny savings, laborers earning two rupees (42 cents) a day gave a bit, and students sought jobs to earn money to contribute to the National Defense Fund.

The Fund has now reached almost $110 million plus more than $2.5 million worth of gold from Hindu temple altars and women's ornaments. But of late the fund has almost stopped growing. Few are giving more.

"I promised to give one day's pay a month," a middle class Indian said. "But new taxes are now taking an extra day and a half in pay so I can't do both."

He gave no sign of begrudging the money, howsoever the government got it.

NATO Missile Bases in Italy Are Opposed

Rome (UPI) — Left-wing Socialist leader Pietro Nenni, campaigning for a voice in the next government, said Saturday his party wants to keep NATO missile bases out of Italy.

At the same time, the bald, 72-year-old leftist leader refused to say if his Socialists would agree to a military buildup in the event of an emergency.

Nenni told a news conference at the Rome Foreign Press Club that his party and Premier Amintore Fanfani's Christian Democrats could reach agreement on concrete foreign policy problems after the Apr. 28 general elections despite their contrasting ideologies.

The Christian Democrats are pro-Western and the Socialists are neutralists.

But he stalled when asked point blank what his party would do if NATO or the United States asked Italy for new missile bases or if an increase in military expenditure proved necessary.

As things are at present, Nenni said, his party strongly opposes missile bases in Italy because this "is an overpopulated country and has no areas where isolated targets could be set up."

Youth Says Man Shot By Son

Seeking New Trial

Milledgeville, Ga. (UPI) — Preston Cobb Jr., the Negro youngster sentenced to death at the age of 15 for the murder of his white landlord, said Saturday the man was shot by his own son.

In an affidavit presented at the court hearing seeking a new trial, Cobb named Joseph Coleman Dumas as the murderer of his father. He said he confessed to the murder because he feared for his own life and that of his widowed mother and brothers and sisters, who lived as tenants on the Dumas farm.

Cobb, now 17, was convicted of murdering 73-year-old Frank Coleman Dumas, his white employer, in August, 1961, and sentenced to die in Georgia's electric chair.

The sentence drew vigorous protests in this country and abroad while the young Negro remained in Reidsville State Prison awaiting execution.

Cobbs' charge that the younger Dumas killed his father was supported by an affidavit from a truck driver who said he heard a confession from Joseph Dumas a few minutes before he died in an automobile accident.

The truck driver, Negro Willie Jackson, said he ran over to the younger Dumas, who was thrown onto the highway by the crash, and heard him say: "I've killed my father and I've killed myself."

Donald L. Hollowell, an NAACP lawyer who has taken Cobb's case, sought a new trial on grounds that the Negro youngster did not commit the murder, but confessed only to prevent reprisals against his family.

In his statement, Cobb, who was not present at the hearing, said Joseph Dumas pointed a pistol at him and forced him to accompany the younger Dumas to his father's house.

Cobb said Joseph shot his father in the back of the head, and the two of them carried his body to the old man's station wagon.

Dumas said Joseph Dumas forced him to help remove the body and toss it into a roadside ditch a few miles from home.

He said Joseph Dumas threatened to harm his family if he told what he had seen.

Laos, the Perennial Trouble Spot

Whenever there has been a lull in the cold war during the past 10 years, the world could always worry about Laos. It was during the Eisenhower administration that an International Control Commission was set up. A troubled calm followed.

This Commission, composed of representatives from India, Poland and Canada, was barred from Laos in 1958. Things had gotten hot again by the time President Kennedy took office. Most of 1961 was spent in talks in Geneva, in efforts to get an agreement between 3 princes: Boun Oum (rightist), Prince Souvanna Phouma (neutralist) and Soupanouvong (pro-Communist).

Things got worse in 1962. The United States was putting pressure on Boun Oum to come to an agreement. In May during the civil war in Laos the U.S. showed strength and determination by alerting the naval task force in the area and landing 5,000 troops in Thailand under its SEATO pact agreement.

There were mixed feelings in the United States, where people had fears that another Korea was in the making. Over the protests of the Laotian rightists, who said neutralism would serve as a gateway to communism, an accord was reached on June 11, 1962. These warnings were prophetic.

During the past 10 months there has been another relative calm. From the first, however, there were indications that neutralism was up against great odds. The Pathet Lao (pro-communist forces) never lived up to the withdrawal agreement and no check could be made of how many troops left or remained.

Now once again there is fighting in Laos and the Pathet Lao, it is believed, are determined to control the Plaine des Jarres, which commands a major north-south route. Nothing has been changed. The Red Chinese are determinedly making inroads on Southeast Asia.

It is really wrong to say nothing has changed. The atmosphere has changed. There is less indignation in the United States, which is now pre-occupied with Cuba and troubles are closer to home.

The greatest weapon of the communists is patience. Knowing the tidiness of the American mind, which likes to settle affairs and close the books, they can negotiate and wait for a more opportune time. The experience in Laos should contain some lessons for South Vietnam and elsewhere—Cuba, for instance.

New Municipal Court Rooms

Lincolnites cannot be very proud of the recent indictment of their municipal court facilities by a representative of the American Bar Association. Very likely most of them will agree with Mayor D. L. Tyrrell that something is going to have to be done about it.

Lillian Banahan, staff member of the Bar Association's committee on traffic court program, cited the noisy, crowded conditions of the two municipal court rooms and suggested that, in the interest of justice, the operations be moved into adequate quarters immediately.

Mayor Tyrrell reports the City Council is looking into 3 alternatives for improvement: remodeling the present municipal building at 10th and Q, renting space elsewhere in Lincoln or moving ahead with a new city-county building with space for the courts.

Obviously, the most logical solution — perhaps in the end the most economical — would be to get hot on the city-county building. The courts are only one example of the problems that attend the continued use of crumbling and crowded city and county facilities.

Virtually every candidate for mayor and City Council in Lincoln's upcoming city election has voiced favor for going ahead with a new city-county building.

Planning, designing and floating this structure — to say nothing of arranging for consolidation of city and county functions wherever possible — will require considerable time ahead of any actual construction.

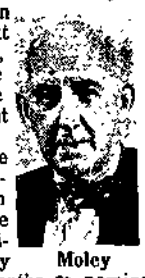
The time to begin such efforts in earnest would seem to have arrived.

RAYMOND MOLEY'S Views

Goldwater Hard Pressed

Phoenix, Ariz. — Here in Goldwater country it is difficult to escape the infectious enthusiasm for a favorite son. Thousands here and in the Oklahoma and Texas, which I have visited, believe Goldwater cannot only be nominated as the Republican candidate for President next year but elected. In fact, these people believe he is the only Republican candidate who could defeat President Kennedy.



Moley

When Goldwaters says he is thinking about his candidacy for the Senate in 1964, he means just that. He realizes that seeking a Presidential nomination is a very precarious enterprise. The paths to nominations in the past have been strewn with frustrated hopes.

Goldwater enjoys the life of a senator and also his great influence in the national scene. Even if it were legally possible for him to run for re-election as senator here and also for President, it would be very risky business. To terminate Goldwater's career in public office would be a loss not only to him but to the causes for which he is so notable an exponent.

So he has determined to have no part, even by tacit approval, in the "Goldwater-for-President" movement. But the demand for this is a reality. It is overwhelming among the growing ranks of Republicans in the South and all over the West and Midwest.

To combine the political values of both Rockefeller and Goldwater in a Rockefeller-Goldwater ticket is wishful thinking by those who have a habit of seeking compromise. For Goldwater would rather be a senator than a vice president. Americans are not fooled by such compromises.

While there has been no announcement, Rockefeller may well actively seek delegates through a strong organization and enter the primaries, the first of which is still 11 months away. Goldwater sentiment will grow stronger in all those months. And if the sentiment for Goldwater, without his lifting a finger himself, is strong enough literally to force a nomination at the Republican convention 15 months hence, there will be evidence that Goldwater can win the election. That may resolve the problem. But if Rockefeller is nominated, he can be assured of strong and active support from the Arizona senator.

Goldwater is a loyal party man. He is no extremist. The value of Goldwater is for those sincere conservative Republicans who are moderate in their demands for change.

A Bell-McClure Syndicate Feature

ROSCOE DRUMMOND Reports

The Press and the Public

Washington — Like other newspapermen in the past, the president of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, Robert L. Taylor, and city editor Earl Selby are risking prison rather than disclose to a grand jury confidential sources of information.

Drummond

There is no doubt that the preservation of confidential news sources is in the interest of newspapers. If a paper did not protect its confidential sources, it would not have any confidential sources. That makes it a professional necessity.

But the question I want to examine is whether this practice is in the public interest as well.

No one will lightly wish to make the taking of evidence in a judicial proceeding more difficult. When a district attorney is investigating crime and corruption in public office, naturally he wants the maximum help from those who could help. The court can subpoena and the citizen is rightly required to testify of his knowledge with very limited exceptions.

Editors and reporters have made their own exceptions. The wisdom and propriety of their doing so is already confirmed in the laws of 12 states, including Pennsylvania. At one time or another in every city of the United States newspapers have brought official crime into the open and prepared the way for prosecution and reform.

This serves the public interest by keeping public officials under powerful scrutiny. To some degree official investigation may be made more difficult by refusal to disclose news sources, but unless confidential sources are kept confidential by the newspaper there would often be no basis provided for subsequent investigation.

It is accepted that an attorney cannot be required to divulge statements made to him in confidence by his client. Obviously it would be easier for the police or an adversary attorney if this immunity did not prevail. But this immunity is not merely convenient for the lawyer; it is vital to the practice of the law.

A reporter's privilege not to be forced to disclose his confidential relationship to his news source is comparable. This is not something merely convenient for the reporter; it is vital to the practice of a free press.

The right to a free press is imbedded in the constitution, not for the convenience of newspapers, but for the protection of a free society. Newspapers exercise this right in trust. It is their wise and courageous use of their special rights which is the best protection.

The Power of Faith

By Wendi Lehmaal

Chaplain Morris Kertzer was seated on the pulpit of the first large synagogue to hold services after the liberation of Rome when a young American soldier made his way to the front and explained that he had left Italy ten years before to come to America and had not seen his mother in all that time.

He wanted the chaplain to announce that he was there, certain his mother would be at the service. Chaplain Kertzer told the young man he could not fulfill his request for he was not in charge of the service. "But," the chaplain said, "When I am introduced stand, beside me."

The soldier stood by the chaplain. Hardly had the introduction been made when a cry of recognition rose from the vast crowd. A little lady ran up and there, in the pulpit of the synagogue, a mother and son were reunited through faith.

MORE OR LESS PERSONAL

No city likes bad publicity, especially if it is attempting to attract tourists or new residents.

San Jose, Costa Rica, is no exception. A letter writer from that city wanted to put the people of the United States straight about eruption of Volcano "Irazu."

South of the Border

News services, he said, overplayed the story. "Ol' Lady Irazu had merely cleared her doorway of some rocks." He assures, "Today Costa Rica has returned to normalcy, as the late Calvin Coolidge would have said. And Costa Rica is still the best place to live in contented retirement, especially for folks with limited fixed incomes.

A story out of Panama is a bit of evidence that there is a growing kinship and interdependence among the peoples of the Americas. Some U.S. Air Force personnel are in Panama where they are conducting a Caribbean Air Commando Tropical Survival School.

Some extra-curricular activity of the Air Force could be called above and beyond the call of duty. Col. K. J. Klette was flying over thinly -populated southeast Panama. He noticed the isolation of many of the settlements and decided aviation was the answer. Chiman, isolated from roads and railroads, was chosen as a pioneer project.

An airstrip for the village was the aim. Air commandos flying overhead in loudspeaker-equipped planes gave natives instructions on how to build the strip. The plane circled and dropped smoke markers to show the location the Air Force men thought best for the airstrip.

The plane then dropped two strips of luminous cloth. Villagers were asked to arrange the strips in a letter "X" if they were willing to build the runway with tools the air commandos would drop. They were given 10 days for their answer.

The Air Force went back for the answer and it was "yes." The next day, 3 Air Force planes hummed in and air dropped files, axes, picks and shovels near the town. Six weeks later, the strip, crude but serviceable, was done.

An air strip had been carved out of the jungle. The cost of the project to the U.S. was the gasoline it took to fly loud speaker planes over the community. The villagers were to meet their instructors for the first time when two air commando planes set down on the new strip.

America's best diplomats don't wear striped pants. They are to be found among those who take their American know-how and friendliness with them whenever they work or travel abroad.

Nebraska's Fourth Estate

Editor John B. Carter of the Silver Creek Sand was apparently suffering from a case of those Apr. 15 blues when he paraphrased, "Two score and ten years ago our fathers brought forth upon this nation a new tax . . . Now we are engaged in a great mass of calculations, testing whether that taxpayer or any taxpayer so confused and so impoverished can long endure."

One-Sided Conflict

With garden lovers and dog lovers entering their incompatible season the Blair Pilot-Tribune expressed a plea to dog owners to exercise their responsibility as defined by city ordinance—"to keep dogs under control . . . at all times. There's no reason why dog lovers and gardeners cannot exist side by side amiably. Unfortunately, the conflict—where it exists—is one sided. We've yet to see a plant sit on a dog."

Jitters

The Morrill Mail presses rolled a day early this week to enable it's editor and his associates to be on hand for the 89th Annual Nebraska Press Association meeting in Lincoln. Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Montgomery hold the presidential posts in the Nebraska Press Association and the Nebraska Press Women's Association. Mrs. Montgomery, anticipating her presiding task in a pre-convention column confessed, "It all scares me no end."

Arbor Day

Very few school children—or adults — know what day Nebraska observes Arbor day. With this conclusion, the Garden County (Oshkosh) News declared, "Arbor Day has been pushed into the background. But let us revive it and the old custom of planting trees in the spring . . . Observe Arbor Day Monday, April 22."

No Party

Observing that "a few Nebraskans suspect that the session of the Legislature is just one big party with the lobbyists picking up the tab," the Falls City Journal picked up this bit of information from a Capitol lobbyist. "Probably 50% of the legislators not only don't drink but don't approve of it. If a lobbyist were to set up a meeting with any group of senators and furnish liquor for the occasion, he would be as apt to offend as many as he would please."

Hand-out

The Wahoo Newspaper spoke out anxiously on LB 544, the Workmen's Compensation Bill intended to increase maximum workmen's compensation benefits to $42 per week. "Due to changes in the Federal Social Security Act, an injured worker in Nebraska with take-home pay of $72.45 per week can draw $37 per week under the Workmen's Compensation law and simultaneously draw $44.54 per week in Social Security benefits. When a worker can draw as much or more for staying on the "hand-out" list as he can for working . . . where is his incentive to work?"

Letter of the Law

Lincoln—We used to live within the spirit of the law, but more and more it is insisted by government that we live within the letter of the law.

This is because the people won't fight for their beliefs and the government quickly acts to fill the vacuum.

The latest example is in filing income tax reports and state gas reports. Filings postmarked Apr. 15 previously were okay, but no longer. Now they must be in the proper office by Apr. 15 or a penalty can be assessed.

IGNATIUS

Members' Privilege

Fairmont—In the April 14 Sunday Journal and Star, Ralph Kapke of Milford says, "The United States Supreme Court has ruled that prayers and scriptural readings in public schools violate the Federal Constitution."

I would like Kapke to show me where the Constitution or Bill of Rights makes any such statement.

As I read it, no law shall be made regarding any establishment or non-establishment of any religion. Surely that means that any church or school shall have the right to determine what course they wish to follow.

No governmental agency should attempt to tell any religious or educational body what may be said in any prayer, or how or what scriptural matter may be presented to members of a congregation or faculty, as approved by patrons of an educational unit, as determined by the wishes of the majority.

THE TRUTH

How Wise?

Lincoln—The April issue of Harper's contains an article, "Learning to Be Unemployable." I recommend it to all people wise enough to realize that our decisions now may increase or decrease freedom for the future.

One paragraph alone is worth thousands of hours of the kinds of deliberations engaged in by school boards, legislative bodies and others concerned about the future of Nebraska:

"Recent economic studies . . . demonstrate that investment in education rivals investment in physical capital (factories, machinery) in stimulating economic growth . . . such investment in 'human capital' has accounted for half of our economic growth in the twentieth century."

Are we wise enough to plan for the future?

Personal Views Of The News

The nation's steel industry has once again been in the news as a result of price increases spreading generally through all producers. This, it seems, makes quite pertinent an explanation by the industry itself of some of the many factors affecting steel manfacturers today. Of course, one if not the prime consideration for the industry is wage rates. According to a publication of the American Iron and Steel Institute, wages have gone up 7.3 per cent compounded annually from 1940 to 1961. For the same period, products per man hour worked, productivity, has increased 1.8 per cent.

These, of course, are industry figures and will differ from the picture painted by labor unions. But wages are by no means the only thing that have affected the industry in the past two decades. The institute lists five causes for the failure of steel sales to increase from 1956 to 1960. The reasons are increased competition from other products, slackening in business and industrial plant expansion and consumer spending for durables, the 1958 and 1961 recessions, a profit squeeze on manufacturers which has led to use of steel substitutes in construction and finally, ton for ton, steel is doing an increasingly better job.

In regard to the latter point, the institute notes that a ton of modern steel performs more work for the user than a ton of 1900 steel. As an example, 40 per cent more 6-ounce citrus juice cans are produced from a ton of the new, thinner tinplate than were produced from a ton of ordinary electrolytic tinplate.

On the other side, it was noted that concrete was once used mainly for small bridges and buildings only a few stories high. But with prestressed concrete and improved reinforcing materials and techniques, bridges and buildings formerly requiring steel can now be built of concrete. Aluminum and plastics have captured large parts of the packaging or containers market.

Steel, of course, has not been standing still and with vigorous research programs has improved its own product to meet the competition, capture new markets and regain lost ground. But the competition is still from other products, within the industry itself and from foreign producers.

The institute notes that the future of American steel "depends upon continuing innovation in three important areas: research and development of new and improved products to penetrate new markets, to retain old markets and to anticipate customer needs; research and development to find methods for making steel at lower costs; and development of new and improved techniques of selling."

The significant thing, it seems, is that the steel industry, as all American industries, is composed of many parts and must meet the demands of an economy that appears at times to be a trap of quicksand. Steel, for instance, can find expanded markets in newly developing nations. By the same token, this asset becomes a liability when such nations reach the point, such as Europe and Japan have, where they produce steel not just for their own demands but for export as well.

The application of careless generalities to economic problems of the day is to invite disaster because this can so easily unbalance the delicate balance of many factors that is needed for a strong and growing economy. Those who seek to grind an ax will only clog the gears of this economy.

Half Minute Inspiration

Doubts and misgivings are common experiences. Accept and recognize them as stirrings within that urge you to strengthen and extend your faith and knowledge. They are invitations to find more truth and broader life, just beyond half-open doors. Take God, our great God of truth and light, with you through the doors that doubt urges you to go. With Him you will find that larger truth, that stronger faith to which your questions surely point.

U.S. Navy To Launch Super-Sub

Lafayette Is First of Eight

Groton, Conn. (UPI)—The Navy's big-punch Polaris submarine, whose 16 nuclear missiles will be able to hit any major land-based military target in the world, joins the fleet Tuesday.

Lafayette, the first of 31 subs which will carry the A-3 missile with a range of 2,500 nautical miles, will be officially turned over to the Navy in commissioning exercises at the electric boat shipyards of General Dynamics Corp.

Super-sub of the Polaris group, the missiles of Lafayette will be able to travel 1,300 miles farther than the A-1 carried by the 5 George Washington class boats and 1,000 miles farther than the A-2 carried by the 5 Ethan Allen class ships, all of which now are operational.

When the Navy signs a receipt for the Lafayette, the biggest nuclear submarine ever built (425 feet long, with a displacement of 7,000 tons) will be ready for test-firing of her missiles at Cape Canaveral, Fla. When this check-out is completed, Lafayette will be ready for business.

Currently, 8 other Lafayette class subs are being fitted out for sea trials and acceptance tests.

By July 1964 Lafayette and her 8 long-range sister ships, are expected to be on station, fully armed and ready for immediate action.

The United States then would have 19 deployable Polaris submarines, or a total of 204 missiles, guarding the Atlantic, Pacific and the Mediterranean.

The combined destructive power of this formidable fleet would be 19 times greater than all of the bombs dropped by all combatants during the Second World War.

Amputees Find Skiing THE Sport of Sports

Mt. Hood, Ore. (UPI)—Nine one-legged skiers skim down the snowy slopes of Mt. Hood these days, and nobody bats an eye.

They've proved that skiing is THE sport for amputees.

Using a single foot ski and a pair of outrigger arm skis, they keep pace with the more experienced skiers as they ride the tows up and then come weaving and plummeting down the steeper slopes.

They are graduates of a special, perhaps unique, class taught by instructor Dick Martin, a former skier. The class of 8 ranges from 9-year-old Richard Lange to 45-year-old John Blaine. It includes one girl, Kay Hickman, 20.

The idea started when Martin lost his leg and heard of two Cleveland amputees who had learned one-legged skiing as practiced in Austria. Martin learned the technique, and improved on it, on Mt. Hood.

The real force got behind the class when skier Lee Perry, a member of the Portland Jaycees, saw Martin skiing.

The Portland Jaycees sponsored the project and supplied the special equipment: A single ski plus two 22-inch skis fastened to arm crutches in place of ski poles.

Perry rounded up the class by showing films of Martin, convincing them to give skiing a try.

Daylight Saving Time Switches on Apr. 28

Washington (UPI)—What time is it?

Next Sunday, Apr. 28, it will depend entirely on where you are. That is the semi-annual day of confusion marking the switchover—in some places—to daylight saving time.

The trouble is that it's only in some places.

Twenty-eight states and the District of Columbia observe daylight saving time during the year.

Fourteen of these have it in operation throughout the state; the other 14 have different rules for different areas. Eleven of the 28 have daylight time from April to the end of October; the remainder terminate it in other months.

Private groups and some branches of the federal government would like to see some of this confusion ended.

The House Commerce and Finance Subcommittee has several bills before it which it hopes to merge into one acceptable piece of legislation dealing with uniform time standards.

The Transport Association of America is one group actively working to end the confusion. The Association cites the case of one bus which operates over a 35-mile highway distance between Steubenville, Ohio, and Moundsville, W.Va., and passes through stops with 7 different time changes.

The idea for daylight time actually stems from Benjamin Franklin. He wrote that "it is impossible that a wise people make use of unhealthy and expensive candles when they can have for nothing the beautiful and pure light of the sun."

With the exception of the two wars, control of daylight time has been left up to the states, with resulting nation-wide confusion.

Slow Baking

Harrisburg, Pa. (AP)—The secret of good, dry mealiness in baked potatoes, according to the Pennsylvania Cooperative Potato Growers, is not to hurry the baking process and to do them in their own jackets without benefit of other wapping. Ideal temperature for 10-ounce potatoes is 300 degrees for two hours.

Dangerous Job

Seattle (AP)—Mrs. Opal Lindsey is ready to list her job—as enumerator for the city directory — as a hazardous occupation.

When she identified herself at one home, the woman of the house grabbed a butcher knife and shouted:

"You're from the police and you're trying to get information. Get out of here, or I'll get you."

One Word Halted U.S.-Soviet Talks

Translation of Words Often Gives an Erroneous Impression

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

Washington (UPI) — The American scientists couldn't understand what had gone wrong.

Their Soviet counterparts had been friendly and apparently eager to cooperate.

Suddenly there was a balk, for no apparent reason.

Finally, after much patient discussion, the trouble was identified.

It was a word.

The scene was the March meeting in Rome between U.S. and Soviet scientists to work out details of an agreement between their countries for limited cooperation in space.

The chief U.S. delegate was Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, deputy administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA). The chief Soviet delegate was Academician A. A. Blagonravov. They had been working together on the cooperative agreement since the spring of 1962. They had known each other long before that.

Both are getting along in years. Both are admired among scientists the world over for their intellectual attainments. Both are amiable and courteous. They are, in short, nice guys.

But Dryden has a great fault —he didn't grow up a master of the Russian language. And Blagonravov's parents, obviously, neglected to teach him English at an early age. The same fault ran through both delegations in Rome.

The conference had the services of a battery of gifted translators. But some words in translation didn't make sense, or the sense they made was not the one intended.

The impasse that caused the baffling change of mood among the Soviet delegates came when the Americans proposed that the Echo satellite be used for a program to demonstrate communications between the U.S. and U.S.S.R.

"It turned out," he said, "that the trouble was with the word 'demonstrate'. A demonstration on the continent is a group of miners marching on Paris, or it is a political demonstration of some sort.

"They thought we had introduced this word to indicate that we were going to have Mr. Kennedy call Mr. Khrushchev, or make some kind of political hay out of this."

The difficulty vanished when a new phrase was written substituting "test" for "demonstrate."

Often in East-West political conferences, Dryden said, "something spoken has aroused fury and resentment" solely because "the choice of a word by a translator had given an erroneous impression."

Society Will Tell Story Of Capitol

History Outlined In Future Book

Chicago News Wire Service

Washington—A United States Capitol Historical Society has been formed to tell the story of the big, white, domed building. Any citizen may join.

Honorary chairman of the board is Sen. Carl Hayden (D-Ariz), who has been in Congress longer than any other present member. President of the organization is Rep. Fred Schwengel (R-Iowa).

The society already has outlined a book for visitors.

This volume, toward the publication of which the National Geographic Society has given $10,000, is to be similar to the volume Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy promoted for White House visitors. A TV program and a film for school children also are planned.

Ever since the 126 employes of the State Department, Treasury, Post Office, Army and Navy moved in on October, 1800, and since—the month after, the 30 senators and 107 representatives from 15 states first sat in the partly furnished old Senate wing, the building has rung with the convictions of the country in the process of becoming law.

The great building has seen two wars, the War of 1812 and the Civil War. It has seen the introduction of steam heat (1865), elevators (1874), electric lights (1882), and drainage (1893). Originally there were two wells of drinking water between the wings.

U.S. Books In Moscow

10,000 Volumes On Display

By JUDY BARDEN

Chicago News World Service

Bonn — The United States Information Agency (U.S.I.A.) is, according to the communists, a dirty name. That word "information" stands for propaganda as far as they are concerned and the agency is not allowed to function in any of the Iron Curtain countries.

So it was with surprise that an American friend, visiting Moscow recently, came upon an American exhibition of 10,000 books in the science museum off Red Square.

This is a walk-up building, 5 stories high, and the Americans were on the fourth floor.

According to the director, 800 to 1,000 people came each day and many brought cameras. The exhibition did not include a lending library and those with cameras asked and obtained permission to photograph pages from the books in which their studies and interests lay.

The books of most interest were those on drama, fine art illustrations, music and medicine. The excellent display of books on agriculture received little attention.

Peace Corps Volunteer Writes About 'Good Years' in Ethiopia

By JAMES BACON

Lock Haven, Pa. (AP) —Until last year Richard Lipez, 24, had never been west of Pittsburgh nor east of Providence, R.I. Then he joined the Peace Corps.

Now Richard daily eats a native dish that features fat pussy cats as its main ingredient — and loves every minute of his new life.

Richard is teaching English in Debre Marcos, Gojam, Ethiopia, a region that has been isolated from much of the world for 3,000 years.

"I have no regrets and I am as happy and free as I have ever been. These are the good years," he wrote his parents back home.

Debre Marcos is a town of 4,000 people, mostly shepherds and farmers whose mode of life hasn't changed since the time of Christ. Said young Lipez:

"Most of the houses are round mud huts with thatched roofs. Some of the more wealthy people of the town live in square clay houses with corrugated tin roofs, a real status symbol here.

"My first real jolt came when I was led into a hut which was the home of one of my students. A fire was burning in the center of the dirt floor, and the smoke drifted up through the grass roof. This keeps the fleas out. There were two crude beds of eucalyptus branches and a collection of clay pots. This was the extent of the furnishings."

Ethiopia, Lipez said, is a Christian nation but uniquely so. Only the priests are allowed to enter the round, multi-colored churches, but a sizeable crowd gathers there because nearly a quarter of the male population are priests, writes Lipez.

"Women and non-priests shout, dance and carry on their spirited communion outside the church."

"New variations of the daily staple—injera and watt—are introduced. The age-old dish is a terrifying assault on one's innards by tomatoes, peppers, eggs, chickens, sheep's intestines, a murky, sponge-like bread and a few fat pussy cats.

"I have gotten to the point where I can eat the stuff and manage a feeble grin."

Lipez said Emperor Haile Selassi has brought nearly 300 American Peace Corps teachers into the country. He often visits classrooms himself and has given one of his palaces for a university.

"Communication between Peace Corps teachers and students falters at times but we are intent on getting through and the students want desperately to learn.

U.S. Doctors Unlikely To Swarm to England

Chicago News World Service

London—There is unlikely to be any general flight of American doctors and dentists to the British Isles as a result of the latest increase in the incomes of practitioners under the British National Health Service.

Even after the 14% boost that will go into effect Monday, British doctors and dentists will be underpaid according to American standards.

At the same time they will be comparatively well paid according to British standards.

Britain's 23,000 general practitioners, who now average $6,790 a year, will henceforth receive an average of $7,742 a year. Under the national health scheme the average doctor has between 2,400 and 2,500 patients on his "List" and is paid roughly $2.80 a year per patient, irrespective of how much attention any one patient may require.

All patients are entitled to the full services of a general practitioner who, when necessary, refers them to specialists or to a hospital for medical or surgical treatment. All treatment is free.

The 20,000 doctors employed in hospitals will also receive the 14% increase. This means that a junior house doctor, who now receives the equivalent of $1,890 a year, will get $2,153.

A top hospital consultant with maximum "distinction awards," granted to top specialists, now can go as high as $22,170 a year. Under the new scale he can make $25,220 in salary.

The 11,300 dentists, who now practice outside hospitals under the national health scheme, have average incomes of $6,720 a year and in the future will average $7,672.

They are paid according to an intricate fee system and aren't satisfied with the new boost because their fees were recently cut by 12% when it was discovered that their incomes were excessive according to National Health Service standards.

Red's PA Disrupts Quiet Life

Chicago News World Service

Munich, Germany — A rustic life is not necessarily a quiet one—especially if you happen to live in Bulgaria, says Radio Free Europe.

The rural newspaper Kooperativno Selo has published an agonized plea from an inhabitant of a village which had been honored by the installation of an outdoor loudspeaker wired to the State Radio Network.

The speaker, with an output of 20 watts, plays continuously from 5:30 a.m. until 11 p.m.

"This is terrible!" he wrote. "Believe me. Whether you want to listen or not, whether you are tired, whether you want to sleep, are ill, it does not ask you —it just goes on playing, blaring away . . ."

Guerrilla Unit Trained in Kill-or-Cure Techniques

By BEM PRICE

Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. (AP) — Where necessary, you kill; where possible, you cure. And sometimes you try to do both at once.

This is the mixed-up world of guerrilla warfare in which the mission is to eradicate Communism and the missionaries are often military men equipped with figurative carrots and sticks.

It is a world in which disease, oppression, hunger and hopelessness are military problems.

The U.S. Air Force has concluded that in this special world food is as much a weapon as firepower and doctors are as important as doctrinaires.

Special problems require specialists.

Eglin Air Force Base, just north of Fort Walton Beach in the northwest panhandle of Florida, is the home of the Special Air Warfare Center where the best men the Air Force can find are trained in kill-or-cure techniques.

These specialists are known as the Air Commandos.

Capt. W. R. Williamson, a commando intelligence office talked about them in an office unadorned except for maps of Latin America.

"One hundred pounds of rice," Williamson began, "will stop more Communists than a 100-pound bomb.

Didn't Believe

"You know," he said, "I didn't believe that until I went to Vietnam. I thought the only solution was to kill Commies. But not now. Maybe we've got the right idea—if we have time."

Williamson nodded at the maps of Latin America, prime target area for Communist infiltration, especially from Cuba.

In other areas of the world, such as Vietnam, the "kill" technique has to be employed alongside the "cure."

Latin Americans training for possible action against Red guerrillas. They are students of school operated by U.S. armed forces.

Thus, a few hand-picked fighter pilots here are learning to kill men from the air one at a time—something like shooting mice with a cannon.

In the hide-and-seek war of guerrillas, the hunters often have to operate far from home base.

To keep the far-ranging counter-insurgent teams on the ground supplied, the Air Commando pilots learn to fly about 3 feet above the ground while special air hook devices snag ground lines and yank as much as 12,000 pounds of cargo out of rear loading doors.

At Night

The fighter and cargo plane pilots learn to do all these things at night. They learn to fly daylight missions at 50 feet above the tree tops. At night they go "high" — 200 feet.

In brief, at the center, the Air Commandos receive instruction in the kill and cure techniques simultaneously. Both involve the application of air mobility and power.

An experiment is under way in Latin America today, for example, based on the premise that the armed forces contain a huge reservoir of untapped skills and resources which can be used to build the economies of underdeveloped nations and thus prevent or cure communism.

A Small Part

The experiment is a small part which the United States plans to spend $1 billion a year on economic aid to Latin America over the next 10 years.

As experts in communications and at operating in and out of small airfields hacked from the jungles, the Air Commandos feel they have a special role in opening up the "back yonders" of many Latin nations and knitting the people more tightly into the fabric of government.

The commandos are also experts in counter-guerilla warfare, their original assignment in Latin America was to make their military skills available to the governments requesting this type training.

Then, in June of last year, the Air Commando mission was expanded. Instead of training only for "hot" wars, they were to teach local forces how their skills might be applied to improving the welfare of the people.

For example, combat engineers could work at digging wells, improving sanitation, building dams and irrigation projects, while the air forces could be used to tie the nation together in a communications network and to deliver teachers, supplies, medicines and doctors to remote, roadless places.

While there is no quick, easy way to "cure" communism in the troubled areas of the world, the Special Air Warfare Center is constantly striving to find more efficient ways of killing Communist guerrillas, where need be.

Like Korea

Brig. Gen. Gilbert L. Pritchard, center commander, said in an interview:

"There isn't a great deal of difference between World War II and Korea. The same missions apply, but we have to do it differently. We have learned in Vietnam that the only thing which will bail out a village under attack is counter-attack by air. By the time ground troops arrive the enemy—the Viet Cong—are gone Only air has the necessary short reaction time."

So why do the planes in Vietnam fly at tree top level?

The Viet Cong have learned to dig concave holes about 4 feet deep and 6 feet across. These holes act as sound concentrators. A man crouching in one of these holes can pick up the sound of aircraft long before the sound reaches a man standing above ground.

The higher the aircraft flies, the more advance warning the Viet Cong have.

Man Still Seeks Control of Weather

By Associated Press

Fantastic though this may sound, the spreading of black soot on the Arctic ice pack is one of the bizarre things that have seriously been suggested as a means of giving man control over the weather and climate

Knowledgeable meteorologists, like Dr J Murray Mitchell Jr of the U S Weather Bureau, have repeatedly challenged the feasibility and practicality of the arctic soot-sowing idea

They've also lambasted other sensational ideas—such as using H-bombs to melt the ice pack They point out that it would take 4 million 50 mega ton H bombs just to melt the Greenland ice pack alone

Still, the idea of making broad, remotely controlled changes in weather and climate—including the creation of floods, droughts and even an ice age in an enemy country—continue to persist

Top civilian meteorologists feel that

1 Science has not yet learned, in dependable fashion, to modify or control weather artificially on a more or less local scale—let alone try to do it on the virtually global scale that might be required in some instances at least for employing the weather as a military weapon

2 Much more knowledge of Nature's own ways of "making" the weather and climate must be acquired before man can hope to control them with any significance, even in a limited way, for either peaceful or military pursuits

3 Any attempts to effect large scale changes, without having such knowledge of Nature's own tricks, might bommerang disastrously on a nation initiating them, and also harm millions of people throughout the world

Since 1958, the National Science Foundation has spearheaded the nation's support of non-military research in weather modification. The agency has the central role of leadership in stimulating research throughout the scientific community, including universities and industrial laboratories.

The foundation also keeps tabs on weather control studies all over the world, including such ventures as

—Russian reports of using powerful sound generators installed atop mountain peaks of the Caucasus to study the possibility of using sound waves to increase rainfall

—Reports of Communist Chinese attempts to accelerate the melting of glaciers in north central China by blackening the glacial surfaces with coal dust or burned grass and wood

—Hail suppression research in Argentina employing 20 silver iodide generators located on the east slope of the Andes The generators burn iodide impregnated charcoal placed in wire baskets inside a chimney

—French research with silver iodide carried aloft in balloons German cloud seeding studies employing rockets and efforts of Italian farmers to suppress hail with explosions of TNT borne aloft by rockets —Japanese studies of snowfall distribution—involving the sifting of thousands of strips of colored paper from an airplane into a snowstorm and the later collection of the falling strips by Japanese school children

—Swedish experiments involving spreading fatty alcohols on snow fields to diminish their evaporation studies in Switzerland where artificial hailstones are "grown" in a special tunnel

But NSF scientists say that no sensational breakthroughs have been achieved either in the United States or abroad, so far as is known

"It is clearly evident," says Dr Alan T Waterman, NSF director, "that a truly formidable scientific problem must be solved before we can learn how to control local weather effectively or modify the climate However, this problem may be no more formidable than problems that have been solved by this generation of scientists in other fields, such as the degree of control we have over nuclear energy"

Dr Mitchell of the U.S. Weather Bureau says it's conceivable that within a decade, it might be possible to break up a tornado with a small A-bomb — and perhaps change the course of a hurricane 10 to 20 miles by seeding it sufficiently with chemicals

But he sees little likelihood of it ever being possible to prevent huge winter storms from striking as they did this past winter along the eastern seaboard

He says that even if you could do it—with huge nuclear furnaces for example—the process would effect the world-girdling Jet Stream which overrides storms in the lower atmosphere And this, in turn might cause severe storms all over Europe

Dr Waterman says "artificial clouds," intentionally created by strewing water or other materials from an orbiting satellite, might be one way of eventually developing large scale weather control

Dr Dinessler speaks along similar lines But, stressing again the need for basic knowledge before undertaking any spectacular experiments

Russian planes blanket the Arctic ice cap with coal dust to bring floods, cyclones and new glaciers in this drawing But meterologists say it could not come true.

House Will Hear First Educational Measure of Session

Washington (UPI)—The first educational bill of the session will be considered by the House this week amid grumblings of dissatisfaction from some traditional friends of school aid.

Up for consideration on Tuesday is a $237 million measure to assist in the construction of schools of medicine, dentistry and other "health professions." Also included are provisions for loans to medical, dental and osteopathic students.

Opposition to the legislation is negligible What is bothering advocates of federal aid to schools is the timing and the form in which the bill is arriving on the floor

Rep. Edith Green (D-Ore.), chairman of the House education subcommittee, has been battling for a general college aid bill and feels that action now on the medical school measure may hurt the chances of her legislation.

Mrs. Green and other members of the House Education and Labor Committee — both Republican and Democratic—wanted the medical school bill either tied to the general college aid measure or at least approved by the House Commerce Committee, which oversees the U.S. Public Health Service, the agency responsible for carrying out the program Supporters of substantial federal aid to colleges are worried that a vote for the medical school bill will diminish enthusiasm of many members for voting in favor of a second school aid bill.

Rep Albert Quie (Minn), a Republican member of the Education and Labor Committee, went before the House Rules Committee two weeks ago in a vain effort to stall action on the medical bill until the general bill was considered

"I'm afraid that if this bill is passed, the general bill will be left to die," Quie told the committee.

Mrs Green did not ask the committee to hold up the medical aid measure. Nor did she urge the members to clear it. She labeled herself a "team-player" and implied that she was ready to go along with a White House decision to sidetrack the general bill in favor of the medical school measure.

But it was clear at the Rules Committee session that Mrs Green was vexed at a decision by President Kennedy and top House leaders to give first priority to the medical aid measure

Quie later charged that the Rules action may have been part of a "deal" to scuttle all other education bills. He said he understood that after the medical school bill "nothing would come out."

If true, he said, the agreement was "the worst piece of political cynicism I have ever seen"

Passport Suit Filed By Writer

Claims Law Is Illegal

Washington (UPI) — A suit was filed in U.S. District Court here Saturday to test the constitutionality of a reviewed State Dept. practice denying passports to persons who refuse to sign a non-Communist declaration.

The suit was on behalf of Milton S. Mayer, a writer and international churchworker, who was refused a passport Friday in the first recent case of its kind.

Mayer declined to sign a statement on the application asking whether he was now a member of any organization required to register under the Subversive Activities Control Act, or had been at any time in the 12 months before applying for a passport.

He described the declaration as a "test oath," and said he believed this was "the historic instrument of tyrannies for the reduction of free men to servility."

Frances G. Knight, director of the State Dept.'s passport control office, wrote Mayer saying that he could not have a passport since he had not completed the application

David Carliner, Mayer's attorney, said he will ask for a judge court to pass on the constitutionality of that section of the Subversive Activities Control Act which bars passports if a person does not sign the oath The suit said this violated the first and Fifth amendments.

According to the complaint filed Saturday, Mayer said he had been given writing assignments in Europe in 1963 by various publications. He also said he had been designated to represent the American Friends Service Committee at the Christian Peace Conference to be held this year in Czechoslovakia.

The complaint said he sought a passport to carry out his writing assignments and religious activities in Europe.

Stargazer Balloon Lost

Holloman Air Force Base, N.M. (AP) — A sudden wind carried away the Stargazer project balloon without the instrument-laden, 5,300-pound gondola it was to carry to the edge of space

The air force said the $53,000 balloon, specifically made for the experiment, was lost A spokesman said it would be at least a week, if at all, before another attempt is made

Volcano Erupts

Tokyo (AP)—Mt Mihara, an active volcano on Izu-Oshima Island, 70 miles southwest of here, erupted Saturday spewing smoke 1,500 feet into the sky, the Central Meteorological Agency said there was no report of damage or casualty Famed French Foreign Legion presents colors.

Homeless French Legion Marks 100th Jubilee of Famous Battle

Paris (UPI) — The fabled French Foreign Legion, a glorious but dying anachronism, celebrates the centenary of its most hallowed battle April 30 scattered asunder from the Algerian desert forts which it called home

On Apr 30, 1863, a band of less than 60 Legionnaires died almost to a man at a small hacienda in Camerone, Mexico, after fighting off 3,000 Mexicans for 10 hours.

The gallant stand of the fabled men in the white kepis and blue great coats during the French attempt to install the Austrian Emperor Maximilian on the Mexican throne became to the Legion what the Alamo is to Texans and the Halls of Montezuma to the U S. Marines.

To this day "Faire Camerone" (to do a Camerone) means to the Legion to fight to the last man.

Each year the Legion marks the anniversary with pageants and celebrations. In its barracks the epic of Camerone is recited and the artificial hand of Capt Jean Danjou, who died commanding his men at Camerone, is paraded at the Legion headquarters.

From 1884 until July 1, 1962 —the day of Algerian independence — that headquarters was in the semi-desert town of Sidi-Bel-Abbes, 40 miles south of Oran. Today the Legion's headquarters -- the famed first regiment — is at Aubagne, just outside Marseilles on the mainland of France.

Its training regiments are in Corsica Other units are scattered at Djibouti in French Somaliland, Diego Suarez in Madagascar, ranging the Sahara desert communication lines, with a few score still in Algeria at the naval base of Mers-el-Kebir.

For the first time since the French King Louis-Philippe founded the Foreign Legion Mar. 10, 1831, the famed corps of "volunteers to die for a flag not their own" was without a French overseas territory to die in.

The Legion is still taking recruits, at its depots in Paris, Marseilles and Strasbourg But with the romance of faraway conflict gone, enlistments are dwindling and the Legion seems headed for extinction

With the end of the old-style Legion goes a tradition that has captured the imagination of mavericks among men for 132 years

Countless thousands of men with broken lives and rebels against society turned to the Legion to give new meaning to their existence

Personal crisis, family trouble, police trouble or political trouble, the Legion took them all "The army of lost souls," one writer called them Some joined for more banal reasons Hunger, unemployment or weariness with a modern society that crushed the individual

The Legion offered its tough rules and an ideal It rehabilitated broken men under the uniform of a religion of fidelity and honor

It has never made any bones about the mission of the Legionnaire to die for France In 1885, during the conquest of Indochina, Gen de Negier sent his Legionnaires off to the swamps and jungle with the words

"You, legionnaires, you are soldiers ready to die. I am sending you where men die."

The legionnaires died in the conquest of Indochina and they died fighting barehanded, vastly outnumbered at the battle of Dien-Bien-Phu which marked the fall of Indochina in 1954

In between and before the Indochina conquest, the Legionnaires fought with gallantry in the conquest of all France's overseas possessions and in all its great wars

Khrushchev Under New Attack From Albania

Moscow (UPI) Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, tanned and smiling, returned to his Kremlin office Saturday from a month-long vacation on the Black Sea

Upon his return, he had conferences with an Egyptian government official and an Italian newsman and presumably was told about a bitter personal attack on him by Albania

If it bothered him, he did not show it. Italo Pietra, director of the Italian newspaper Giorno, said that during his interview Khrushchev was "in good form, jovial, smiling and sure of himself."

He said their talk ranged over such issues as the border dispute between India and Red China, Khrushchev's planned visit to Yugoslavia, the Soviet condemnation of abstract art, and Berlin He declined to give details until they appear in his own paper Monday.

Similarly, there was no word on Khrushchev's conference with Ali Sabri, chairman of the supreme executive council of the United Arab Republic

Khrushchev faces a busy calendar in the forthcoming weeks —May Day observances, Fidel Castro's pending visit, a meeting of the party central committee May 28, and possibly a new space spectacular

He also has invited Communist China to send a mission to Moscow May 15 to discuss the ideological dispute between Moscow and Peking.

There has been no indication yet whether Peking will accept but the new attack from Albania — Red China's little European ally — showed there has been no lessening of the bitterness.

The Albanian Communist party newspaper criticized Khrushchev by name as a "demagogue and slanderer" and accused him of splitting the world Communist movement

Editors See Win For Rocky

Washington (AP) — A group of representative editors voted overwhelmingly Saturday that they expect Gov Nelson Rockefeller of New York to be the Republican nominee for President in 1964

By a greater margin they predicted his defeat by President Kennedy.

The poll was taken among members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors attending an annual breakfast tendered by the Washington Chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic society.

They rated Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz) and Michigan's Gov. George Romney behind Rockefeller as the likely GOP nominee

Asked "who do you think will be the Republican presidential nominee in 1964?" They voted:

Rockefeller 66, Goldwater 19, Romney 9.

On another question the editors were asked that assuming President Kennedy is the Democratic nominee, which party do you think will win. The poll results showed Democrats 80, Republican 12.

On the question do you favor a tax cut at this time, the editors replied yes, 53; no, 37.

European Unity Plan Given Backing

By GEORGE GALLUP

Princeton, N J. — Considering the benefits to date of being in the Common Market, the publics of the 6 member nations look with great favor on the ultimate aim of a Europe united politically as well as economically.

The climate of opinion regarding European unity is most favorable in the Netherlands where 9 out of 10 persons endorse this long-term goal.

The idea of such a step meets with least favor in Italy, but is still approved of by 6 out of 10 persons in that country.

In no case does outright opposition to European unification exceed 10% of the population.

A total of 1,016 interviewers for affiliated Gallup Polls questioned 6,344 persons in the six member nations of the Common Market, asking them their opinion about the realization of European unity.

(*The question was also asked in Luxemburg, the 6th member nation, and results are included in the consensus. The interviews, however, make up too small a part of the total to be reported independently)

Behind the willingness to take the step of political unification is the prevailing view that Common Market membership has been more of an asset than a liability.

Citizens in the 6 nations who indicated that they had some knowledge of the Common Market's workings and organization were further asked if they thought the trade accords between "The Six" had brought more positive or more negative results.

The Italians and the Dutch are the most favorably inclined on this count The French display the most skepticism about the advantages of Common Market membership

'Birdman of Alcatraz' Still Seeks Release

Springfield, Mo. (UPI)—Robert Stroud, the "Birdman of Alcatraz," lives quietly in the country club of federal prisons without his storied birds

Stroud has spent 54 years in prison including 41 years of solitary confinement. But life here is relaxed, almost soft

The "birdman" was transferred to this modern federal prison hospital 4 years ago He still battles with federal officials, claiming that he has paid sufficiently for his crimes—two killings.

The 73-year-old birdman's case recently was reviewed by the U.S. Board of Parole His two Los Angeles attorneys were optimistic about his chances for parole

Stroud hopes to move to Center, Tex., and write books His subjects will be prisons, probation and juvenile crime He probably never will write again about birds

Birds have been out of his life since 1942 when he was transferred from Leavenworth (Kan) Federal Penitentiary to Alcatraz Prison "Birdman of Alcatraz" is a misnomer He never raised birds anywhere except Leavenworth.

Back in the days when inmates at prisons were allowed to conduct business outside the walls, Stroud sold bird supplies and wrote an authoritative book on the diseases of birds With the advent of antibiotics, the book lost its value for fighting bird diseases

His life behind bars was the subject of the book and motion picture "Birdman of Alcatraz." Prison officials claim it is inaccurate and over-dramatized.

Stroud first was convicted in Alaska in 1909 for manslaughter in the slaying of a bartender. At McNeil Island, Wash, he attacked another inmate and was convicted of assault Using a knife in the prison yard in 1916, he killed Leavenworth guard Andrew S Turner.

In a cell alone at Leavenworth, he started raising the birds Finally the fowls multiplied until he was given two cells. He engaged in the sale of birds for years, studying their ailments and finding the cause.

Prison officials say Stroud also ran a whisky still hidden in the maze of bird cages and smuggled letters out of the prison in the bottom of cages he was shipping.

But it all stopped in 1930 when the federal prison system was overhauled and outside enterprises prohibited. That triggered his legal battles with the prison officials.

Because he killed a guard, conducted controversial activities, fought the system and refused to conform, Stroud was unpopular with officials

He was transferred to Alcatraz in 1942, where solitary confinement continued. He lost even his pet birds in that move. But he continued to battle in courts. He protested his confinement, his diet and the loss of the birds.

Although his enterprises brought him fame, they have left him broke

U.S Dist. Atty. Russell Millin Furman said Stroud received 40% of royalties from the book and 40% of the $35,000 fee paid for movie rights on "Birdman of Alcatraz"

Apparently it all has been spent in costly court battles.

Studebaker Will 'Definitely, Yes!' Remain in the Auto Business

Detroit (AP)—When Studebaker Corp. holds its annual meeting in South Bend, Ind., Thursday one subject certain to come up, if only informally, is: Does the company intend to remain in the automobile business?

And unless President Sherwood Egbert does an abrupt about face, the answer will be: Definitely yes!

This will come despite the seeming inability of the company to persuade more than about one of every 100 new car buyers to purchase a Studebaker. March sales, off sharply from a year ago, represented less than one per cent of the total domestic market.

From the day he first arrived in South Bend in February, 1961, Egbert has spent a considerable share of his time denying recurring reports of the demise of the Studebaker car.

5 Out of 6

No one knows exactly where such reports originate. But they gain a certain credence because the company has lost money on its automotive operations in 5 of the past 6 years (the exception was 1959).

Studebaker is basically profitable, mainly because of a vigorous diversification program—8 new companies added since Egbert became president from the sale of a New York

But the financial drain of the automotive division has reduced the net sharply. Last year Studebaker made $489,000 in operating profits and an additional $2 million from the sale of a New York warehouse.

Egbert told a New York news conference a week ago the diversification helps "reduce much of our dependence upon the automobile." The automotive division accounted for only 53% of the $365.4 million sales last year. But he added hastily "it is not our intent to downgrade the automobile."

One reason is that if the corporation can find the key to sales, automobiles can be extremely profitable, even for a small manufacturer. Egbert's original appraisal of the Studebaker auto business was that he could make money with 2% of the domestic market and that he could make a lot of money with 2.5 to 3%. The only recent year in which Studebaker topped 2% was 1959 (2.2%) when it showed a $28.5 million profit.

More recently Egbert has steered clear of any estimates of Studebaker market penetration, generally replying as he did in New York that he is trying to sell every car he possibly can.

One of Egbert's bitterest disappointments so far has been the Avanti, Studebaker's high performance sports car first introduced at the stockholders' meeting a year ago.

Praised by the critics and the public generally, the Avanti ran into an overwhelming number of production problems, ranging from its glass fiber construction to window seals. As a result, it took 8 months to build 2,000 cars whereas 10,000 had been expected.

Falling Short

Egbert had hoped publicly for 15,000 the first year, possibly more But by February, with the production problems licked, he had reduced his goal to 10,000 annually "until we see how the market is." In New York last week he ruefully admitted output will fall well short of 10,000.

Even so, the car is the major bright spot in the Studebaker auto picture and the company continues to try to capitalize on it.

Most recent merchandising move is to offer the Super Lark and Super Hawk, the traditional body styles of Studebaker's cars, but with the Avanti's supercharged engine.

Not only did Studebaker have production problems with the Avanti, it also ran into trouble with its sliding roof station wagon, new in 1963. The roof leaked. This, too, has been corrected. But it caused costly delays.

'Worst Behind'

Studebaker personnel are confident the worst is behind them.

The 1964 models have been restyled sharply—first complete restyling for the Lark since it was introduced in 1959. Efforts have been made to reflect the advanced flowing styling of the Avanti in the rest of the cars.

Egbert will announce Studebaker's first quarter earnings at the Thursday meeting. He also may give his shareholders some hints as to what to expect in the 1964 cars.

At last year's meeting the crowd clapped and cheered when the Avanti was unveiled and Egbert was treated with the deference usually reserved for an executive who has just suggested a $10 dividend.

What he most hopes now is that he can rekindle some of this enthusiasm in the shareowners—and in the public.

Wooden Soles

Wood Is Footgear

Columbus — You may not wear wooden shoes — but thousands of American workers do.

C. A. Lutz decided, 85 years ago, that wood, with its good insulation properties, was just the thing for the sole of a warm, durable farm shoe.

Many farmers in the area agreed with him and an infant business, now Reece Wooden Sole Shoe Co., prospered.

Today you'll not find many farmers wearing wooden-soled shoes but throughout the country thousands of road builders, steel men, airline servicemen, chemical plant workers and cold storage, dairy and refinery employes do.

Recently the firm shipped 400 pairs of wooden-soled, leather-topped shoes to New York for street repair crews who work with hot, freshly-applied asphalt underfoot.

Cottonwood soles don't corrode, they are non-sparking and are difficult to puncture.

Stocks Range Narrow

New York (UPI)—Stocks closed on a firm note but held to an extremely narrow range last week while trading continued to average around 5 million shares a day.

Brokers called the action a healthy consolidation of 7 weekly gains which had lifted the industrial average some 50 points to within 4% of its all time high.

In view of the President's hands off attitude toward selective steel industry price increases, his insistence that tax cuts not be tied to spending reductions, plus generally higher first quarter corporate earnings and strong indications of a spring upturn in the economy, brokers were not surprised by the limited nature of selloffs.

The mild pressure that actually did develop was described as profit-taking from two sources—traders cashing in on recent market upswings and investors establishing advantageous capital gains on stocks they bought around last October's lows.

It was widely believed among analysts that this week's consolidation was signalling the end of the first phase of a bull market.

Fat Cattle Prices Are Lower

Omaha (UPI)—Fat cattle prices took another beating the past market week at Omaha, suffering both from uneven distribution and a sharp break in wholesale prices.

Feeder cattle and calves sold steady, hogs lost ground and fat lambs were higher. The break on fat cattle was generally 50 to 75c, with some sales $1.00 under the previous week's peak. Choice cattle under 1,150 lbs. were most in demand. The high for the week on both steers and heifers was $23.75, paid for steers weighing 1,180-1,329 lbs. and for heifers weighing 959-988 lbs.

Other fat cattle ranged from $21.50 to $23.60. Plainer cattle sold at $21 and down.

The average price of slaughter steers fell to $22.21, compared with $22.60 a week ago and $25.24 a year ago. The heifer price average was $22.14, compared with $22.38 a week ago and $24.79 last year.

Cows sold 25 to 50c higher and canners and cutters moved up to $13.00-15.25.

Choice feeder steers weighing 800-825 lbs. brought $23.50 and 1,025 lb. weights with some grain sold at $23.25.

Choice stock heifers brought $26.50 and 611-lb. feeding heifers sold at $26.00.

Butcher hogs sold a bit better, both at the start and at the close, but in between sustained losses that left the bulk of the run 25 to 50c lower for the week. Butchers closed at $14.25-14.50, after a week's top of $15.00. Sows sold steady to 25 higher, closing at $11.50-13.00.

Fat lambs were about the only bright spot. Old crop lambs gained 25 to 50c and spring lambs 50 cents to $1.00.

Corn Is Stronger

Chicago (UPI)—A brisk export demand firmed corn prices but other grain futures worked mostly lower last week on the Chicago board of trade.

The corn market was firm despite heavy receipts, mostly from Commodity Credit Corp. stock.

With the St. Lawrence Seaway now open, dealers reported active buying of corn by brokers with export connections. Several large export sales to European countries were reported.

Wheat prices tumbled sharply during the first two sessions and then crept upward toward the close of the period.

The early liquidation by longs was prompted by heavy CCC sales in the southwest at the formula price, which weakened cash wheat premiums. Dealers feared this would stifle demand for red wheat.

Soybeans futures ranged lower. Oats held within a narrow range. Rye backed down.

Schuyler 'Egg Factory' Has 78,000 Layers

By GLENN KREUSCHER

Schuyler—A hen house with 78,000 layers is quite unusual. In fact poultrymen say possibly the only one of its kind in the nation is located here at Wagner Mills.

The 300-ft.-long steel building was used for grain storage until February 1962.

The layers perform on an assembly line basis for 14 months, with 4 hens to a 12 x 22 inch automated cage, without roosts or nests and in a controlled environment. The "egg factory" uses 3½ miles of water troughs in front of the cages.

This unusually large environment-controlled laying house is managed by Donald Davis, former regional manager for DeKalb Agricultural Assn. at Fremont. He started in the poultry business in Ohio 25 years ago.

Lights go on in the building at 4 a.m. for 14 hours. Dim lighting is getting a try in a portion of the 9 double rows of cages on two floors of the building.

Conveyor Belt

Six women gather eggs from a conveyor belt between the cages. The eggs are placed in cases and transferred to Claridge Farms at Fremont, where they are processed and packed for sale.

The layers are 4 breeds of light-type hybrids. They were placed in the cages at 20 weeks of age and Davis plans to produce 250 eggs or better per bird. Peak production hit 80% with more than 60,000 eggs produced per day.

The feeders and waters are completely automatic, with feed distributed 5 times a day by time clock. The water floats through a control valve and the hens help themselves to fresh water.

The big job is manure disposal, with 18 tons removed daily by a cross elevator that scrapes the length of the building under each deck of cages.

Davis credits the ventilation system with the success of the mammoth laying house. Air is distributed throughout the building by a series of insulated ducts.

Replacements Ready

When the hens have served their "laying hitch" they will be sold to poultry processing plants. On the same grounds, in another 70 x 300 ft. two story building, replacement pullets are being developed to fill the cages.

The replacement house is a windowless building insulated with thick balsam wool. It has a negative pressure ventilation system and dim lighting with 11 watt light bulbs. A high-fiber ration is used to develop the pullets, Davis explains.

Davis estimates that it costs 25c per dozen to produce the eggs. He estimates that one man needs 5,000 hens for a profitable operation and 8,000 to 10,000 if it is an automated laying operation.

$12 Per Hen

Those connected with the Schuyler egg operation say that statistics show that every layer means $12 in gross business for Nebraska and that one of the fastest changing segments of the agricultural economy is the raising and feeding of hens for egg production.

"The future of egg production in Nebraska will depend on just how much we want to put into it. I see no reason where the southern states have any advantage on Nebraska," says Davis.

Collegiate Rodeo at Fairgrounds

The 5th annual Collegiate Championship Rodeo will be held at the State Fairgrounds Coliseum at 7:30 p.m. Friday and 1:30 and 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

In addition to the regular events of bareback and saddle bronc riding, calf roping, steer wrestling and bull riding the Fraternity Wild Cow Race will be a contest event. The girls participate in 3 events—barrel racing, pole bending and goat tying.

An added feature will be the Block and Bridle Quarter Horse show.

Art Fritcher of Henderson, Ia., is furnishing the rodeo stock. Andy Andelt of Lincoln, president of the University Rodeo Assn., and Jim Svoboda of Burwell, secretary of the National Collegiate Rodeo Assn., will serve as judges.

In past years stock used for the collegiate rodeo has been highly sought by the nation's leading rodeos, say contestants.

Rodeo Queen

Rodeo queen contestants nominated by organized houses will be presented Friday night and the queen and her attendants will be announced Saturday afternoon.

Competitors come from accredited colleges and junior colleges of Nebraska. Many are experienced rodeo performers with high school and amateur rodeo contesting to their credit.

In addition to offering entertainment, the University Rodeo Assn. aims to provide two scholarships to the University and donate a portion of the profit to the Children's Zoo fund, says Louise Hamar of 4300 Holdrege, publicity chairman.

One of the scholarships is awarded to a senior and the other to an incoming freshman, based on financial need and scholarship. The senior must be an active member in UNRA and the freshman must have participated in the Nebraska State High School Rodeo.

Rough ride . . . Mick Harding and bronc take workout.

Air Ambulance

San Rafael, Calif. —A heliport at Marin General Hospital is under consideration for speedy handling of emergency cases.

Prospect of More Nations in Nuclear Race Haunts JFK

By GEORGE J. MARDER

Washington (UPI)—"I am haunted by the feeling . . ."

These words spoken by President Kennedy at his Mar 21 press conference, give a dramatic insight to the thoughts of a world leader struggling with the problems of the nuclear age.

The words come in the answer to a simple question. What hope was there in still trying for a nuclear test ban agreement after a decade of failure?

More Nuclear Powers

"Personally," The President told newsmen, "I am haunted by the feeling that by 1970, unless we are successful, there may be 10 nuclear powers instead of 4, and by 1975, 15 or 20"

"With all of the history of war—and the human race's history unfortunately has been a good deal more war than peace—with nuclear weapons distributed all through the world, and available, and the strong reluctance of any people to accept defeat, I see the possibility of the President of the United States having to face a world in which 15 or 20 or 25 nations may have these weapons."

The facts of cold war life dictate failure in negotiations for a test ban agreement between the Big 3 atomic powers—the United States, Russia and the United Kingdom But even should they agree, the odds are overwhelming against a halt to the spread of nuclear weaponry

The pact under discussion at Geneva is limited to the Big 3 There is nothing in it except moral persuasion which could force other nations to stop testing There is nothing to keep France and Red China, for example, from developing their own nuclear weapons, which France is now doing over Kennedy's objections

11 Nations Capable

It is estimated that 11 nations now have the industrial and economic potential to develop their own nuclear arms —if they want to. Some, and perhaps all, may feel impelled to do so unless the nuclear arms race is stopped

Those nations would have a self-interest in seeing to it that the race doesn't spread to powers which might endanger their security. World opinion would be expected to support wholeheartedly a test ban treaty and frown on any nation which threatened to disrupt the truce.

The proposed treaty contains a provision giving each one of the Big 3 the right to back out if it felt its security was being threatened by nuclear testing of any nation outside the treaty.

That would mean France and Red China would assume the responsibility of risking resumption of an all-out nuclear race if they continued testing after the Big 3 arranged a truce.

Nevertheless, there is no hope among disarmament officials that France and Red China would be willing to join now.

Science Halts Bacterial Invasion of Jetliners

Washington (UPI)—Science has come up with a way to lick the metal-eating microbes that have been plaguing 120-ton jetliners

The bacterial invasion of modern aviation was publicized first by Delta Air Lines a few months ago in a technical paper distributed throughout the airline industry

It warned that contamination of jet fuel by certain micro-organisms, so tiny they cannot be seen by the human eye, was resulting in serious metal corrosion — particularly inside wing fuel tanks

Corrosion in some cases was reported to have extended over 30% of the wing tank areas It was not regarded as a safety problem because the frequent regular inspections of airliners would catch any corrosion before it affected wing strength Yet such corrosion can never be tolerated in the slightest degree because fuel tanks in a jet are in integral part of the wing section and contribute to its structural stability

Science's answer to the problem appears to be a fuel additive known as PFA 55MB — standing for "Phillips fuel additive 55MB," and don't ask what the "MB" stands for — probably malovelent bugs

PFA 55MB actually is an anti-icing chemical which has been used in military jet engines for some time But its manufacturer, the Phillips Petroleum Co, Bartlesville, Okla, discovered that it also has properties capable of killing millions of bacterial slime and molds which cling to and devour metal

All that is necessary is to add it to the jet fuel The chemical can wipe out a bacterial count as high as 300 million per millimeter of water in the bottom of a fuel tank It still retains its anti-icing function.

PFA 55MB's anti microbe qualities have been tested in actual service flights since April, 1962, plus 27 months of controlled flight tests and two years of laboratory experiments Phillips has licensed 4 other companies to produce and market the additive so it will become readily available to the airlines

Contamination of jet fuel is almost impossible to prevent Such fuel is sterile when it leaves a refinery, but as it moves to airport storage tanks, trucks and aircraft it almost invariably picks up some water—such as through natural condensation of moist air in a tank vapor space.

It is the water which provides the dormant micro-organisms with life and the ability to multiply with fantastic speed Even if the airlines could keep water out of the fuel during its ground transfers, flight itself brings trouble Fuel normally contains dissolved water and as the water drops in temperature at high altitudes, it comes out of solution and collects at the bottom of the tank where the bacteria are ready to breed.

U.S. Nearly Had Bases On Red Soil

Moscow (UPI) — V I Lenin was willing 43 years ago to lease Kamchatka Peninsula to the United States for 60 years and to permit the construction of a US military and naval base there, it was disclosed Saturday

Kamchatka, opposite Alaska, extends down toward the Kurile Isalnds and is near the extreme tip of the Aleutian Islands

The disclosure came with the publication of a hitherto secret statement by Lenin in the ideological monthly Communist in which the founder of the Soviet state explained the necessity of granting economic concessions to capitalist powers.

Lenin at the time told a secret meeting of Bolshevik leaders that a draft treaty for Americans to exploit Kamachatka's mineral resources was awaiting President Warren G Harding's signature

Lenin also indicated that the concession to the Americans would help oust the Japanese who were then in possession of the strategic Kamchatka Peninsula on the Pacific

He told his audience that the Russians were then willing to conclude a military alliance with the United States explaining "there is no objection of principle to form an alliance with one imperialist power against another if it helps the consolidation of the socialist republic"

Apparently it was intended to strengthen Soviet Premier Nikita S Khrushchev's argument against the Chinese Communists who have sharply criticized the withdrawal of Soviet missiles from Cuba

It coincided with a full-page editorial in the Communist Party daily Pravda which invoked Lenin's writings to bolster Khrushchev's doctrine of peaceful coexistence and compromise with capitalist countries

Amendments Ready For Income Tax Bill

By DICK HERMAN

Completion of drafting work on 6 possible amendments to the state income tax bill was reported Saturday by Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton.

However, Burbach, chairman of the Legislatures Revenue Committee, said some of the amendments may be sponsored by other senators once floor debate begins Apr. 29 on the income tax bill, LB612.

The amendments call for:

1. An exemption of $400 for each minor child. This would be in addition to the basic $600 and $1,200 exemptions provided on single and joint returns.

2. Exclusion of interest earned on securities of the national and state governments, including subdivisions of state government.

3. Inclusion of corporation net income in the total tax base. State taxes would be applied before federal taxes could be subtracted.

4. Withholding provisions.

5. Inclusion of income earned in Nebraska by non-resident property owners.

6. Inclusion of Nebraska-earned income by non-residents who are employed or do business within the state.

Indications were that the original sponsors of LB612, Sens. Kenneth Bowen of Red Cloud and Lloyd Stalder of Humboldt, would battle strenuously against any of the amendments, although the child exemption credit of $400 could produce friction.

Bowen Friday said he would not object to adding a corporation income tax to the bill.

Would Bow

Nor, he said, would he be opposed to taxing non-residents who realize finance gain from Nebraska holdings or business connections, "if that is the wish of the Legislature."

Burbach indicated, other senators are inclined toward withholding provisions and that amendment might be advanced by some of them, he said.

Neither did Burbach say he was wedded for eternity to the $400 child exemption sum.

"I want to throw it out for discussion," he declared. "The Legislature might see fit to raise it to $500 or $600 or lower to something like $250."

The 1962 Legislative Council Tax Study report showed that as a result of the $600 exemption permitted each person by the federal government, Nebraskans remove about $900 million yearly from federal income tax liability.

Burbach reported he has asked State Tax Commissioner Forrest Johnson to review the proposed amendments and supply technical comments.

Constitutionality

It's the Revenue Committee chairman's belief state taxing of interest earned from federal or state bonds would land the income tax on the reefs of unconstitutionality.

He also wants to be certain about at what point the state income tax should be applied to corporate income.

The way Burbach's corporation income tax amendment is worded, the rate on corporations would be the same as that applied against individual income.

Burbach was firm that legislative consideration of higher taxes on insurance premiums, alcoholic beverages and tobacco should be independent of what happens to LB612.

"I feel we have come to a point where these other taxes need to have reasonable increases," he said.

"I would not be acting as a proper chairman of the Revenue Committee if I did not look at these other tax situations," Burbach added.

Still, he said, these taxes have no bearing on the income tax's fate.

Passage of the larger excises, along with the original 4% pari-mutuel tax, he reported, would have put an extra $6.5 million into the state's general fund annually.

Politics in Air

Bills Would Make Party Conventions Powerful

By DEL SNODGRASS

Nebraska's county and state political party conventions could become considerably more significant events if two bills are passed by the 1963 Legislature.

And, unless the senators have some second thoughts about the bills before they come up for final reading, the measures apparently are on their way to becoming law.

Considering the Legislature's well-known opposition to having its own members elected on a partisan basis, the advancement of the two bills off general file last week came as a surprise.

One bill, LB662, provides for a return to the system of pre-primary conventions which endorse candidates for all partisan state and national offices.

The bill would not affect the Legislature, because state senators are elected on a non-political basis.

At-Large Delegates

The second measure, LB432, would take the selection of at-large delegates to the Democratic and Republican national conventions away from the voters and give that job to state convention delegates.

Opposite views on how much weight voters actually give to party endorsements have been expressed.

From a practical standpoint, however, the passage of both bills would focus more attention on the county and state conventions for several reasons.

First, candidates for such offices as governor and Congress could not help but want the endorsements of their parties.

The endorsements would appear on the primary election ballots, thereby telling the voters which candidates had party backing.

Second, delegates to the county and state conventions presumably would become more important because it would be their jobs to help decide who would go to the national conventions to help nominate party candidates for president and vice president.

The pre-primary endorsement system was in effect in Nebraska prior to 1953, when it was scrapped by that session of the Legislature.

Responsibility

The official stand of both parties is that the endorsements would provide more argue, however, that the voters sometimes ignored the endorsements in the past and elected candidates who didn't have party backing.

Despite the Legislature's favorable reaction to LB432 and LB662, neither measure had anything approaching enthusiastic support.

LB662 cleared General File last week by a 17-7 vote, with 19 senators not voting. LB432 was advanced by only a 17-5 vote, meaning 21 lawmakers did not vote.

A 3rd major political party bill — the measure calling for a return to a partisan legislature — apparently is dead.

Any effort to revive the bill probably will fail.

5 Injured In 2-Car Accident

2 Believed To Be Serious

Five men from Lincoln Air Force Base were injured, two of them apparently seriously, in a collision at 25th and W Saturday night.

Harry Nunn, about 25, and Ira D. Major, about 20, both members of the 307th Operational Maintenance Squadron at LAFB, were being treated at Lincoln General Hospital. The extent of their injuries was not immediately determined. Both were thrown out of the car, police said.

Nunn and Major were both passengers in a car driven by Sammy Little, about 21, of 816 N. 25th.

Little's car was in collision at the intersection with a car driven by James Moore, 31, of 2216 R.

Moore was treated at St. Elizabeth Hospital for minor cuts and bruises, police reported.

Little and another passenger in his car, Tim Jones Jr., 22, also of LAFB, were also treated at Lincoln General for minor injuries.

Little's southbound car spun around after the impact and tore out a 30-foot section of concrete retaining wall on the southwest corner of the intersection, and Moore's westbound vehicle came to rest on the sidewalk.

Woman Hurt In Accident

Mrs. J. S. Kirlin, 75, of 2842 N. 50th, was injured Saturday when the car she was driving collided with a car owned by Douglas Maxwell of 5029 Cleveland, which was parked in front of his home, police said.

Mrs. Kirlin was being held for observation at Lincoln General Hospital.

Filing Fee Would Increase

The filing fee for U.S. senator and congressman would be increased to $225 under a bill, LB540, advanced off General File by the Legislature last week.

The fee, now $50 for senator would be the highest for any elective state and national offices. The present filing fee for the House is $10.

LB540 was amended on general file to fix the filing fee for many offices at 1% of the salary of the office which the candidate seeks.

Power Tiff Spreads to Neutral

By ELLIS RALL

The Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation Dist., long divorced from public power squabbles in the state and considered a neutral in past fights, has taken a position to officially oppose LB476, the 5-area realignment plan.

Central thus became the first neutral district to take an official position on realignment of the state's generation and transmission agencies.

The big neutral, Omaha Public Power Dist., has an attitude of staying clear of the realignment fight unless it is drawn into it.

This may just happen Monday when both LB600, the strong merger bill supported by by Consumers Public Power District and the majority of the rural systems, and LB476, the 5-area plan backed by the Loup Power District and Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District, are aired before the Public Works Committee.

The legislative committee of the League of Municipalities announced it favors LB476 and will offer an amendment to LB600 to include OPPD and Consumers western division.

An OPPD spokesman said his district will oppose this amendment.

Meanwhile, the Loup and Platte districts have undertaken an aggressive campaign to muster support for their local development plan.

The efforts apparently have borne fruit since a Loup spokesman said several busloads of persons from the Loup

Air Base Smoke Eaters' First Job To Get Crew from Blazing Plane

Nearly 25 silvery clad figures leaped out of huge red fire trucks—headed for the burning B47 jet bomber.

Their primary mission—rescue the airmen in the cockpit area.

All the foam spewing forth from atop and in front of the fire trucks was centered on the cockpit area.

Before the rest of the flames were doused, aircraft rescue airmen were by the cockpit — dragging out the aircrew.

Only this time it was a practice mission.

This is a weekly occurance at Lincoln Air Force Base—for those men need to stay proficient on all phases of aircraft rescue.

Each man is decked out in an aluminized asbestos suit, which is designed to reflect 90% of the heat an ordinary garment would absorb.

The water repellent fire fighting gear has an extra large hood which enables the firemen to enter the fire area and fight the fire for some time before coming out for air.

The jet bomber fire is not like a structural fire, said Fire Chief Adrian R. Fiala.

Fiala said thousands of pounds of fuel, oxygen, tires, magnesium in the engines and wheels create an extreme hazard.

This is the reason for the protective clothing.

Each of the 4 large fire rigs hold 100 gallons of the foam and 1,000 gallons of water.

When the water and foam are combined, each rig is cabable of producing 10,000 gallons of foam.

The fire department's 100-man force has more than 4,000 acres to look after, in which 400 buildings, and 1,000 dependent houses are located.

Teaching Experiment Working Well Here

One year down and 4 to go and the experimental English literature-composition program in 5 Nebraska school systems already has the aura of success about it.

You get few unqualified declarations from the involved educators at this point.

It's still too early, says Lincoln Supt. Steve Watkins, who agreed to the Capital City's pilot class participation a year ago.

And yet . . .

Parents of children not in the experimental program "are demanding that their children also be taught this way immediately," according to Dr. Frank Rice, co-director of the University of Nebraska English Curriculum Center.

Evidence of what's possible through the new curriculum program was furnished Saturday.

It sounds more like a jampot full of fun.

Still, the irrefutable fact is children in that class are already writing original short stories. Rather good short stories, too.

Nebraskans must credit an imaginative University of Nebraska English Dept. staff—particularly Dr. Paul A. Olson — for providing leadership, the Woods Charitable Foundation for providing faith and cash and the federal government, through the U.S. Office of Education, for even larger supplies of the last two qualities.

Olson's idea of reshaping the entire English curriculum found a backer in the Woods Foundation 2 summers ago.

Then, selected Nebraska teachers spent two full weeks at the Nebraska Center, authoring a completely new totally sequential curriculum.

Impressed by the Nebraska teachers' work, former U. S. Education Commissioner Sterling McMurrin pinpointed NU as a ciriculum study center. With the title went a quarter of million dollars in federal cash, financing the 5 year experiment.

Twenty-six teachers from Lincoln, Omaha, Westside, York and the University Teachers College campus school systems received special training last summer —

Petition For Union Vote Seen

A petition for an election to unionize the Monroe Auto Equipment Co. plant at Cozad reportedly will be filed with the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) in Kansas City by the United Auto Workers.

The announcement was made by J. H. Stocker, Nebraska representative of the AFL-CIO.

The United Auto Workers Union has been in the process of attempting to unionize the Cozad plant in recent weeks.

Stocker said election procedures will be worked out in accordance with federal law and that the date, polling area, time of voting and eligible voters will be determined by the union and management officials and an NLRB agent.

He said the election would be the first in Nebraska at an auto plant.

The question of unionizing the Cozad plant has been the subject of a series of editorials by D. F. Stevens Jr., publisher of the bi-weekly Cozad Local newspaper.

UAW has made unfair labor practice complaints against the Cozad Local, the Monroe Co. and the Cozad Chamber of Commerce.

The complaints are under investigation by the NLRB.

April 29 Big Day For Legislators

NU Budget Hearings Start On Day of Income Tax Debate

Public hearings on the University of Nebraska's proposed 1963-65 budget probably will begin April 29—the same day legislative debate starts on the state income tax bill.

Public hearings on the University of Nebraska's proposed 1963-65 budget probably will begin April 29—the same day legislative debate starts on the state income tax bill.

Sen. Richard Marvel, chairman of the Budget Committee, confirmed that after Tuesday the only state agencies still to detail their programs and expenditures before the committee are NU and the 4 state teachers colleges.

Marvel said dates for the schools' budget hearings "have not firmed up yet." The committee fixes public hearing times.

However the Board of Regents has scheduled a public session the morning of April 29. Reportedly, the Budget Committee public hearing for the state University will start that afternoon.

It may take the 8-member committee nearly a full working week to survey the University proposals and operations.

Presumably the teachers colleges would submit their spending plans to the committee the first full week in May

Marvel said none of the agencies whose hearings already have taken place are docketed for re-hearings.

About May 15, the committee will receive a report from the auditing firm of Peat, Marwick and Mitchell. It's due to suggest revamping of state government accounting procedures.

Also to come out of the Budget Committee — beside the omnibus appropriation and accounting changes bills —are decisions on bills effecting special institutional building levies.

More immediately, the Budget Committee Monday will review fiscal plans of the Nebraska Psychiatric Institute and the Soldiers and Sailors Home.

Tuesday brings the Beatrice State Home, plus a public hearing on LB605, proposing changes in the judicial retirement fund.

Marvel said committee members will be engaged "in making decisions" the balance of next week.

With public hearings for all other legislative committees coming to an end in another 10 days, pressure will grow for the Budget Committee to report its major bill as quickly as possible.

Women Writers Honored

Mrs. Gladys G. Benthack of Lexington, chairman of the Writing Contest of the Nebraska Women's Press Club, announced the winners in the 1962 competition at the group's annual luncheon Saturday.

First place entries will be sent to the National Press Women's Writing Contest. Winners of that contest will be announced in June at the time of the national convention in Indianapolis.

Honorable Mention is awarded in the state contest when only one entry is entered in a category. This entry automatically goes to the national contest.

Judging Team From Nebraska Wins 1st Place

The University of Nebraska judging team won top overall honors at the Iowa State University Invitational Livestock Judging Contest Saturday

Compiling a total of 4,393 points out of a possible 5,000 the Nebraska team swept the victory from the contest's 5 other teams from Kansas State University, Michigan State University, Iowa State University, University of Missouri, and South Dakota State College.

Winning individual honors in the contest were Lamoine Hall of Stapleton, second high individual, and Allan Svajgr of Diller, fourth high individual.

The team from Kansas State won second place overall honors and the team from Michigan State won third place.

Members of the Nebraska team were Hall, Svajgr, William Ahlschwede, Crete; Douglas Downs, Hershey, Dave Dorman, Sidney; and alternate member Bruce Scheney, Pilger.

Team coach is Richard B. Warren, assistant professor of animal husbandry at the University of Nebraska.

Wyoming Group To Inspect CD

A group of Wyoming officials headed by Gov. Clifford P. Hansen will visit Lincoln May 13 to inspect Nebraska's civil defense operations.

3,000 Lincoln Students Sing

More than 3,000 singers from 11 Lincoln high and junior high schools presented the 5th annual Lincoln Public Schools Choral Festival Saturday night at Pershing Auditorium. Guest conductor of the event was Don Craig, chairman of vocal and choral activities at Ithaca College School of Music at Ithaca, N.Y. Craig is former choral director of NBC's Bell Telephone Hour and glee club conductor and soloist for Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians.

Report Urges Creating Power Review Board

Hastings (UPI)—Consulting engineer George E. Johnson urged in a report released Saturday that the Legislature take action to create a power review board.

The veteran engineer issued a second recommendation that public power and irrigation developments remain with their present local bodies.

Johnson made the report as an extension to a report he made for the Nebraska Public Power System (NPPS) in 1960.

He suggested that the power review board — which would be established under LB220 in the Legislature — be given authority to review all differences arising between the various public power districts in the state and authority to issue orders of settlement.

Should a member of any board of directors of the districts involved refuse to abide by the provision in the order of settlement, the governor would be empowered to suspend him and appoint an alternate member to the board until the suspended member is willing to abide by the provisions in the order of settlement, according to Johnson's recommendation.

Johnson, a veteran of 48 years in the field, said in his report that the total cash saving to the people of Nebraska for 1961 from operation of NPPS, the eastern division of Consumers Public Power District, rural districts and membership associations, is $23,879,100 compared to rates charged by private power companies in 1938.

He disputed the argument advanced by private power supporters that private companies would have brought their prices down if they had controlled Nebraska power between 1938 and 1961.

NU Senior Wins $500

Coed Editor Second Place

San Francisco—Linda Jensen, a senior in the University of Nebraska School of Journalism and editor the Daily Nebraskan, was announced here Saturday as second place winner in the March competition for the William Randolph Hearst Foundation journalism awards.

Miss Jensen will receive a $500 scholarship as second place winner. Her winning editorial was in answer to the charges made by Fremont Attorney Ray Simmons that the Daily Nebraskan was indoctrinating University students with one sided, liberal thought.

First place winner was Gary Gerlach of the University of Iowa, who won a $750 fellowship. Third place winner was David Hawpe of the University of Kentucky. He was awarded a $400 fellowship.

Three students tied for fourth place: Peter Jones of the University of Kentucky, James Clotfelter Jr. of the University of North Carolina and Sam Kinch Jr. of the University of Texas. Each received $200 fellowships.

Seventh place winner was Louis Galvan of Fresno State College. He received $100.

Sidney Man Elevated

Alliance (A)—Ralph R. Carlton of Sidney has been elevated to grand commander of the Nebraska Knights Templar.

Hompes Funeral Arrangements Are Pending

Pegler

The ceremony will be held 8 p.m. at the Scottish Rite Temple, 15th and L.

Other officers to be installed include Tom Siefken, senior councilor and Gary Riley, junior councilor.

Testing Cost Sought by Warner

Cost figures on academic achievement testing of Nebraska 8th graders are being obtained by Waverly Sen. Jerome Warner, he revealed Saturday.

Warner said he has contacted several commercial testing concerns including the Educational Testing Service at Princeton, N.J., and the firm which handles the Iowa Educational Development Test

The sums Warner wants would "cover preparation, administration and evaluation —the whole kit and kaboodle."

All members of the Legislature's Educational Committee, Warner included, are on record favoring a single-shot test of 8th graders.

This would make possible an evaluation of academic training in schools of differing size and administrative organization

Impetus for the test program came when rural school backers insisted their schools were offering children educational programs equal or superior to those found in consolidated school districts.

The spot test idea found favor among a variety of educational groups.

State Education Commissioner Floyd Miller, who asked his department be not involved, suggested testing 6th graders as well as those in 8th.

Because of the possible cost inherent in a statewide testing program, Warner said he also is ascertaining whether a selected sampling might be sufficient to provide the Legislature with the data it seeks.

Like Miller, Warner feels the entire operation, from start to finish, must be handled by an organization without any connections in Nebraska.

Resolution Opposes Power Bill

and Platte areas will converge on Lincoln Monday to display a show of strength at the power hearing.

The Loup spokesman said several of the delegation will be decked in banners and lapel buttons urging the 5-area local development plan.

A spokesman for the majority of the rurals, Ralph Foreman of Columbus, said rural representation will be present at the hearing but not in the numbers anticipated from the Loup and Platte areas.

A Consumers spokesman, Charles Sayre of Lincoln, said his district has made no effort to bring in a lot of witnesses or observers to the hearing.

Because of the anticipated number, Committee Chairman Arnold Ruhnke of Plymouth has moved the hearing into the main legislative chambers.

In a nutshell, the two bills do this—

LB600 merges all generation and transmission facilities except OPPD and Consumers western division into one district leaving an option for the Loup and Platte districts to return to generation alone.

LB476 sets up 5 separate local areas similar to OPPD which would remain one area with others in northeast, southeast, central and western Nebraska.

Central District Manager Jack Boyd of Holdrege said his directors adopted a resolution at its last meeting urging that LB476 be indefinitely postponed.

Goodyear, Union Talk

Continue Past Deadline

Contract talks between the United Rubber Workers Union (URW) and the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. were continuing early this morning beyond the midnight Saturday deadline when the old contract expired.

Negotiation sessions were also continuing at Columbus, O., between the URW and the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. and at Dayton, O., between the URW and the B F. Goodrich Co.

Settlement with one of the firms was expected to set a pattern for the other rubber producers.

General Tire and Rubber, U.S. Rubber and Seiberling Rubber Co. were also involved in the contract negotiations.

The main issues being debated were wages and union proposals for a profit-sharing plan, a sabbatical leave and a committee to study automation

Affected are 50,000 rubber workers, including 775 at Lincoln's Goodyear plant.

Iowa Girl Takes Spelling Crown

Omaha (UPI) — Rosalie McCaslen, 13, of Greenfield, Ia., Saturday became the Midwest Spelling Bee champion here.

In edging Patricia Harding, 17, of Mullen, she became the 6th girl in succession to win the Midwest contest.

Earlier it appeared that a boy might win the contest for the first time. Jim Hill, a Westbrook Junior High student in Douglas County had seemed the most confident of the three remaining challengers.

Two State Office Employees Cited

Two employes of the Nebraska state offices were awarded certificates of merit for outstanding performance by the Federal Crop Insurance Corp. of the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture.

Mrs. Betty McComb, 4014 N, received the honor for the seventh consecutive year and Mrs. Colleen Kolb, 3848 So. 18th, received the certificate for the first time. Mrs. McComb is a secretary, Mrs. Kolb, a stenographer.

STATEHOUSE LETTER

A fresh attitude among state senators this session appears to have averted many controversies on bills when they reach floor debate.

More so than in previous sessions, current lawmakers are more inclined to urge opposing sides of an issue to get together to work out a counter proposal both sides can live with.

Notable examples of this approach are seen in such bills as the legislative reapportionment bill, LB220 the power review board bill and LB769, the water bill for municipal water supplies.

All Day Sessions

Many senators predict that all day sessions will begin by May 1.

Most, if not all, of the committees will wind up public hearings on bills assigned to them by the end of April.

All-day sessions mark the beginning of the home stretch for the session.

'Skunk Stripe' Costly

Back in the 1957 session the Legislature authorized state agencies to purchase colored cars rather than black and also to use reflective material instead of paint for stripping and lettering the cars to identify them as state vehicles.

Since then, some state agencies have purchased white cars but because the law says the vehicles, other than enforcement vehicles, must have the white "skunk stripe," the stripping cannot be distinguished.

This leads some to feel this is a waste of state money since it costs about $13.50 to stripe and letter a car. About $10 of this is for the "skunk stripe" alone.

One Clerk Different

While all the other legislative committee clerks take testimony at public hearings by the conventional shorthand method, one is different.

Mrs. Willalee Spelts is the only committee clerk who uses a stenotype machine to take testimony.

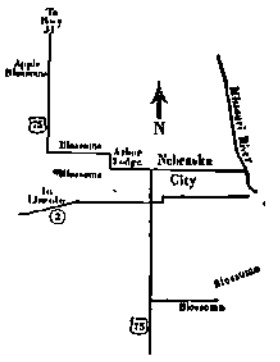
Neb. City, Lincoln Mark Arbor Day in Programs

Nebraska, the "tree planters state," will live up to its name this Arbor Day.

Gov. Frank Morrison will plant a tree from Arbor Lodge in the park area behind the Governor's mansion in Lincoln on Monday.



Legislators and members of the Centennial Commission will attend the ceremony, linked to the Centennial Commission's tree planting program inaugurated earlier this year. The program is designed to plant an extra 500,000 trees in Nebraska during 1963 and up to 3 million more trees annually to 1967, the centennial year.

Nebraskans currently plant about 3 million trees per year, according to the State Extension Forester Karl Loerch, a member of the Centennial Commission's tree planting committee.

The program:

11:30 a.m., adjournment of Legislature and assembly at Mansion park area. Assembly of Centennial Commission members and members of tree planting committee.

11:40 a.m., remarks by Gov. Frank Morrison.

11:45 a.m., planting of the tree by the governor.

Trees in Bloom

Nebraska City will feature an Arbor Day program today among the trees planted by J. Sterling Morton. For the first time on record, the cherry and apple trees surrounding the city are expected to be in full bloom for the occasion.

Arbor Day is Monday, however the Nebraska City and Arbor Lodge events will be today.

The Nebraska City program features John Rees, who will speak on communism; Mrs. Frank Morrison, who will sing "Trees"; presentation of honors to Henry Flau, leader of Boy Scout work in the area; and tours of Arbor Lodge.

The Keith-Garden-Arthur counties area plans to celebrate the day with the planting of 10,000 trees at Lake McConaughy. Some 15,000 other trees will be planted the following week.

Some 1,800 trees were previously planted when the Centennial Memorial Forest was dedicated on April 7th.

Postal Clerk Is Honored

Acting Postmaster Kenneth P. Lewis has announced the retirement of postal clerk Alfred T. Anderson of 1400 South 11th after nearly 37 years of postal service.

Anderson was honored by fellow employes at a retirement recognition ceremony. At the time of his retirement, he was assigned to the first class pouch section for incoming mail.

Power Board Wants to Use City Personnel

The City Power Advisory Board has asked Consumers Public Power District about the possibility of city personnel acquiring Consumers information.

Consumers earlier told the City Power Advisory Board that there would be a cost of obtaining some information requested because it would entail special studies or analysis.

In a letter to Frederick Wagener, Consumers president, Bennett Martin, vice-chairman of the city power advisory board said, in part: "Also will you please advise the board the approximate cost of obtaining the additional data demanding special studies or anaysis or the feasibility of our own personnel acquiring this information from your records."

Martin also told Wagener that Public Works Director D. L. Erickson has been directed by the board to furnish Consumers any such data readily available pertaining to the city operation that might be requested.

Reserve Officers Name New Staff

Col. Lester Sanger was elected president of the Lincoln chapter of the Reserve Officers Assn. at its April luncheon meeting. He will succeed Maj. Stanley McCandless.

Other new officers: Lt. Col. E. E. Abbott, vice president for Army; Maj. Anthony Piccolo, vice president for Air; Comdr. Grant I. Johson, vice president for Navy; Lt. Lloyd Peterson, secretary, and Maj. Lumir Kubicek, treasurer.

The Reserve Officers Assn. Ladies has also named the following new officers: Mrs. Stanley McCandless, president; Mrs. Lester Sanger, vice president; Mrs. Leland Jackson, secretary, and Mrs. Donald Baird, treasurer.

Both staffs will be installed at a joint dinner meeting May 25 at the Legionnaire Club.

Modern World of Missiles, Computers on Display Here

The world of missiles, computers, electronics, plastics and other modern-day magic will be viewed by upward of 10,000 visitors at the University of Nebraska's annual Engineers' Open House Thursday.

The 7 departments of the College of Engineering and Architecture will transfer the principles of engineering into seemingly mysterious feats on the downtown campus from 2 p.m. to 10 p.m.

The public is invited and there is no admission charge.

In charge of the program are Louis Lamberty of Seward, a senior majoring in chemical engineering, and Joe Wills of Detroit, an architecture major and University of Michigan graduate.

The departments and their plans are:

—Architecture, which will display recent designs of schools, hospitals, and churches, using fundamental principles of good designs with contemporary application at Architectural Hall.

—Civil Engineering, whose displays will show subdivisions of structures, soils and foundations, transportation, sanitation, hydraulics, missile launching pads and control stations at Stout Hall.

—Chemical Engineering, whose displays are centered around industrial and chemical processes, such as manufacture of paper, and casting of plastic souvenirs, at Avery Laboratory.

—Agriculture Engineering, which will include demonstrations for control of gasoline and petroleum fires, and exhibits of automatically controlled irrigation systems, and possible uses of aircraft in agriculture; west of Avery Laboratory.

—Engineering Mechanics, which will demonstrate the structural strength of eggs and pop bottles as they stand up under high forces, along with explosion of concrete cylinders under pressure, at Bancroft Hall.

—Mechanical Engineering, showing a mock-up of a new type of intense combustion engine, a working model of a thermal electric generator, a ground-effects machine which rides on a "cushion of air," and a sub-critical atomic reactor, at Richards Hall.

Library Need Topic

State Hospital Discussion

The value of a library to the Lincoln State Hospital population will be described by a patient at a special meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the hospital auditorium.

Patients and special guests also will hear a talk by Mrs. Nancy Burke, Lincoln Air Force Base librarian, who will discuss library experiences with the Armed Forces.

Lincoln State's library has more than 10,000 volumes, with the average 1,500 patients borrowing an average 600 books monthly.

The library, directed by Miss Glennis Leapley, also operates branches in the Security Building and the Tuberculosis Bldg. Mrs. Lorraine Elrod and Mrs. August Matisons are assistant librarians.

Number of Crimes Up Here Past Three Months

By BILL KREIFEL

There was a substantial increase in crime in Lincoln during the first 3 months of 1963 over like periods in years gone by.

The police department's quarterly crime report shows 614 offenses from Jan. 1 through Mar. 31 including 226 major violations.

The figures compare with these first quarter tallies for the 4 preceding years: 1959, 495 total—151 major; 1960, 405 total—111 major; 1961, 552 total—209 major and 1962, 577 total—199 major.

Crime of all types increased 6.4% in Lincoln over the same period in 1962. Major offenses rose 13.5%.

The biggest jump in a single category was in forcible rapes with 4 during the first quarter of this year compared with none in the first 3 months of 1962

There was an increase in murder, one compared to none, and larcenies of $50 or more rose by ⅔ from 60 in 1962 to 100.

Criminal activity also climbed in March with 220 total cases and 80 major offenses. These figures represent a 3.2% rise in total crimes over the 213 recorded in Mar., 1962 and a ½ increase over the 60 major violations tabulated that month.

The summary pointed out that auto thefts accounted for much of the March increase, 23 cases compared with 9 in Mar., 1962.

There were 7 more auto thefts in March than during both of the months that preceded it.

According to the report, total offenses averaged 204 per month during the first quarter of this year and major crimes averaged 75. These figures are below the monthly averages of 229 and 80 for the entire year of 1962.

The report says it must be considered that the city has grown by 5 square miles through annexation, which has swelled Lincoln's total area from 25.94 square miles to 29.94 square miles and increased police coverage by 19.2%.

This increase in city area will be reflected in future crime statistics and should be considered when comparing Lincoln's first quarter offense rate in 1963 with similar periods in past years.

According to the report, 225 or 36.6% of the 614 total offenses that occurred in the first quarter of 1963 were cleared by arrest as were 74 of 32.7% of the 226 major violations.

First quarter Totals:

	1962	1963
Murder & non negligent manslaughter	1	0
Negligent manslaughter	0	1
Forcible rape	4	6
Robbery	1	6
Aggravated assault	18	11
Burglary	71	95
Larceny $50-over	100	60
Larceny under $50	388	370
Auto theft	39	26

Research Important to Small Firms

A University of Nebraska survey indicates that more than two-thirds of Nebraska's small manufacturing firms are attempting to keep pace technologically through research.

A slightly higher proportion are both producing more than a single product and making a deliberate effort to differentiate their products from those of their competitors.

Two professors of economics, Dr. Wallace C. Peterson and Dr. Campbell R. McConnell, compiled these results from questionnaires returned by 248 Nebraska firms of 411 surveyed.

The survey was financed by the Small Business Administration of Washington, D. C., to learn more about business enterprises, which the report terms "the key institutions in our society." This knowledge, the report says, is essential for the formulation of intelligent public policy toward business enterprises.

The survey found, in the area of research activities:

—About 28% have their own research staff within the firm or have employes who devote all or part of their time to research and development activities, with a median expenditure of about $10,000 per year.

—The types of firms that usually have formal internal research programs are electrical machinery, paper and allied products, machinery, chemical and allied projects, food and kindred products, and transportation equipment.

—About 20% employ the services of research specialists, consultants, or research agencies, with a median cost of between $1,000 and $2,400 per year.

—About 29% are engaged in cooperative, cost-sharing research programs.

—One-third employ some type of informal research technique, such as using research information made available by public research agencies and programs.

The firms listed improvements of existing products, followed by development of new products, as the most important objective of their formal research. Development of new machinery or new productive technique was given a less significant ranking.

In the area of product diversification 68% reported production of more than one product, and 62.4% reported an increase in the number of their products during the past 5 years. Only 5.2% said they experienced a decrease.

The survey also found that in general there is less product diversification in industries which transform basic primary commodities, such as food, fiber, and minerals, into semi-manufactured goods than in those industries which are the chief users of such semi-manufactured raw materials.

In the third area — product differentiation — 79.9% of the firms reported a deliberate effort to differentiate their products from those of their competitors.

House Of The Week

Bi-Level Has Southern Grace

By Associated Press

To complete the picture all this house needs is a white jacketed butler standing at the massive double doors beneath those stately columns You almost can catch the aroma of magnolia and mint julep

The elegant circular staircase in the entrance foyer adds another touch of ante bellum charm So does the grand fireplace in the living room, and the luxurious balcony stretching across the rear

But there visions of the 19th Century end because the room arrangement and over all interior layout of this house was designed clearly to meet space age needs—including the high cost of living

Economy Minded

The house is the product of imaginative and economy minded architect Lester Cohen It is design J-70 in the House of the Week series

It s a 10 room house of bi-level construction containing 4 bedrooms 3 baths, a huge family room kitchen combination in front and a spacious living room and formal dining room in the rear, and on the lower level an enormous recreation room with den, laundry room, and oversized two car garage complete with a hobby alcove

Southern style . this up to date bi level home has both grandeur and warmth

Planters Need Silt, Peat Moss

Select Soils Carefully

By EMERY W NELSON
County Extension Agent

Soil for planters and window boxes should be carefully selected and prepared These soils need to have adequate and uniform fertility, good moisture holding capacity and provide for good drainage

Good drainage is obtained by using a layer of coarse gravel or sand in the bottom of the planter This will let excess moisture escape readily out the weep holes in the bottom of the container Additional drainage is provided by adding sharp sand to the soil mixture About ¼ to 1-3 of the planter soil should be composed of sand

The best soil to use in the planter is a silt loam Good soil can generally be found along creeks or streams particularly where trees have been growing and organic matter has accumulated The soil medium in the planter should contain 1/3 to ½ of good silt loam soil

The remaining ⅓ to 1/3 of the planter soil should be made up of peat moss or compost This provides the soil with the ability to maintain a uniform moisture supply which is so difficult in the small containers

It is important to mix these ingredients well and add small amounts of a mixed commercial fertilizer to provide the plant nutrients

Up to Date

Denver (AP)—The Colorado Legislature passed a bill to bring state statutes up to date The measure repeals a law requiring owners of buildings to provide hitching posts

Your Nurseryman Speaks

Park Department's Warnings Meant To Help With Plantings

The Lincoln Park Department has been checking improperly planted trees and shrubs along city streets and sometime during the next few days owners of those plants will be receiving a letter

If you should get one of these letters, don't go into orbit A very good reason is behind this mailing

First, a few of these trees and shrubs are creating traffic hazards With the increased volume of traffic on Lincoln streets, these trees and shrubs are adding to the possibility of serious accidents

Then there is the problem of improper placement Certain trees planted too close to concrete will break walks and curbing This can cost money

The trees involved must be grubbed out—a brutal, endless job Next, the broken concrete must be removed and hauled away This phase of the job, in itself, is very expensive Then, of course new concrete must be laid

Next is the problem of improper species The limbs of some trees tend to droop An these trees overgrow the sidewalks and streets they create hazards

Some trees are just plain dirty Each year the worms that attack these trees may litter the sidewalk and street making both driving and walking unpleasant

Other trees seed heavily In a few years, instead of a single tree, a young jungle may be sprouting along the street

In addition is the problem of improper spacing. Two trees are not necessarily better than one A single tree given plenty of room in which to grow can enhance the beauty of a street Two trees planted in the same area can become ugly simply because they do not have enough room in which to grow.

Be sure to get a permit for planting before starting such a project

The alternate to this permit is a letter which may cause you a real, financial headache

Realtor Warns: 'See What You're Buying'

Concerned with federal evidence that fraudulent sale of land by mail has "snowballed," Bill Kimball, president of the Lincoln Board of Realtors, has repeated earlier warnings about purchasing property sight unseen.

Kimball recommended one of two steps before a person signs an agreement to buy land:

1. Personally inspect the property.

2. Employ independent real estate counsel to analyze values.

Kimball's action came on the heels of a Senate investigation into sales of land by mail.

The Special Senate Committee on Aging is weighing whether to broaden the powers of the Securities and Exchange Commission to require those selling land in interstate commerce to disclose basic information concerning the land, such as its assets and its location with respect to community facilities and other improvements.

The Senate Committee is also considering giving the Post Office more power to curb unscrupulous operators.

"What is particularly disquieting about land con-men," said Kimball, "is that they prey on the pensions and life savings of our senior citizens."

Basically, the land-mail fraud scheme works something like this:

A man buys cheap, often useless property at very low prices. Then, in extensive advertising, he uses glowing, inaccurate descriptions; Essential facts are omitted, and he resells lots by mail at prices 90 to 100 times their value.

Vague phrases such as "a short drive away" can mean a two-hour trip. "Exquisite surroundings" in one case meant a jungle..

Bicycle Contest Next Sunday

Four new bicycles will be awarded next Sunday to winners of the bicycle riding contest sponsored by the Lincoln and Evening Optimist Clubs.

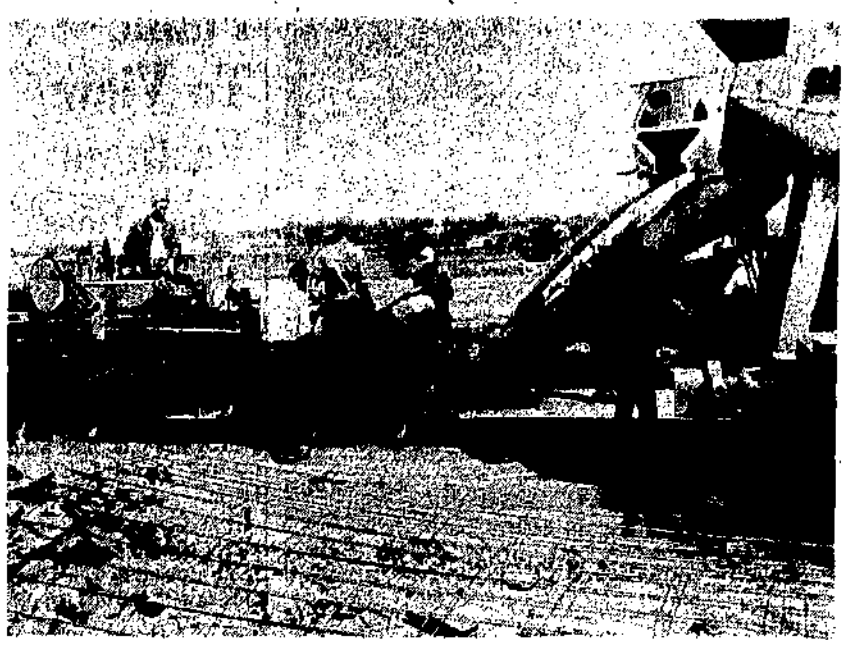
The contests will be held at Gateway Shopping Center and Beechner's parking lot, 17th & South, between 1 and 4 p.m. Boys and girls between the ages of 5 and 14 may enter.

Contestants will be judged on bicycle safety.

Omaha Dinner

Omaha — Nebraska legislators and other elected and appointed state officials will be honored at an Omaha Chamber of Commerce legislative dinner Thursday at 6:30 p.m. at the Livestock Exchange Bldg.

Industrial Park Progresses



Development work on the new Lincoln Industrial Park at intersection of Highways 2 and 77 south of Lincoln "is coming along at a fast pace," according to Engineer Harold Holtz. Roads are being graded and paved, storm sewers are being installed and street lighting contracts will soon be let. Railroad spurs will also be run into the park. Officials hope to begin landscaping the park by May 15.

New Type of Property Ownership Offered in Bill by Omaha Senator

Omaha Sen. Michael Russillo says a new concept of property ownership will be realized by Nebraskans if his LB288 becomes law.

LB288, which is scheduled for hearing Wednesday before the Judiciary Committee, would clear the way for construction of "condominiums" which would allow a person who prefers apartment living but would like to own his home, to do both at the same time.

"Condominium," a term which has been derived from Spanish and means "co-domain," is simply defined as common ownership of a piece of property by one or more individuals, each of whom owns an absolute undivided interest in the property, Russillo said.

He said this type of ownership should not be confused with cooperatives or any other form of rentals.

Under the provisions of a condominium bill, referred to as the horizontal property act, the individual would purchase his individual portion of a multiple dwelling and finance it in any conventional manner of home financing.

The property then has all of the common characteristics generally associated with private ownership, such as alienability, mortgageability, divisability and inheritability, he said.

Condominium is not new, he added. It dates back to the Middle Ages in some cities in France.

In modern times the population boom and housing shortages caused by the wars gave impetus to this concept of ownership, Russillo said, and many countries were quick to adopt enabling legislation.

The 1961 United States Housing Act, containing a provision for insuring mortgage loans on condominium apartments lit the fuse which interested many legislatures and in 2½ years several states now have cleared the way for condominium construction, he said.

"This legislation is the first new concept that has come along in real estate ownership for quite some time" commented Ed Kutilek, president of the Nebraska Mortgage Assn. and vice president of an Omaha Savings and Loan Assn.

He said the State Mortgage Assn. is interested in the bill and hopeful of its passage.

Sen. Kenneth Bowen of Red Cloud joined Russillo in cosponsoring the bill.

"As cities grow larger and transportation to and from work becomes more time consuming, people are going to want to live closer to work," Bowen said.

Herrington Denies He's Seeking Governor Post

Mayor candidate Dean H. Petersen's charge that his opponent, Fred Herrington, "may be seeking the Lincoln mayor job as a stepping stone to the governor's office," drew an unequivocal denial from Herrington.

"I am not interested in running for governor. I want to be mayor. That's it. Period," Herrington said.

Petersen charged that Herrington's speech before the Nebraska Press Assn. in Lincoln Friday indicated that he wanted to be governor.

Herrington, presently the executive director of the Nebraska Tax Council and former State Tax Commissioner, addressed 250 state editors on problems of state government and taxation. The Nebraska Tax Council is a non-profit corporation, collecting data on government and taxes.

Invited Last Year

Herrington said he was invited last year to speak Apr. 19, 1963, at the Nebraska Press Assn., before there was a full-time mayor opening in Lincoln.

His invitation to speak at the association's convention came Nov. 2, 1962, from the board of directors of the Press Assn.

The City Council placed the full-time mayorship as a charter amendment on the ballot on Aug. 27, 1962. The proposal was approved Nov. 6, 1962, by Lincoln voters. Herrington filed for full-time mayor on Feb. 15, 1963, and was nominated at the primary election Apr. 9, 1963.

Vern Scofield, secretary-manager of the Nebraska Press Assn., said he had heard Herrington make a similar talk last summer to the Nebraska Federation of Trade Associations. He said the Press Assn.'s directors extended the invitation to Herrington on Nov. 2 in order to complete advance arrangements for the state program on a subject of state-wide interest.

Asked why he filed for mayor, Herrington said: "I love Lincoln. Lincoln has been very good to me and I would be happy to try to help Lincoln since I feel I have the necessary qualifications for mayor from my many years of government administration."

Boys State Total High

364 Are Accepted

The largest number of boys to ever attend Cornhusker Boys State will participate in the 23rd session in Lincoln June 15-21, it was announced Saturday by Judge Edward F. Carter, president of the Boys State Corporation.

A total of 364 boys, who have just completed their junior year in high school, have been accepted. They represent 300 Nebraska cities and towns. Last year 362 boys took part. The boys' State program is sponsored by the American Legion each year as one of its Americanism programs.

Speakers scheduled to address the youths include Gov. Frank B. Morrison, Chancellor Clifford M. Hardin, Dean E. F. Frolik of the College of Agriculture and department commander William E. Galbraith.

The Boys Staters will conduct their own campaigns and elections for two fictional political parties. They will elect full slates of officers of their state, two counties and 8 cities. Boys failing to win an elective office will be appointed to an office in state government. Much of the time at Boys State will be devoted to the operation of all divisions of the mythical 51st state.

Legislature Could Finish Hearings

Full Day Floor Sessions Will Probably Start in Early May

Nebraska's Legislature this week will virtually wind up the public hearing phase of its 1963 session.

Thirty bills are scheduled for airing before standing committees during the week and only a sprinkling of measures — plus any late arriving bills still to be received—will remain for hearing thereafter.

Once the standing committees wind up public hearings on bills assigned to them, full-day floor sessions of the Legislature will begin, probably early in May.

Power bills, some of the most controversial of the session, will be among those aired during the coming week.

The Public Works Committee on Monday will take testimony on two different plans for public power reorganization in the state.

One of the bills, supported by Consumers Public Power District, proposes a strong merger of generation and transmission facilities in the eastern two-thirds of Nebraska.

The opposition measure, LB476, would divide the state into 5 power districts on a geographical basis.

On Wednesday, still another power reorganization plan proposed by Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff will be aired by the Public Works Committee. The measure LB463, would establish a new Nebraska public power and irrigation district taking over present districts which can or do operate in 15 or more counties.

Also up Wednesday at the same hearing, will be LB481, providing for the separation of Loup and Platte Valley Power Districts from their present joint operation as the Nebraska Public Power System.

The legislative redistricting issue will be revived Monday with a Government Committee hearing on Omaha Sen. Michael Russillo's LB578, which would submit to voters a constitutional amendment making legislative redistricting mandatory every 10 years. Considered at the same hearing will be Russillo's LB582, transferring Otoe County from the First Congressional District to the Second District.

A stricter prohibition against driving after drinking is proposed in LB712, a bill by Sen. T. C. Reeves of Central City and Sen Maurice Kremer of Aurora which the Public Health Committee will hear on Monday.

The week's hearing schedule (all hearings begin at 2 p.m. at the State Capitol):

Monday

Government and Military Affairs

LB578—Submitting to voters a constitutional amendment making legislative redistricting mandatory each 10 years.

LB582—Transferring Otoe County from the First Congressional District to the Second District.

Judiciary

LB509—Including legally adopted children among the relations covered in law relating to decedent's estates

Miscellaneous Subjects

LB773 Revising Railway Commission Law to permit commission to act as tariff publishing agent for carriers and amending commission's rate procedures.

Public Health

LB712—Making it illegal to drive a motor vehicle if alcohol content of blood is .10 of 1% or more, and fixing penalties.

LB758—Providing for appointment of special guardian for mentally ill persons paroled or discharged from Beatrice State Home.

Public Works

LB176 Dividing Nebraska into 5 service area districts for power reorganization purposes

LB463—Merging many power generation and transmission districts in eastern two-thirds of Nebraska into one "Nebraska Public Power Utilities District."

Tuesday

Agriculture

LB751—Revising formula for taxing school land leases.

Banking, Commerce and Insurance

LB751 - Recodifying banking laws.

LB761—Providing that preferred stockholders may have no voting rights in domestic stock companies

Budget

LB605—Revising method of determining retirement annuities for judges in certain cases.

Revenue

LB115—Providing a county license fee for bowling alleys and variously correcting other county laws.

LB405—Providing for listing and taxing books accounts at their net value in taxing intangible property.

LB718—Providing for the proportional taxing of motor vehicles operating in interstate commerce.

Salaries and Claims

Claims

Wednesday

Government and Military Affairs

LB776—Adopting a vehicle equipment safety compact.

LB777—Adopting a driver license compact.

LB781 Providing that driver's license of a mental hospital patient would not automatically be revoked.

Action On Education Bills Set

Starting Tuesday, the Legislature's Education Committee will begin executive sessions, working on a backlog of 17 bills already publicly heard.

Committee Chairman Ross Rasmussen of Hooper announced the executive sessions calling for regular Tuesday-Thursday afternoon meetings until all bills are either reported out or indefinitely postponed.

Rasmussen said he hoped to "kind of arrange" like-subject bills in a regular schedule. Committee members could then refresh themselves on particular subjects in advance of the decision-making periods.

The Hooper senator attributed the large number of bills still in committee to lengthy public hearings, which concluded Thursday.

A number of those public sessions were filled with opposing arguments and among the 17 bills are several packed with political blasting powder.

Topics encapsulated within the bills include state aid to education, transfer of teacher certification from the Legislature to the State Board of Education, greater teacher retirement benefits, stronger reorganization and driver training.

The 17 bills, introducers and subjects:

LB206—Adamson: Extending to high school students living 4 miles outside of town or away from the high school the same free transportation rights authorized elementary school students.

LB256—Syas, Orme, Foster, Kjar and Gerdes: Increasing service requirements to qualify for school retirement payments and raising of the payments, both by the individual and the state

LB261—Erlewine: Revising provisions of redistricting laws relating to Class VI Districts

LB339—Brandt: Providing procedure for a Class I district governed by a 6-man board to accept a merger petition from another Class I district.

LB343—McGinley: Pertaining to retirement benefits for the administrator and staff of the state teachers retirement system.

LB351—Syas, Klaver, Skarda, Mahoney, Danner, Moulton, Payne and Russillo: Revising the Omaha schools' teacher retirement program.

LB370—Klaver, Syas, Danner, Mahoney: Increasing state-financed monthly payments to reserve teachers.

LB407—Erlewine: Providing for handling of property and indebtedness of dissolved school district.

LB478 — Thompson. Providing funds for an establishment of a state driver training program.

LB500—Foster: Calling for a faster movement in school reorganization matters and changes in the law to make such movement possible.

LB535—Orme: Increasing retirement benefits to teachers.

LB597 — Erlewine and Gerdes: Giving greater permanence and status to Class VI districts, giving rural residents more protection against city dwellers in Class VI district elections involving both groups.

LB624—Nelson, Erlewine and McGinley: Calling for the public sale of 1.6 million acres of state-owned school lands.

LB666—Marvel, Orme and Gerdes: Establishing and financing a state educational television network.

LB667—Marvel, Orme and Gerdes: Calling for a 9-member appointive commission to operate the ETV network.

LB678—Warner and Foster: Providing a program of state aid to public school districts on an average daily membership basis, the money to be raised by some taxation method other than a levy on property.

LB740—Orme: Prescribing the State Board of Education should have power to set standards, regulations and procedures for teachers seeking a renewal of initial teaching certificates.

again through the generosity of the Woods Foundation.

Pioneering they went.

In Lincoln, first and 4th grade pilot classes were established at Meadow Lane and Prescott Schools, 7th grade at Everett and Irving Junior High Schools and 10th grade at Lincoln and Southeast High Schools.

Next month, according to Watkins, students in these experimental classes are due to be evaluated

As much as possible the control classes will be maintained for the full 5 years.

"Then we will have had enough experience to make really meaningful evaluations," Watkins said.

Measurement Difficult

Rice, one of Nebraska's most respected English instructors when he taught at Omaha Central High School, isn't sure the traditional English tests "will measure what we're after."

His goal is not necessarily soaring achievement exam results, but literate, logically-thinking young people, steeped in the glories of the written word, capable of clear and intelligent composition"

So, back to Mrs. Hamilton's first graders.

On the way, don't get lost in juvenile jungles full of leaping African animals or in forests of high adventures.

Deceiving

Keep also on the track of remembering an English lesson is in progress. You're apt to be deceived.

The basic reading skills program hasn't been replaced. It's just that so much more has been added.

Children don paper-mache masks. With arms akimbo, they gyrate like little people of Grimm's tales. They speak the lines of imaginary character roles they create.

They also write.

Here, just as he put it down, is a story by Steven Klasek, age 6:

The Lost Tiger

One day a mother tiger lookherbaby tiger to see the Jungle and Then The mother tiger said,
"don't wander off."
Then when the mother-tiger wasn't looking the baby ran away. He saw something under a log.
T The baby tiger beganto play with it.
It wiggled and squirmed.
He moved back he was scared. An elephant came along and picked him up.
He put the tiger on his back. The elephant said
"You better stop scratching me or elese I will put you down."
Elephant, I'm not scratching you I'm trying to hold on."
"So what," said the elephant it hurts. The tiger could not let go, so the elephant put him down by a lake. An alligator came along. The alligator said,
"Do you like to swim?"
"Oh no, I don't know how." he He turned around and and hurried away. He said to himself I wonder why he always smiles? His teeth look very sharp. Maybe he smiles at food.
"I better go faster," he said.

The End

All teachers "re-schooled" at NU last summer and those scheduled for like sessions in a few months are educated to follow a general approach and philosophy.

Olson described it this way: "An inductive process whereby the child is made to discover principles for himself under heavy cueing."

It can be better understood by observing Mrs. Hamilton in action for a day

The night before, she fashions colored pasteboard blocks for the children. Six words are printed on each block, all colored differently for what grownups call nouns, verbs, adjecitves and adverbs, but what children know as name, action and descriptive words.

Each child is given a block, deciding what he would like to "say" in the form of a sentence. There are also blocks for periods, commas, and question marks.

Changes Meaning

When the children have finished building a sentence, Mrs. Hamilton periodically flips over one of the blocks in their sentence to give it an entirely different meaning.

The children whoop with delight and between the whoops, of course, the youngsters have transferred their color and speech part relationship into proper word order.

While they are not confused at this stage with the names of the parts of speech, the proper order becomes so much a part of them that they can contrast an adjective with a noun as easily as an informed adult.

Each new block introduced to the class also means 6 new words used and understood. Center officials believe it is the smoothest and most exciting grammar lesson yet devised for small children.

Rote Learning Gone

The monotonous, hard hammer of rote learning is gone, and yet these children are already aware of grammar and have control of linguistic tools. Four months ago some of them were having trouble controlling pencils.

Within the first 3 months of school the first-graders were exposed to poetry. A few days later they tried their own hand. First lessons in linguistics and rhyme come when they correct their own first efforts in class.

Barbie Betts, another 6-year-old in the class, is beginning to get the feel for words.

A Mouse

I know a mouse
that lives in a house.
His nose wiggles
and his whiskers tickle.
I like that mouse
that lives in a house
But my mother doesn't.

Sandra Monkelien, 6, says she would rather write poems "than anything." One of hers:

A Girl and a Pearl

A girl had a ring,
In her ring she had a pearl.
This poem is about
A pearl and a girl.

Rice explained that the same general principles and approach to teaching have been "written in" to the curriculum for the other grade levels. "Each successive grade level is an elaboration of the former," he said.

Hard Reading

Center officials believe that if Meadow Lane School children continue to develop at this rate, they will be ready in the 4th through 6th grades for such reading as Alice in Wonderland, Aesop's Fables, Odysseus, the Tales of Troy, and Tom Sawyer.

By the time they are in the 7th through the 9th grades, they will study the ancient Hebrew figures of Moses, Abraham, Isaac, some Greek mythology and the Metamorphoses, by Ovid.

Under the plan from the 10th through the 12th grades they will have contact with Paradise Lost, and Thoreau's Walden, usually not experienced until students are well into college.

Nebraska Will Host 5 Masters

Five masters, all graduates of the University of Nebraska will be returning to their alma mater Monday and Tuesday.

Here for two-days of speaking, meeting and discussion with university students, the 5 include.

Leslie Andrew Welch, judge of the Probate Court of Jackson County, Mo. (Kansas City). A native of Wayne, Judge Welch received his LLB in 1916 from the University. While at Nebraska he was affiliated with Delta Upsilon, Spikes and Iron Sphinx.

Chris L. Christensen, retired executive vice president, Celotex Corporation, now living in Tulsa, Okla.

J. Lee Rankin, former solicitor general of the United States.

Percy C. Spencer, president of Sinclair Oil Co.

Elmer H. Dhormann, director of personnel, Data Processing Division, IBM Corporation.

While on the campus, the 5 Masters will be hosted by members of Student Council, Innocents Society and Mortar Board. Student chairman of the University's first Masters Program is Dave Smith, a University junior.

Rotarians Tag Leaders

Fremont (AP)—W. O. Baldwin of Hebron was announced district governor-nominee for Rotary District 565 at the group's conference Saturday afternoon.

Baldwin will take over the post July 1, succeeding Donald O. Clifton of Lincoln.

Fred Lentz of Beatrice was reelected treasurer at the business meeting. W. A. Robbins, 86, of Lincoln, district secretary since 1949, announced his resignation and Harry C. Voss of Council Bluffs, Iowa, was named to succeed him on July 1.

Rotarians from 36 clubs in eastern Nebraska and southwestern Iowa were attending the weekend meeting.

Gen Carlos P. Romula of the Philippines was the Saturday night speaker and former Rep. Walter Judd of Minnesota will speak tonight.

G. Robert Allison of Fergus Falls, Minn., appeared as the personal representative of Nitish Labarry of Calcutta, India Rotary International president.

This afternoon, Allison will interview Mary Carmen Lynn, Rotary Foundation student in Pakistan, via telephone.

Rebekah Dist. 7 Meet Monday

Vesper Rebekah Lodge 375 will be host to the 1963 District 7 meeting in Lincoln Monday at 6030 Havelock, with Evelyn Buettgenbach presiding.

Assembly President Mrs. Almer Hughes of Sutherland will act as instructor for the afternoon and evening sessions.

State Hospital

Public To View Vastness

Open House Next Sunday

BY BESS JENKINS

It takes more than $8,000 daily in tax funds to operate the Lincoln State Hospital where doors will be open from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. next Sunday for the annual public open house.

It also takes nearly 700 employes to care for the mentally ill population which fluctuates from 1,260 to 1,300 daily.

Of the total monthly hospital operating costs of $250,000-$260,000, two-thirds or $190,000-$195,000 is paid out in salaries.

Since Lincoln State is like a small village on the outskirts of a metropolitan city, there is a demand for many different types of employes with many different skills.

Prepare for Outside

The hospital must provide the patient's home, social and religious life, therapy and preparation for eventual return to the outside community.

The list of employes needed to accomplish all this is impressive.

It includes 323 nursing aides of one of 3 different classifications ranging from aide one, who is the beginner, to aide two, the ward supervisor, and aide 3, the building supervisor. This does not include 68 other security aides for the Security Building.

Also in nursing service personnel are 19 registered nurses and 9 licensed practical nurses.

There are only 12 physicians on the staff, including Supt. Dr. Richard Gray and Assistant Supt Dr. Lloyd Coats.

"We could easily use another 8 or 9 physicians in any field, just as long as they have medical degrees," said Dr. Gray.

Three Barbers

A remotivation class director, two buyers who help patients buy clothes and keep downtown appointments, 5 beauty shop operators and 3 barbers work daily with the patients.

There are two dentists, 3 psychologists, a social services department with 11 workers, two chaplains, two education and vocational teachers, 25 recreation workers and 19 occupational therapy and library employes.

It takes 23 men and women to staff the administration program, 10 to keep up the laundry and housekeeping, 29 to maintain the many buildings and expansive grounds, and 101 food service employes to prepare and serve the meals each day.

Next Sunday's visitors are asked to begin their tours at the Adminstration Bldg., where groups will be formed for the guide-conducted tours.

Jury Term Is Coming To Close

By DUANE SNODGRASS

The final session of the January jury term will get underway Tuesday morning in Lancaster District Court.

It will be the last jury session until the September jury term starts Sept. 23.

Normally, this final session would begin on Monday. It doesn't this year because Arbor Day falls on Monday and the Courthouse will be closed that day

Courthouse Call

The September jury term will run into next January.

Because of vacations and other conflicting factors, no jury sessions are held during the summer months here.

Records Moldy

The County Board Tuesday agreed to investigate humid conditions in the county's underground records vault at the Westview Nursing Home.

Mold has formed on some of the records in the vault, due probably to the dark and damp conditions in the vault.

At their meeting Tuesday, the Commissioners directed Commissioner Kenneth Bourne to meet with air-conditioning experts to see if installing dehumidifiers in the cave won't halt the mold's growth.

Some of the records in the vault date back to 1891. State law requires that the records must be saved, regardless of their age.

Horseman's Clinic Will Start Thursday on Ag College Campus

Horseless carriages used to be the status symbols in the horse and buggy days.

Now the wheel has turned full circle and the horse again is a status symbol of many American families.

Nebraska is no exception. In fact, it is this extreme interest in horses around the state that prompted the first Horsemen's Clinic 3 years ago at the University of Nebraska. The third one begins Thursday at the College of Agriculture.

Horse fanciers will get information from a nationally-recognized authority, Dr. Donald J. Wade, Warrenton, Va., veterinarian and part-owner of the North Wales Quarter Horse Farm. He also will judge the 8th annual Block and Bridle Club Quarter Horse Show.

Dr. Wade, with one of his prize Quarter horses.

Dr. Wade is president of the Virginia State Quarter Horse Assn. and the fast-growing, newly-formed Eastern Quarter Horse Racing Assn. He also has been active in the American Quarter Horse Assn., serving as director and as a member of the research, show and contest committees.

Featured at the Horseman's Clinic will be sessions on basic horsemanship, training and conditioning various types of horses, recent developments in feeding and disease control of horses; and a discussion of unsoundness and care of feet and legs.

Facilities at the College of Agriculture will be used for a major portion of the first day. Sessions will be held at the State Fairgrounds Coliseum the second day. The banquet will be Thursday night in the Nebraska Union.

SAMPLE BALLOT
Special Mill Levy Election
University of Omaha
April 23, 1963

☐ YES

"SHALL THE MAXIMUM MILL LEVY OF TWO MILLS NOW AUTHORIZED TO BE LEVIED ANNUALLY UPON THE ASSESSED VALUE OF THE TAXABLE PROPERTY IN THE CITY OF OMAHA, EXCEPT INTANGIBLE PROPERTY, FOR THE SUPPORT OF THE MUNICIPAL UNIVERSITY OF THE CITY OF OMAHA, BE INCREASED TO NOT TO EXCEED FOUR MILLS ON THE DOLLAR OF THE ASSESSED VALUE OF SUCH PROPERTY?"

This Is an Automated Ballot

This is a ballot. It will be used experimentally in Omaha during Tuesday's special election on the proposal to increase the mill levy to provide more funds for the University of Omaha. The experiment is to determine if standard electronic business machines can be used in place of special election machines. These cards will be marked with special pencils and then run through a centrally-located IBM machine. Jerry Hassett, Douglas County election commissioner, estimates the job of counting the ballots should be completed by midnight.

Missouri River Service to Be Good

Omaha (AP) — All functions supplied by Missouri River main stem reservoir waters will receive good service this year despite less favorable water supply prospects than a year ago, the co-ordinating committee for reservoir operations has predicted.

The prediction followed the committee's annual spring meeting in the Reservoir Control Center at the Army Engineers Missouri River Division headquarters. The committee is made up of representatives from the 10 Missouri Basin states and 8 federal agencies.

Determination on the length of the 1963 navigation season is expected to be reached later in the summer, Brig. Gen. Robert F. Seedlock, division engineer, reported.

He said the committee also was told that due to the improved status of reservoir storage and the new power units at the Oahe project all power commitments can be met at least through 1965.

Lights Burn Late as Northeast Diagonal Problems Are Studied

By LEO SCHERER

The lights have been burning late these nights in the city's traffic engineering department.

Reason is a detailed traffic study in regard to the proposed Northeast Diagonal.

City Traffic Engineer Robert Holsinger says the study is quite complex and is moving into the final stages.

The City Council authorized the study and want to see its results of the proposed $11 million expressway from northeast Lincoln to near the downtown area.

City officials have been discussing the building of the Northeast Diagonal for at least 14 years.

Hose That?

A resolution recently introduced before the Council gave city officials a laugh.

The resolution directed Public Safety Director Emmett Junge to install fire hoses on every City Hall floor in the same manner as in San Francisco.

Someone submitted the resolution as a joke after reading a news report that a San Francisco man had entered their city hall and turned on all the fire hoses, saying he felt the City Hall needed flushing out.

Around City Hall

Council members referred the resolution to Mayor D. L. Tyrrell for review.

Siren a Stopper

The Council meeting nearly comes to a stop each Monday at 5 p.m.

Reason is the civil defense warning siren on a building adjacent to City Hall.

The siren is so loud that Council members or City Clerk Harold Springer can't be heard over the noise.

Changes Made

There have been a few changes made in the Council chambers at old City Hall.

Old public seats have been replaced with modern ones and a longer table has been added to the Council seating area.

The building of the controversial parking lot to the east of City Hall has caused more than usual interest.

City officials, workers, sidewalk observers, heavy equipment, Council members have all been in evidence during the construction.

Take a Good Look at Martha

She can snarl if she wishes, can be chubby without hardly trying and much of the time you won't recognize her when you see her.

Blurty Martha ("I just love to act') Greenhouse, ex-Omahan, has been Jane to Jackie Gleason's Tarzan, Doberman's gal on the Bilko show, a tough patient on "The Nurses" on TV, and now has a role in the new Broadway hit, "Dear Me, the Sky Is Falling."

Martha has been on Broadway, off-Broadway, just about everywhere a versatile actress has been needed.

Right now, in Sky Falling, she's by Gertrude Berg in the comedy romp at the Music Box as the woman who comes to buy the house Gertrude won't sell.

Martha attended Franklin Public School in Omaha, was appearing with Omaha Community Playhouse at 7, was in Omaha Municipal University productions, acted on Radio Station WOW in fairy tales and skits.

She's got an uncle, Jacob Goldware, in Omaha; also a cousin, Mrs. Leonard Gould; is married to Dr. James Sasmor, a veterinarian; has a son, 13.

Hay There!

She never forgets. East Indian circus elephant Jennie, with the Shrine Circus scheduled to play Lincoln for 6 days beginning May 6, carries hay to other elephants when they are hungry. She can even break the haywire or heavy twine bands. And Jennie, a smart elephant, never fails to give the biggest share of hay to—Jennie.

By JOE FITZ GERALD

In the beginning there was disharmony.

Adam's Apple and the Three Coreds were really 3 tenors and a soprano; counting Eve, who was in for a lot of ribbing; Cain, who was really wroth; and only one who was actually Abel.

What might have been the world's first quartet had triad and failed.

But since, mankind has made steady though intermittent progress toward harmony—which can scarcely be noted more tunefully than by means of the SPEBSQSA

'Pitchikers'

The Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America's Cornhusker Chapter is celebrating the 25th anniversary of the SPEBSQSA's founding by promoting a songfest by the "Pitchikers" at 8 p.m. Saturday at Irving Junior High School.

Co-sponsor is the Lincoln Junior Chamber of Commerce. Proceeds will benefit the Lincoln Children's Zoo.

The Pitchikers won the SPEBSQSA's 1959 International Quartet Championship.

There are now 28,000 men actively angaged in "Keeping America Singing." Eve never got to first bass.

"To Kill a Mockingbird," starring Greg Peck as Atticus Finch, has won the March Boxoffice Magazine Blue Ribbon Award.

S'far as I know, only horse ever portraited in diamonds (246 of them) is the dancing white Viennese Lipizzan (generically speaking) in "Miracle of the White Stallions," now at the State Theater. Whimsical Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria had a pin made as a birthday gift for the Baroness Katharina Schratt 60 years or so ago.

Not done in diamonds but turning in a jewel of a performance in the movie is Philip Abbott, son of John Alexander of Lincoln, who plays the American officer, Col. Reed, who leads a mechanized cavalry regiment across the frontier.

Hair grows long and tempers grow short in "David and Lisa," starring Janet Margolin as Lisa, and in "To Kill a Mockingbird," where fierce little children fight fierce little children.

Top Movies of the Week

By Joe Fitz Gerald

'To Kill A Mockingbird'

Stuart—Starts Thursday.

Gregory Peck, Mary Badham and Phillip Alford tug at the heart in this homespun shocker about a southern lawyer's efforts to minimize the traits of hatred and prejudice in the growing minds of his two young children.

Adding to the excitement are an implsh visitor, a cantankerous old recluse, a pretty spinster, a farmgirl whose false accusations stick in her throat in a courtroom, an accused Negro farm worker who is the victim of fate, an enlightened southern sheriff and a judge dedicated to the truth.

'David and Lisa'

Nebraska—Starts Wednesday.

Billed as an unusual love story is this one starring Keir Dullea, Janet Margolin and Howard Da Silva.

David and Lisa are two emotionally disturbed adolescents. She speaks only in rhyme; he fears the "touch that kills."

Together they are a pair.

She is unable to recognize, let alone love, her husband (Vaughn) but reacts to the attempts of her doctor (Stack) to bring her around.

Miss Crawford plays a venomous head nurse who finds it difficult to accept any new theories about mental health.

With schizophrenic-hebephrenics, schizoid-hebephrenics, schizophrenic-catatonics, manic-depressives and younameit-theygotits.

'Caretakers'

Varsity Attraction.

Robert ("Untouchables") Stack, Joan Crawford, Polly Bergen and Robert Vaughn star in this terror movie about a girl (Polly) admitted to a mental institution.

Jaimie . . . Has More Mints Than Kennedy

New York (UPI)—You may have gotten the impression from the news dispatches that life at the fashionable Hotel Carlyle revolves around President and Mrs. Kennedy.

Naturally, they create a stir at this New York headquarters of theirs now and then, but a more influential (and permanent) resident of this inn seems to be one Jaimie MacDougall, aged four and a half years and a brilliant sandbox scholar at a nearby nursery academy.

"Take a handful of mints to the little fellow," said the maitre d' to the lad's mother as she completed a luncheon in the hotel's dining room.

That will give you an idea of how Jaimie rates. It's a good bet that this personage never sent any mints to President Kennedy.

"I think of him as the Eloise of the Hotel Carlyle," said Jaimie's mother, referring to the fictional, precocious female moppet created by actress-author Kay Thompson who not only had the run of the famed Hotel Plaza but, if truth were known, actually ran it.

Discoverer IV

"Jaimie operates the elevators, knows all the secrets of the help and management and apparently has discovered passageways that the hotel's architect didn't even know he had created."

Not that it's important, but it might be mentioned for the record at this point that Jaimie's mother is Nanette Fabray, co-star of Broadway's Irving Berlin musical, "Mr. President," in which she plays the wife of a President of the United States.

"Jaimie doesn't know about Eloise," said Miss Fabray, "and I'm not about to tell him. In the first place, he might be offended at being likened to a girl, and, secondly, Eloise did a couple of things at the Plaza that Jaimie hasn't thought about doing at the Carlyle, and I'd just as soon not give him the inspiration."

'Rather Remiss'

Jaimie has seen President Kennedy at the Carlyle but still hasn't met him. Matter of fact, he thinks the President is rather remiss as a host on his home grounds in Washington, D.C.

"We went to the White House when the show played Washington before we opened in New York," Miss Fabray said. "Jaimie was along, and he couldn't understand why the President didn't come out to greet us. I tried to explain that he was a very busy man, but Jaimie would have none of it.

"'If,' Jaimie said, 'the President came to our house, I would take the time to say hello, no matter how busy I was.'"

But that's tame compared to what the forthright Jaimie's reaction probably would be if he ever found out that he is the victim of a bit of parental deception.

Every morning he dutifully waves goodbye to Daddy Ranald MacDougall, playwright and movie director-scenarist, as the latter leaves their 11th floor apartment for a day at the office, just like any suburban child sending his pater off to catch the 7:30 train for Wall Street or Madison Ave.

Maid's Room

But this father merely travels in the elevator from the 11th to the 4th floor, where he gets off and proceeds to spend a writing day in his "office," a reconverted maid's room.

"Having a separate place like that in which to write is the only way Ran can get any work done," Miss Fabray said. "You can imagine how much he would be able to accomplish if Jaimie knew his father was in the same building. Especially since Jaimie knows how to run the elevators."

Joan . . . teaching her girls judo.

Jaimie isn't the only problem. Daughters Laurie and Heather, just back from a European trip, and Brian, 9, on school vacation from Hollywood—Miss Fabray's stepchildren—keep the apartment jumping.

Be An Agent

"Brian and Jaimie already have decided their roles in adult life," Miss Fabray said. "Brian is going to be a big movie star, and he is going to let Jaimie be his agent. Jaimie is quite enthusiastic about that. I think he must be aware of the power of agents. It could be that Brian might live to regret this deal."

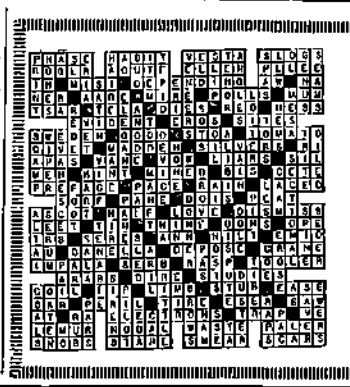
Answer To Last Week's Puzzle



Question-Answer Service Is Automated

Philadelphia (AP) — Lawyers are used to asking questions, but it may take them awhile to get used to the electronic answers they're getting now.

A device has been installed to relieve clerks in U.S. District Court here of the burden of answering attorneys' queries as to when their cases are coming up.

Now the lawyers dial a telephone number to hear a recording which lists all the upcoming cases.

Moore . . . unusual entry.

LAFB Hobby Show Has Double Mission

You don't have to have a hobby to participate in the 5th annual Hobby Fair next Wednesday night at the Lincoln Air Force Base Service Club—though entries are still being welcomed.

The base recreation department, sponsor of the show, also is collecting spectators for the free 7 to 9 p.m. panorama of hobbies

Base Recreation Director Robert Dula and his major assistants, Mrs. Lawrence Liebers and Service Club Director Shirley Michaels, believe the opportunity given base and community to draw closer in a recreation activity of interest is as important as the show itself.

Military or civilian hobbyists entering the show will find two Hobby Fair areas: the junior division for school age entries and the senior or adult division.

Variety already seems assured by the early entries. Monday is the entering deadline.

One unusual civilian entry will be Lloyd J Moore's glassblowing objects

Although this began as a hobby for Moore about 7 years ago while he was a University of Kansas student, it now is his life work as well.

He is the University of Nebraska's only glassblower, making scientific glassware which includes objects for cancer research work.

American script, used in occupational countries after World War II, petrified wood, firearms, military shoulder patchs, gems, leather work, birds and pigeons are some of the hobbies already lined up.

Some animated hobbies — square dancing and Indian dances—will be presented before spectators during the two-hour show.

Summer Can Be Season of Exploring Other TV Channels and Programs

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

New York (AP) — There are two ways of approaching summer television: Negative and positive.

The negative viewer may look at the June-July-August schedules of the 3 major networks and note with considerable dismay that 7 out of 9 programs will be repeat broadcasts of winter season shows—undoubtedly with most of his favorites among them.

Indubitably, for the inflexible, this is a dreary situation, because few adult viewers find much joy in sitting through for a second or — sometimes — a third time something which only mildly amused or entertained him the first time out.

However, there is a positive way of approaching the repeats schedules.

If there is a program our ardent fan has seen on "Wagon Train," for instance, it may be a fine time to savor the western flavor of its competitor, "The Virginian." Or he might even abandon the old west entirely on warm-weather Wednesdays to catch up with "CBS Reports."

Out Of Ruts

Summer, in fact, can be turned into a season for exploring on the other channels, getting out of viewing ruts, experiencing change. After all a show is new if you haven't seen it before.

But whatever the dedicated viewer's reaction, nothing can change the repeat pattern of summer viewing. The reruns are financially essential to broadcasters, producers of shows and even to the sponsors. And they arrive at a time when, because of vacations, the lure of the outdoors and longer daylight hours, the number of television viewers drops sharply, anyway.

Out of 90 prime-time evening network programs during 11 p.m. — 68 will be rerun shows.

The financial aspects are obvious. Most half hour dramatic programs cost at least $50,000 to make, while the cost of one-hour shows runs from $100,000 upwards per episode. Price of air time just about doubles the total cost.

Therefore, when a show can be used a second time, it reduces the bill for an entire season of programs.

Most of the dramatic programs logically take the rerun route, particularly the situation comedies, the dramatic anthologies and the series.

Game Shows

New programs and summer replacements are most likely to be found in the areas of game shows and variety programs. But there will be only 14 programs using all new material.

CBS' "What's My Line?", "Password" and "Stump the Stars" and NBC's "The Price Is Right" will continue with new shows However, "To Tell the Truth" and "I've Got a Secret" on CBS will fall back on reruns.

Perry Como's variety show will be replaced by filmed mysteries, as it was last summer. Garry Moore's Tuesday night show will be spelled by another variety show, with Keefe Brasselle as its permanent headliner. Red Skelton will take the summer off, replaced by another summer season of "Celebrity Talent Scouts," with Merv Griffin at the helm. Andy Williams, too, will disappear, with his place taken by repeat performances of a string of documentaries and hour-long public affairs shows.

Jackie Gleason's Saturday night hour also takes a holiday, and his replacement will be an old series of hour-long comedies made by Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz.

CBS, figuring that a weekly hour of Lucy is enough, will drop "The Lucy Hour" temporarily, filling in her Monday night half hour.

Jack Benny's half hour will give way to a new game show, "Picture This," with Jerry Van Dyke, who was signed by CBS but not used very much this winter, serving as host.

Ed Sullivan will continue his policy, started last season, of mixing a few new shows into a number of re-broadcasts, and Lawrence Welk will do the same thing.

There will also be a return —on NBC—of a short variety hour which proved popular last season: "The Lively Ones," with singer Vic Damone again as the host.

Other shows with new material will be "Chet Huntley Reporting" and "Eyewitness," presumably because it is impossible to rerun programs concerned with stale news events.

TV in France Lacks Riches; Has Bardot

By PATRICK McNULTY

Paris (AP)—Stars of French television are President Charles de Gaulle, Brigitte Bardot and many faces familiar to American TV viewers.

France's single channel network shows several American-made series that have made the rounds in the United States. Among them, "The Thin Man," starring Peter Lawford, and the current favorite, "Adventures in Paradise," with handsome Gardner McKay as the Polynesian skipper.

All are dubbed in French, of course.

Most of the programs, however, are French-produced under the often strict control of the government agency—Radiodiffusion - Television - Francaise (RTF).

Brigitte . . . free TV

By American standards, French TV is frequently crude, at times even amateurish. But is is made by Frenchmen and for Frenchmen and there are few complaints.

An American tuning in on French television probably would be happily surprised by the complete absence of commercials.

But while there is no advertising there also is no revenue from advertising clients.

Consequently, French TV is, in the words of one of its high executives, "short of money and lacking in means."

This explains why few of France's vast array of show business stars are seen regularly on the 3.5 million TV sets throughout the country.

Brigitte Bardot, for example, appears for free on a TV spectacular every New Year's Eve. B.B. says its her gift to the French people A friend puts it another way

"Brigitte knows the RTF can't pay what her star status calls for—so she works for nothing or not at all."

French TV shows reruns of many standards from American television fare: "Dobie Gillis," "Ivanhoe," "Circus Boy," "Broken Arrow," "Lancelot," "My Friend Flicka," "Our Gang Comedy" and "Mickey Mouse."

WOW Newsman Wins Award

Omaha—Louis S Schoen, WOW radio and TV newsman, is one of 8 winners of the CBS Foundation News Fellowships for 1963-64.

The award provides expenses for one year of special study in journalism at Columbia University in New York City.

Before working for WOW, Schoen held news positions in Lincoln, Lima, Ohio, and Bismarck, N.D.

Lincoln Teacher Given Award

A teacher (via TV) of Lincoln area youngsters is honored by McCall's magazine, May issue, in receiving "Golden Mike" award for "outstanding service to the American future by a woman broadcaster."

Anne Slack, teacher of "Parlons Francais," lessons in conversational French, is currently seen by fourth graders over KUON-TV, Channel 12.

Contest Won

NBC finally has nabbed itself a beauty contest of its own, after all these years of watching CBS romp off with enormous audiences for the "Miss America" finals. NBC has "The International Beauty Contest" to be televised from Long Beach, Calif. in mid-August.

APRIL 21, 1963

Mrs. Glenn Holm sets the dinner table with help from Jan and Joe.

By VICKY CULLEN

Ever wondered just how much you spend on meals for your family per day? Do you think there would be much difference in cost in bread bought in a store and that made in your own kitchen?

Two Lincoln women were asked to plan a week's meals for their families within limited budgets and report the results.

Mrs. Glenn Holm limited her costs to $1.10 per person per day, and Mrs. James Porter planned her menus around an 80c allowance.

Mrs. Holm said she "had cold feet" about the experiment, but when she found that her family was really interested in the project, she found it enjoyable.

The Holm children are Mark, 16; Jan, 12½, and Joe, 4. Mark is interested in athletics and therefore needs lots of protein. The two younger children are still growing, so they especially need well-balanced meals.

Planning the menu was a joint project for Mrs. Holm and her niece, Mrs. Ed Banning, a senior in home economics at University of Nebraska.

When she heard about the experiment, daughter Jan asked, "Does that mean we all have to go on a diet?" But Mrs. Holm said their meals were no smaller than any other week, and she even worked steak into the menu twice. She baked bread for the week and found that two loaves cost her 32c.

Out of a possible $5.50 cost per day, Mrs. Holm spent an average of $4.31, and the most spent for any day was $5.21. Adding a pound each of butter and coffee, her total cost was $31.65.

Mrs. Porter said she also noticed little change, except possibly that they consumed fewer snacks. She buys eggs from the country at 35c per dozen and uses skim milk and oleomargarine.

The Porter children are Marsha, 10; Linda, 7; Julia, 5; Clark, 3, and Stacia, 1½. Mrs. Porter noted that casseroles are not very popular with the children, so she avoided having them often.

The per day average required by Mrs. Porter was $5.28 from a possible $5.60. Actual cost ranged from $4.25 to $6.24. Adding ½ pound of coffee, 1 box of graham crackers and 3½ cans of baby meat, her total cost was $38.39 for the week.

Books for Young Readers Hold History, Mystery

By HELEN HAGGIE

Books for young readers published in the past few months are of wide variety ranging in subject from griffins to magic trees—from history to mysteries.

Often books marked with age limits appeal to children younger or older than the years indicated. Successful choosing of books lies in knowing the child's interests and capabilities.

One of those rare books that will delight adults as well as young readers is "The Young King" by Oscar Wilde (Macmillan). Wilde had no fear of using suffering and grief in stories for youngsters—and in doing so points a moral with no apology to anyone. The rich vocabulary in these 3 fairy tales will send youngsters to the dictionary, and the book is beautifully illustrated by Sandro Nardini and Enrico Bagnoli.

Entirely different in theme is "Nelson and the Age of Fighting Sail" by Oliver Warner (Horizon Caravel). Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz has served as consultant to the editors of this fabulous account of Horatio Nelson's career with the British Navy. The book is beautifully illustrated with color and black-and-white paintings, drawings and charts.

Small Set Appeal

For the most part, books for the read-to-me or beginning-to-read set are delightful, both in illustration and text. Some of the finer ones are:

"What Would You Do . . . ?" By Marian King, Luce. On each page, a little girl, who is wakened by the sun and has a wonderful adventure on a walk, asks a question to stir imaginations. Illustrations by Audrey Preissler are charming.

"The Crazy Zoo That Dudley Drew." By Carl Rose; Atlantic-Little, Brown. Dudley, who sees many animals when he visits the zoo, draws "crazy" pictures of them when he is at home. The author illustrates this story of the picture animals that come alive. Children will chuckle at the enormous mouse, the one-eyed tiger and the tiny elephant.

"The Griffin and the Minor Canon." By Frank Stockton. Holt, Rinehart & Winston. This whimsical tale is about the last of the griffins who descends on a little town to see a stone image of himself. The terrified townspeople wish the task of coping with the griffin onto the Minor Canon, who is rewarded for his courage and good deeds.

"The Pinkish, Purplish, Bluish Egg." By Bill Peet; Houghton Mifflin. A mother dove whose fledglings are grown finds a strange egg in a cave and the squirrels help her take it to her nest. Lo and behold, a griffin hatches. A little child will love the rollicking rhyme and delightful pictures.

"Ski Pup." By Don Freeman; Viking. A young St. Bernard learns to be a rescue dog. With a minimum of text, an exciting adventure is told in words and pictures.

"I Like Weather." By Aileen Fisher; Crowell. In lilting verse the glories of changing weather are told for the Governor's Invitational Art Show Here

By JOAN WATTS

With art as variable as the April days, Lincoln is caught in the contagious enthusiasm of the 75th anniversary of the Nebraska Art Association.

Coinciding with the activity of the weekend is the arrival of the traveling gallery of the Governor's Invitational Art Show, now on view through May 9 at the First Federal Savings and Loan Association

The group of 59 paintings by Nebraska artists includes the $500 Governor's purchase award, "Dance of the Red Eyed Cloud," by Omaha artist Don Beardsley, as well as 14 special award of merit winners and paintings by Lincoln and outstate artists entered in the Omaha show.

Grand prize winning artist Beardsley seems to create from whatever material is close at hand in his oil and enamel dimensional canvas, "Dance of the Red Eyed Cloud" It appears an experimental work, light in tone, strong in pigment, with the single powerful element being the burst of color in the red dot eye

Honorable mention awards of $50 went to Peter Hill for his futuristic oil, "Winter Trees," to Milton Wolsky for "4 Dreams," a vast wandering unsolved puzzle done in strong greens with a purple dot, and to the only non objective money winner, Thomas Bartek, for his oil of an elderly couple with rocking chair, picket fence and red brick home done in Grant Wood style

Having gone all out avant-garde with the top winners, the judges showed acrobatic intrepidity in selecting the special merit awards These selections indicate a rich and healthy variety in Nebraska painting today, proving that the majority of our artists are in contact with contemporary aesthetic expression

Particularly noteworthy are the fine impressionist paintings of Frances Kraft, the exacting perfection of Thomas Palmerton's "Surrender" the quality and distinction of Keith Fay's "Old Timers," Frank Sapousek's detailed painting of "Ghost Town," Hettie Marie Andrews' "Even in Death," overlaid in symmetric design

The fun for the viewer is in the wide variety of the talent shown

One Eye on Board, One on 'Enemy' For Possible Deceptive Maneuvers

By HOWARD SCHENKEN AND RICHARD L. FREY

Many of the deceptive plays which are at declarer's disposal can be detected by good defenders. The defensive problem is more difficult when a moment's pause for thought may give the show away.

On this deal, East needed to size up a tricky situation in a flash. His best play would have been to light a cigaret and try to look as if his thoughts were far away.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ◇	2 ♣	Pass	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	Pass	2 ♠
All Pass

Opening lead: Diamond king

West's opening bid and North's overcall were obvious enough. When the bidding came back to West, his wisest course would have been to pass. Three small cards in the opponents' suit are usually a danger signal, and West has little in reserve for his opening bid.

As it happens, East-West can make two diamonds with the help of Lady Luck, but the only effect of West's second bid was to push North-South out of a contract which would probably go down into one which was likely to succeed.

West led 3 rounds of diamonds and declarer ruffed. He saw that he was in danger of losing two heart tricks and a heart ruff if East got on lead, so a losing club finesse would be fatal. But if the club king were off-side, he would be in a bad way if he drew trumps.

If West holds the club king, South does not mind losing a club trick. So, in the hope of catching East unawares, South led the club 6 to the ace and returned the 7.

East, taken by surprise, had to think quickly. He felt sure that declarer must have a singleton club because he had refused to finesse, so he nonchalantly played low. South's club 10 held the trick and by setting up clubs and relying on a 3-2 spade split, South was able to make 9 tricks.

How could East have seen through the deception? The answer is that he can do so only if West is a good player on whose signaling he can depend. If West can be thus relied on, his play of the club 3 to the first club lead will indicate exactly 3 clubs in his hand.

If West holds either two or 4 clubs, he should high-low. So by counting the club suit and watching his partner's play, East can unmask South's deception, although, as it happens, South can still make 8 tricks.

Glamor

Stuffed eggs are positively glamorous when they are tricked out with canned shrimp.

Broiled Fish Is Gourmet's Dish

Broiled fish is a gourmet's dish that's easy to manage.

Wash fish, such as fillet of sole or halibut steak in cold running water. Dry fish thoroughly by wrapping in absorbent towling. Unless the fish is thoroughly dry, the butter will not adhere and it will not brown nicely.

Pour a little melted butter in the broiling pan, pour additional butter over the fish, season and broil until golden brown on top. It is not necessary to turn fish during broiling.

"I like it when it's blowy,
When clouds are swift and showy
And waves of grass
Run up the hill,
Yet all the time
Their feet are still"

Janina Domanska's illustrations have a fresh touch

"Tezza, the Coral Trout" By Brenda D. Shields; Blair. This is the story of a little coral trout living in the Great Barrier Reef There are adventures with a shark and the anemone, plus the drama of a sea turtle laying her eggs on an island Illustrations by John Derrick are imaginative and colorful

"An Island for a Pelican" By Edward Fenton, Doubleday Petros upsets two sleepy little Greek islands, for just the appearance of a pelican

Petros the Pelican

in the Agean Sea is startling Thodori and Vassili befriend Petros Fame comes to the island and jealousy to its neighboring island Dimitris Davis is the illustrator

"Wild and Tame Animals" By Dahlov Ipcar, Doubleday In words and excellent illustrations the author tells that in the beginning all animals were wild, but now some have been tamed to work or help man

"The Teaspoon Tree" By Mary B Palmer, Houghton Mifflin Carlotta Dodge illustrates this fantasy, the story of Andulasia who goes in search of the Teaspoon Tree and encounters many exciting characters including The Lady Who Names Things and Mehifflua, who terrifies the surrounding country but doesn't scare Andulasia

"Dragon Hill" By David Walker, Houghton Mifflin William and his cousin, Mary, accept the hospitality of Capt E McDurgan, known to the summer folk along the Atlantic Coast as Old Dragon The climax is exciting as the captain sails through a hurricane in the strangest craft known — a house

"Tia Maria's Garden" By Ann Nolan Clark, Viking The flowing rhythm of the text describes Tia Maria's garden—the desert In this wide stretch there are no fences and the flora and fauna come alive in the story Ezra Jack Keats does the illustrations

"See A White Horse" By Miska Miles, Atlantic Little, Brown The old saying about making a wish and stamping the fist when a white horse is seen proves true for Henry, who wants a dog

"The Golden Crane, A Japanese Folk Tale" By Tohr Yamaguchi, Holt, Rinehart & Winston In the Niigata area of Japan, an old gentleman told the author of the Golden Crane The story of the wonderful bird that is wounded and befriended by little Toshi and Oji San is enchanting Marianne Yamaguchi is the illustrator

Mid Childhood

Small fry who are learning French will delight in "Dis Moi" by Camille Sokol, illustrated by Bill Sokol (Holt Rinehart & Winston) and "Fun With French" by Lee Cooper and Clifton McIntosh (American Little Brown)

For slightly older readers, two fine stories of U S ships are "From the Turtle to the Nautilus" by Edwin Hoyt (Atlantic Little Brown) and "America Sails the Seas" by John O'Hara Cosgrave II (Houghton Mifflin) The first tells the story of submarines from the Turtle, a frail wooden boat that held one man and could submerge for 30 minutes never successfully during the American Revolution, through the time of the Nautilus and its voyage under the North Pole

"America Sails the Seas" is illustrated with pictures and charts and is a history of American watercraft from the time of Indian dugouts to the nuclear ship Savannah Others are

"Smoke on Old Thunderhead" By Gene Harris, Blair Excitement rides high in the Great Smoky Mountains Certainly every trick is used to hold the child's interest, from an old woman who is thought to be a witch to a grass fire that threatens Jeems' home The plot is trivial

"A Filly for Joan" By C W Anderson, Macmillan This is a wonderful story of a girl, Joan, who loves horses and Louis, the understanding huntsman of Grafton Hounds As Joan and her filly, Gallant Lady, mature and train together, a fine understanding grows Excellent reading

"On the Way Home" By Laura Ingalls Wilder with a setting by Rose Wilder Lane, Harper and Row This true journal is of an 1894 trip from drought stricken South Dakota to a farm in the Ozarks by the author of "The Little House In the Woods" Comments on the journey through Nebraska are interesting although not always complimentary

Boy Meets Beast

Fourteen-year old Horatio Nelson, with reckless courage, takes on a polar bear while on a North Pole expedition in 1773 This is one of 134 illustrations from "Nelson and the Age of Fighting Sail," latest in the Horizon Caravey series by American Heritage The book is described on Page 1C

"Bones and Black Panther" By Jean Caryl Funk and Wagnalls Although Bones Cluett needed a new bicycle, his father could not understand why it must be the very expensive English model However Mr Cluett agrees to give Bones the amount the less expensive bike costs, if his son will earn the rest of the money needed Bones at last earns the coveted bike—then loses it The exciting climax will surprise young readers

"The Forests of Adventure" By Werner F. Schmidt, Atlantic Little, Brown Small Eric lives in a crude cabin in the mountains with the huntsman, Black Otto He doesn't suspect he is the rightful heir to the throne The recovery of Eric's rights by faithful friends will give the imaginative young reader several fascinating hours

"The Golden Glory" By Isabel McLennan McMeekin, Duell Sloan and Pearce Colonial days and a southern plantation is the setting for the adventures of Tom Holiday, son of a Virginia Squire, Sunday, a slave boy, and Rain Cloud, a young Indian The book will interest boys who like adventure

Particularly good for more mature young people are the following biographies and historical novels

"Rebels in the Shadows" By Robert T Reilly, Bruce. Many young people do not realize the struggles that made this country great This story of the Molly Maguires, the Irish underground society in Pennsylvania in the 1870s is written with great insight into the problems of capital and labor Mr Reilly is public relations director at Creighton University in Omaha

"Uncas Sachem of the Wolf People" By Virginia Frances Voight, Funk and Wagnalls This authentic biography of Uncas, one of the great Indian chiefs of history, pictures him as a heroic figure of great strength and courage Even adults will enjoy the wonderful story of the Mohegan chief and his tribe

"The Last Voyage of the Albatross" By Charles Grieg and Felix Sutton, Duell Sloan and Pearce Seldom does a high school youth have such an experience as Charles Grieg who signed on the "Ocean Academy, Ltd" for an 8 day schooner cruise Chuck was one of the survivors when the ill fated Albatross went down in the Gulf of Mexico His memories of the disaster are recounted in this volume Chuck was graduated from high school in 1962

"The Peaceable Revolution" By Betty Schechter, Houghton Mifflin What do Henry Thoreau, Mohandas Ghandi and Mrs Rosa Parks a Negro woman living in Montgomery, Ala, have in common? This factual book answers that each peaceably revolted against oppression and injustice and made a great impression on the state of the world.

"The Bravest Teen-age Yanks." By Willard Heaps; Duell, Sloane and Pearce Many teen agers lied about their age, and joined the Union Army during the Civil War This book is a collection of some of the deeds of the brave youngsters who fought for the North

"The South Fork Rangers" By Manly Wade Wellman; Ives-Washburn Capt Zach Harper and his North Carolina friends contribute to the American victory in the Revolutionary War by tracking down and capturing a Tory officer This is history well told in fiction form

"Men of Athens" By Olivia Coolidge, Houghton Mifflin Junior high schoolers will find the men who brought about Athens' Golden Age were real flesh and blood with all the human emotions as they read this collection of short stories

Particularly for girls are 3 books which deal with young girls maturing into women

"Foxes in the Valley" By Hilda Boden, David McKay. Nest John, a 16 year old girl, keeps house for her grandfather who lives in the country in Wales The book is a warm personal story of a girl growing to maturity and happiness

"The Amethyst Summer" By Bianca Bradbury, Ives-Washburn Bayley Hughes, a teen ager, learns to manage a house, care for her brothers and father and orient her life from being a comrade to boys to dating them in this story written with a gentle humor and understanding

"Footlights for Jean" By Diana Forbes Robertson, Doubleday Jean Allen has ambitions for the stage and learns upon graduation from high school that she is not yet ready for the theater The story tells of the summer Jean spends in summer theater and how she comes to the decision of going to college before attempting a stage career

"Customs and Holidays Around the World." By Lavinia Dobler and H. V. Harper; Fleet A book to bridge the cultural and religious gulfs that separate men is this exquisitely illustrated description of customs and rituals observed throughout the world Divided according to the 4 seasons, the text is written for the young but is of such caliber that adults, too, will find it fascinating.

Drawing are by Josephine Little

"Diamond Head Diver." By Steve Lomas; Ives-Washburn. Koom, a young Hawaiian surf-rider and fisherman wants to work with marine biologists at an oceanographic institute in Hawaii Opportunity comes and the result is an excellent factual story of SCUBA diving

"Curse of the Killer Whale" By Lawrence J. Hunt, Funk and Wagnalls. The curse of the killer whale, an old superstition, is believed firmly by the Indians on Chatawa Island, near Alaska Mike Grant, a young engineer must prove the catastrophes at the missile site are not caused by the whale and he tracks down saboteurs in a story filled with suspense

"Tent Show Summer." August Derleth; Duell, Sloan and Pearce Steve Grendon and Sim Jones become amateur detectives and solve a sinister puzzle, all because they are first-nighters at a tent show

Dryclean Tablecloth

Is it best to wash or dryclean your favorite linen or lace or cotton tablecloth?

If stains like salad oil are allowed to age, they become difficult if not impossible to remove Exposure to air causes them to oxidize Many grease and oil stains are hard to remove with mild home washing methods, while drycleaning solvents are designed specifically for this type of stain

A tablecloth with the usual variety of food stains on it —gravy, mayonnaise candle wax mustard, salad oils coffee fruit or berry juices —would probably be both drycleaned and wet cleaned (hand brushing with mild detergent and water) by a professional cleaner A professional spotting expert might also have to take a hand

The drycleaner also reshapes the tablecloth to its original size on a curtain former where it dries Special equipment with auxiliary padding is used to press the cloth

Garden, Gardener Groomed

New York (UPI) — If you are a gardener worthy of the name, you don't worry about such hazards as broken fingernails, calloused knees, straw hair, and freckles — until after you've collected them

But none of these penalties is necessary if you choose your working clothes with an eye to protection

Before putting on gardening gloves, scrape your nails over a bar of soap This film will keep soil from penetrating deep under the nails, and will wash away along with the dirt later

It's more comfortable to work in gloves that absorb perspiration while protecting the skin from thorns and bruises

Sunglasses prevent glare fatigue headaches and squint lines when you must do your digging and planting in bright sunlight

A wide brimmed hat is the best protection for your complexion But even a kerchief is better than no headgear at all as protracted doses of sun dry up the natural oils in the hair and tend to bleach it in streaks

Include some sort of soft knee pad in your gardening equipment Kneeling on rough ground or rock invites callouses and tires leg muscles

Always top off your gardening with a warm sudsy bath Scrub skin and nails thoroughly, using both a body brush and a nail brush While a quick shower is refreshing, it can't be trusted to completely remove all the fine soil that sifts onto your skin — including your scalp

Two or even 3 hair-washings a week are advisable during warm weather when your scalp perspires freely especially when your head is covered

After you set your hair, manicure your nails while they are clean soft, and responsive to cuticle care and shaping If you consistently take good grooming as seriously as you take gardening you'll get satisfying results from both

Apple Storage

Controlled atmosphere storage using carbon dioxide is now making it possible to keep some apple varieties much longer than formerly, thus providing a wider choice of apples in late spring Carbon dioxide — same as the bubbles in carbonated beverages—slows down the "breathing rate" of apples and helps arrest the process of ripening

Gentlemen Chef

Great Chef Rarely Eats His Culinary Triumphs

By MALCOLM R. HEBERT
Chicago News World Service

It has often been said that a great chef seldom eats his own cooking. This is not because the food is bad, but because from early morning until the last meal is served at night, he is usually tasting and retasting to make sure that everything is right.

Continuous tasting is one of the requirements a chef must subject himself to, if his food is to be recognized as good if not great. The test of a great chef and a great restaurant is that dishes must taste the same time after time.

When a chef creates a new dish, and these are rare indeed, most being variations on a theme, he creates a new arrangement of ingredients and arrives at a new taste sensation. Yet, he may labor 20 years before he arrives at the right combination.

Escoffer was over 60 when he created Peach Melba; Louis Diat was cooking for more than 25 years before he created Vichyossiere. Time and experience plus many years of tasting are prerequisites for new creations in cuisine.

Here is a recipe, a variation on a theme of classic cooking, one that can be served as a vegetable side dish with any meat or poultry course.

Mushrooms in Cognac

1 pound mushrooms
6 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 clove garlic, minced
salt
pepper
¼ cup cognac
½ cup cream

Remove mushrooms stems and slice very thin. Cook slowly in 3 tablespoons of butter. Blend in flour and cook several minutes more. Add remaining melted butter and garlic cooking until brown. Add salt and pepper, warm cognac, pour over cream. Mix well and serve. Yield: 4 servings.

Tears Signal Of Fumes

Have your eyes ever smarted or stung while you were removing garment, furniture or carpet stains at home?

Drowsiness or dizziness are additional symptoms of potential danger. If the home spotter ignores these danger signals, some spotting agents are capable of first damaging the liver, and eventually the kidneys.

Spotting agents containing carbon tetrachloride or similar compounds can cause bodily harm. When these solutions are dangerous, the label will so advise.

Which persons are most susceptible? Generally persons who are fat, inclined to alcoholism, or suffering from liver complaints.

The National Institute of Drycleaning advises home spotters to use common sense. Work in a well ventilated area. And use small amounts of the agent. If you begin to feel any of the above symptoms, ventilate and leave the area.

The drycleaning industry uses 15,000,000 gallons of perchlorethylene solvent a year. It, too, is slightly toxic, but the professional drycleaner uses these solvents with professional knowledge and in equipment which prevents dangerous concentrations of fumes.

Ready, Set, Go . . . On A Picnic!

The best kind of picnic often is the spur-of-the-moment variety when you just pick up and go. A picnic kit, outfitted now and always ready, enables you to leave for an outdoor meal in a minute. Disposable picnic supplies eliminate clean-up chores.

All you need is an attractive basket, filled with picnic essentials such as plastic or wood forks and spoons, packages of paper plates, a twin server box of paper napkins, paper cups and a paper tablecloth.

Also include a covered mason jar of sugar and salt and pepper shakers (place a bit of paper toweling over the top of the shaker before screwing on the tops to avoid spills).

A knife with a serrated blade will come in handy. Wrap the blade in a paper towel and secure with a rubber band. Your picnic kit should also contain a box of kitchen matches, a bug-repellent candle, and a roll of towels for cleaning barbecue grills and wiping off tables.

After each picnic check the kit and replace used items. Then the next time someone says—"let's have a picnic!"—you're ready on a moment's notice.

Church Welfare Programs Often Target of Swindlers

By MIKE BAXTER

Anonymity is not often associated with the church image.

But Lincoln churches have with good reason avoided publicity about their help to persons who need temporary help.

As it is, the churches can give to these persons — in ways ranging from budgeted funds to special gifts — without embarrassing anyone and avoiding publicity — attracted swindlers.

These swindlers, preying on the big-heartedness of churches, appear frequently throughout America. But Lincoln seems to be nearly immune to them.

These are comments of Lincoln pastors:

"I was taken a number of times (in an Eastern state) but never in Lincoln."

"I was often touched as a small-town minister. The church was easier to find and the person didn't have to go through a secretary."

No Bitterness

"The reason there is so little swindling here may be because of the character of Lincoln."

One minister who was stung showed no bitterness.

"We gave as if we were giving to the Lord and the Lord's work. We weren't bitter, but this sort of thing hurts the program."

A long distance phone call is a good check on the potential swindler, ministers said.

A better check is to offer the person the items he wants — lodging, a meal or a tank of gasoline — rather than cash.

As a minister told it:

"People come in and ask for cash assistance. We offer to give them the items they need. Then they say, 'If you can't trust me with the money, I'll leave.' They often do."

The church must work closely with the local Salvation Army, City Mission and welfare agencies to help these persons, ministers agreed.

Most of the persons who come to the church for help, however, aren't swindlers.

Help Varies

They're well-known church members "in some emergency welfare need."

The way the church helps them varies.

In a large suburban church, whose members have a high average income, the church has an occasional contribution.

Another church has a budgeted amount for this program as well as a fund created by a member's bequest.

A large Protestant church receives special gifts each communion Sunday and Thanksgiving.

But nearly all Lincoln churches do have funds set aside or collect special contributions to provide temporary assistance, a recent survey indicated.

All churches contacted—representing many denominations and faiths — said they had such funds or contributions to be used at the discretion of the pastoral staff or church welfare committee.

And pastors contacted had all met the church swindler.

But these persons are not the ministers' most serious problems in their emergency-assistance programs.

"There is a grave danger of running out of funds before running out of people to help," a pastor cautioned.

Lutheran Unit Elects Officers

New Lutheran Women's Missionary League officers for the Lincoln area were elected this week

They are Mrs. A W Kelle, Lincoln, president; Mrs. Henry Flessner, Lincoln, secretary; Mrs. Robert Grote, Eagle, member-at- large; Mrs. D. F. Luebke, Walton, convention delegate.

The Rev. Melvin J. Tassler of Redeemer Lutheran, Lincoln, was named pastoral counselor.

Outgoing president is Mrs. Dearle C. Schatz, Lincoln.

Herrington and Petersen Speak

Lincoln's two candidates for mayor, Fred Herrington and Dean Petersen, will appear at the Lincoln Unitarian Church, 6300 A, today and next Sunday

Herrington will speak this morning and Petersen next Sunday, according to the Rev. Charles Stephen Jr. Both forums will begin at 10 a.m. and continue to 10:45.

The candidates will speak briefly and then respond to questions, the Rev. Mr. Stephen said

Presbyterian Women's Assembly Attracts 200

Hastings—The ecumenical activities of the United Presbyterian Church Women (UCW) will be discussed at the annual assembly in Hastings, Apr. 24 to 26.

Nearly 200 women are expected from 32 councils throughout the state.

The assembly will be held at the Congregational, Methodist and Presbyterian churches.

Mrs Paul A. Moser of New York, chairman of UCW Christian World Missions, will be the main speaker. She has served many national church activities and was national chairman of the World Day of Prayer from 1958 to 1961. She led the 1961 prayer fellowship in Zurich, Switzerland, in observance of the 75th anniversary.

Mrs. Moser

Miss Aurora Del Pozo, director of the migrant vacation Bible Schools at Scottsbluff and Gering, will report on the schools, which had an enrolment of 75 migrants last summer.

Bible study for the meeting will be led by Mrs. Doyle Hays of Hastings, state EUB church women's denomination president.

Nine Lincoln women, members of the state board of managers, will attend the assembly.

They are Mrs Elden Hitz, Mrs Monroe Usher, Mrs. Orin Peterson, Mrs. A. F. Daland, Mrs. Otto Hackman, Mrs. M. C. Leonard, Mrs L L. Belknap, Mrs. Clinton Conrad and Mrs. A. W. Epp.

Public to View Swim School for Handicapped

Lincoln's program of swimming instruction for convalescent and handicapped children and adults will be featured at an open house Thursday at the YWCA, 1432 N.

The public is invited to view the classes, directed by the Red Cross, from 4:30 to 6 p m. and from 7.30 to 9 p m.

There are 3 classes for adults and two for children. The YWCA provides facilities for the classes without charge. The University of Nebraska physical education department provides assistant instructors Patients are given this special instruction only upon the recommendation of a physician

A hydraulic lift, used to help wheelchair patients get in and out of the water, will be on display.

Reorganized Church Host To 185 Women

The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 14th and South, was host to about 185 women from 15 Nebraska and Iowa towns Saturday during a Women's District Institute.

Mrs. Francis Schrunk, leader of the Lincoln district, presided over the day long meetings Three consecutive hour-long classes were held during the morning session.

Each dealt with women's responsibilities to the home and the church. Mrs. Katherine Westwood of Independence, Mo., was the guest of honor District Patriarch Don Harvey of Council Bluffs headed some discussion groups.

NU's Webster To Spend Two Years in Africa

Dr. Orrin J. Webster, U S. Dept. of Agriculture official stationed at the University of Nebraska, will leave Sunday for a two year assignment in Africa.

He is regional coordinator for sorghum research under USDAs' Agricultural Research Service

Under a contract with the Agency for International Development (AID), the USDA will work with various African countries in developing coordinated research programs in agriculture. The officials hope to set up two research centers, one in western Africa and one in eastern Africa.

Dr. Webster's role will be that of counselor and advisor, primarily in sorghums, corn and millet

At the outset he will visit Nigeria, Uganda and Niger, but expects to work in nearly all African countries.

Dr. Webster's family will join him in Africa later.

Commencement Address at OU By Dr. Payne

Omaha—Dr. Wilfred L. Payne, retiring University of Omaha humanities department head, will give the university's 54th commencement address June 3.

Baptist Assn. To Meet In Lincoln

Expect 150 To Attend

The Capitol Baptist Assn. will hold its 30th annual meeting Monday at Belmont Baptist Church, 14th and Judson.

The association includes 9 area member churches of the American Baptist Convention.

Three speakers at the convention will include Chaplain Capt. Lucas Buttry, a Baptist minister-author; the Rev. Glenn G. Knight of Omaha, director of Christian education for the state convention; and the Rev. Dale Kamrath of Kearney, director of town and country work for the state convention.

Chief item of business will be the study and possible ratification of a new constitution.

Other business includes the election of officers and the hearing of church reports.

The Association, alternating between clergical and lay moderators, this year will elect a minister to the top office for a one-year term.

Present moderator of the Assocation is Lincolnite LeRoy Miller, 1500 Stockwell.

The reports will come from Baptist churches in Fairbury, Beatrice, Palmyra, Western and Alexandria and 4 Lincoln churches, Belmont Baptist, First Baptist, Second Baptist and Sheridan Baptist.

The Association membership is nearly 3,000. About 150 are expected to attend the Monday convention.

Dr. Fred . . . interim

Dr. Freed Is Named

Will Serve Westminster

The Rev. Dr. Elmer E. Freed of Wooster, O., is the new interim pastor to Westminster Presbyterian Church.

The former pastor of Omaha's Dundee Presbyterian Church — from the fall of 1953 until 1957 —will serve until a minister is called, he said.

Dr. Freed, a Wooster College graduate, served churches in the central Illinois area

As a Peoria minister, he held several offices in the state presbytery.

Dr. Freed, since his retirement, has served interim pastorates "from Ft Meyers, Fla to Seattle," he said.

Nebraska City Has Workshop

Nebraska City — A stewardship workshop will be held at the College View Presbyterian Church here at 4 p m Monday.

The Rev. Robert N. Allen, secretary for youth stewardship of the United Presbyterian Church, Dr. George Bancroft of Omaha and the Rev. Ralph Hamilton of Kearney will conduct the program.

Allen

A similar meeting will be held Tuesday in Beatrice.

Welfare Meet to Hear Well-Known Speakers

Three nationally-known speakers will be in Lincoln this week to appear on the program of the 66th annual conference of the Nebraska Welfare Assn., opening Wednesday night at the Cornhusker.

Elson Mrs. Mann

Their names and subjects: Alex Elson, Russian-born Chicago attorney, civic leader, author and known as a child legislation specialist—"Justice for the Child."

Mrs. Marty Mann of New York City, executive director of the National Council on Alcoholism, lecturer, and author—"The Challenge of Alcoholism."

Miss Hoey

Miss Jane Hoey of New York City but native of Greeley County, Neb., retired social and health worker, best known for her work as organizer and director of the Social Security Administration for 18 years — "Overcoming Deterrents in Public Welfare Services."

Miss Hoey, U.S. delegate to the Social Commission, Economic and Social Council, of the United Nations, speaks Friday. The other two feature the Thursday program.

Mrs. Mann also will meet Friday noon with the Lincoln Alcoholism Council directors at the Cornhusker to counsel the new local organization in setting up its activities.

In addition to the general sessions, group section meetings will carry out the conference theme of the community looking at health, education and welfare.

These will cover the subjects of counseling the alcoholic, family centered treatment, school dropouts in town and country, who helps the emotionally disturbed person in the community, and how.

Each section session will end with a discussion and question period

A successor to Mrs. Lily Okura of Omaha, state president, and other new officers will be elected at the annual business meeting Friday morning.

The opening session Wednesday evening will feature a series of films on social welfare topics.

Centennial Convention

1,000 Expected At Beatrice

Beatrice (AP) — More than 1,000 Nebraskans are expected here this week for the centennial convention of Nebraska Christian Churches.

Registration begins Thursday. The convention continues through Sunday.

The Christian Churches began their state conventions in 1863 at Brownville. Richard Brown, founder of the town, was instrumental in getting the convention started.

The Rev. Charles Livingston, pastor of the First Christian Church of Scottsbluff, is the convention president. Two featured speakers will be Dr Tom Parish, pastor of Central Christian Church of Wichita, Kan., and Robert Nelson, director of world missions of the Africa Division of the United Christian Missionary Society.

The mass centennial banquet will be Saturday evening. Also that evening the Beatrice Christian Church is planning a special pageant.

Missionary Four Here

Nigerian and Indian missionaries will visit United Missionary Churches in southeast Nebraska, including Lincoln, this week.

The missionaries who will appear at Northeast United Missionary Church, 66th and Gladstone, include the Rev. Weyburn Johnson of India, the Rev. Charles Nelson of Nigeria, and Nigerians Naomi Everett and Jean Crist.

Their schedule

The Rev. Mr. Johnson, who operates a religious literature bookstore serving northern India, will speak at Dorchester Tuesday and Wednesday.

He will visit Milford on Thursday, Weeping Water on Friday and Lincoln next Sunday.

The Rev. Mr. Nelson, in the United States on furlough, will speak in Dorchester on Thursday, Lincoln on Friday, Milford and Weeping Water next Sunday

Miss Everett and Miss Crist will speak together in Lincoln on Saturday, Milford and Weeping Water on Sunday.

Slides of their work and mission area will be shown.

Lutheran Church Meeting Is Set

Sedalia, Mo. — Nearly 20 Lincoln area delegates will attend the central district convention of the American Lutheran Church here Monday through Thursday.

Dr. Erwin G. Fritschel of Denver, district president, will preside.

Convention highlights include the reception of new congregations into the district and the inclusion of two Lutheran Free Church congregations whose synod recently merged with the American Lutheran Church.

Omaha Minister Speaks at Rally

The Rev. Jerry G Dunn of Omaha will speak at a Youth for Christ rally at the Youth Center, 15th and O, Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

The Rev. Mr. Dunn is director of public relations and rehabilitation for the Omaha Open Door Mission. His appearance here is co-sponsored by the Lancaster County Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

Dunn

He is a recipient of the Sertoma Club's "Service to Mankind" award and the National Conference of Christians and Jews "Good Neighbor" award.

Six Priests To Celebrate Silver Jubilee

Ulysses—Six Catholic priests of the Lincoln Diocese will celebrate their silver jubilee of ordination here Wednesday when Bishop James Casey offers a Solemn Pontifical Mass of Thanksgiving in the Immaculate Conception Church

The priests, members of the ordination class of 1938, and their present assignments are:

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Georg J. Schuster, Immaculate Conception Church, Ulysses.

The Rev. Edward A. Orzechowski, St. Mary's Church, Aurora.

The Rev. Frank J. Leiblinger, St. Paulinus Church, Syracuse.

The Rev. Charles F. Rada, St. Mary's Church, Sutton.

The Rev. Francis Reynolds, Madonna Home, Lincoln

The Rev. Peter Naughton, Mother of Sorrows' Church, Grant.

Msgr. Schuster formerly served as administrator at Sacred Heart and Holy Family Churches in Lincoln. He also was diocesan superintendent of schools and CYO director of the Newman Club at the University of Nebraska.

A dinner for the priests, relatives and special guests will be held at the David City Auditorium at 1.30 p.m. Wednesday.

Three of the priests formerly served parishes in Butler County. They are Fathers Orzechowski, Leiblinger and Rada.

A Jivy Blueblood Tells All

English Girl's Tongue Barbed

Coronet Among the Weeds. By Charlotte Bingham; Random House.

The raven-haired doll who stares so sweetly from the jacket of this book is not as innocent as she seems. To her you are probably a weed of a drip if under 25, or "an awful smooth slug" if over. To look at, butter wouldn't melt in her mouth, but in fact she makes with the words like trim little fists pummeling your pan.

Charlotte Bingham is her name, and we are told she is the daughter of Lord and Lady Clanmorris, English bluebloods who both write books. Charlotte, 21, is thus following in the family tradition, though it's doubtful whether there's much resemblance between the language she uses and that which they employ.

Charlotte writes as an English teen-ager who grew up in the new Americanized Britain Most of the time she's with her friend Migo, a lively little fully like herself "She was the only person I'd ever met who was worse than me"

The two go off to Paris She stays with a marquis and his family who talk about their ancestors Charlotte, who can trace her forefathers back to 1273, gives the back of her hand to ancestors and all that.

To this uppercrust English kid nothing old is sacred, nothing big is important. Her irreverent eye and barbed tongue miss nothing, especially where weeds (boys) are concerned. "The weed was a long-haired thing with suede shoes." His dancing was terrible.

"When you live with a weed he just stands throwing you about, looking smug while you kill yourself." Country Hostesses are no better. "She looked quite human for a horse."

You'll read her and chuckle You'll marvel, too, at the changes which have come over starchy old England if cool kittens like this are representative of the well-born

And you'd better figure out for yourself what the word "loo" means. She doesn't tell you, though it recurs repeatedly. It's the place where Charlotte and her pals spend much of their time at boring dances. —SRS

Lessons Of Korea Disturbing

This Kind of War. By T R Fehrenbach, Macmillan

In the beginning they wouldn't even admit it was a war. They called a "police action" at first, and later, "the armed conflict in Korea" But it was a war all right — a dirty, disagreeable war in which men fought and died criss-crossing the same bleak terrain.

This big book is complete in its coverage, pinpointed in its detail, graphic in its narration, and disturbing in the lessons it repeatedly underlines for us Most Americans would like to forget the "bloody checkerboard" that was the Korean War: this book won't let them.

T. R. Fehrenbach is a Texan and military historian who fought in World War II and the Korean War as an infantryman

Korea, he believes, set a pattern for the future. It shifted Communist emphasis from open confrontations to infiltration, subversion, and insurgency in the fringe areas

For our part, he urges, we must learn to accept small wars of policy in lieu of large crusades against communism. We must learn, too, that when we embark on one of these small brushfire wars, we ipso facto commit our national prestige. If we are unwilling to do this, we should get out of the business of keeping the peace for the world. —SRS

Submarine Hunt Parallels Moby Dick Chase

The Bedford Incident. By Mark Rascovich; Atheneum.

Is it possible that fears, anxieties and tension-filled efforts to win the cold war might trigger actions which could start a hot war?

Author Rascovich does more than pose the question, as many others have done. Through an action sea novel he sets up a hypothetical situation which he obviously fears might not always be so hypothetical.

The captain of a modern American destroyer leader, while tracking down a snooping Soviet submarine becomes, like Captain Ahab, fatally obsessed with victory over this "enemy" of the deep.

Rascovich carries his parallel with the Melville novel so far as to dub the Russian adversary with the code name "Moby Dick."

The entire crew of the Bedford ultimately is put on such warlike alert that there can be no doubt about the end.

Rascovich's trouble is that he doesn't develop his characters far enough to make their weaknesses and strengths seem plausible. As an action sea story "Bedford" is a delight. As a study of the psychoses of near-combat it falls woefully short.

Aging Jazzmen Defy All Longevity Rules

By BUCK WALMSLEY

There are a couple of aging jazzmen around today who are just refusing to sit back and sip their Geritol cocktails in a grandfatherly way. Duke Ellington, 64; Coleman Hawkins, 58; and Count Basie, 58; defy the unwritten rules of longevity in jazz.

Exhibit A is "Duke Ellington Meets Coleman Hawkins" (Impulse 26). Without Hawkins, this could have been recorded back in the late '30s or '40s Ray Nance, Johnny Hodges, Lawrence Brown and Harry Carney — all Ellington stalwarts--give the record an Ellingtonia feel The delight here is in the Duke as a composer. Five new tunes in addition to a few old ones such as "Mood Indigo" spark this package Hodges does his usual fine job on alto sax, Ray Nance puts his violin and cornet to the best use heard in years But it is Hawkins who soars out on "Self-Portrait of the Bean," "Wanderlust" and "You Dirty Dog"

In "Ellington & Coltrane" (Impulse 30) and "Money Jungle" (United Artists 15017), we hear Ellington the pianist and soloist, and it is the best improvisational work by the Duke available on record. Tenor saxman John Coltrane attacks Ellington melodies such as "Angelica," "My Little Brown Book" and "In a Sentimental Mood" in straight-away fashion with astonishingly beautiful results, particularly when backed by his own rhythm section with Elvin Jones on drums rather than Duke's men

The album, "Money Jungle," is a trio date with Max Roach on drums and Charlie Mingusoh It is interesting — or better, exciting — to hear the duel that takes place between the Duke and Mingus, a fantastically inventive musician himself, on this record Mingus picks up phrases Ellington plays on piano and hurls them right back again in sort of dogfight style And then there is "Solitude" After all the times that he has played this tune it's a wonder that Duke can find aything new to add, but he does and the result is beautiful

A more satisfying record for Hawkins can be found in "Bluesy Burrell" (Moodsville 29) largely because of more sympathetic backing by Kenny Burrell on guitar and Tommy Flanagan on piano. This is a very relaxed set of tunes. Hawkins makes beautiful statements on "I Thought About You" and "Montono Blues." Burrell has "Out of This World" and "No More" pretty much to himself and establishes the fact that he is about the best in the business.

Six Records Tumble At 38th Kansas Relays

Lawrence, Kan. (AP) — Fred Hansen of Rice pole vaulted 16 feet, ¾ inch for a meet record, little Tom O'Hara's 4-minute, 6.6-second anchor mile led Chicago Loyola to a distance medley record and 4 other meet marks were smashed at the 38th Kansas Relays Saturday.

Hansen cleared the record height on his 3rd and final attempt after both he and Texas Southern's Gerald Pratt had vaulted 15-9, breaking Hansen's year old meet record of 15-6¼. Hansen, who cleared 16-1 at the Texas Relays, didn't try for a higher mark here.

His record vault came in semi-darkness nearly two hours after the rest of the meet ended.

It was a day of surprises. Missouri's Robin Lingle won the Glenn Cunningham Mile in 4:04.8, only 1.7 seconds off the meet record.

O'Hara wiped out a 40-yard deficit and blocked Texas Southern's bid for another sweep of the 6-college baton events. A dropped baton later cost Southern the one-half mile relay, but the Tigers won 4 other baton races, two in meet record time.

The Houston school now has won 25 of 29 baton races at the Texas, Kansas and Drake Relays over two seasons.

Southern's meet marks were 40.7 in the 440 relay and 3:09.2 in the mile relay, helped by Ray Sadler's 46.5 anchor quarter.

Jim Miller, Colorado sophomore ran a remarkable 46-flat anchor quarter as the Buffs took the university mile relay in 3:10.1. Miller also anchored the winning one-half mile team at 1:25, anchored the third place 440 team, won the 400-meter hurdles in 52.6, and was second by a whisker to Rex Wilson of Texas in the high hurdles.

Ed Red of Rice cracked the javelin record with 256 feet 1½ inches. Texas Christian's Jackie Upton and Colorado's Leander Durley both snapped the 14-year-old high jump mark by clearing 6-8¾, but Upton was given the Gold Medal for fewer misses.

Loyola's time of 9:54.2 wiped out the oldest meet record in the books, the 10:06.9 by North Texas State in 1939.

Kansas got a sizzling 1:49.2 anchor carry from Kirk Hagen and won the university 2-mile relay in 7:28.4, best time in the nation in the NCAA's latest outdoor season rating. Hagen beat Greg Pelster of Missouri who ran 1:50.

Nate Adams of Purdue was a double winner, taking the 100-yard dash in :9.6 and a special 100-meter event in :10.3.

Drake Relays Will Feature Mile Duel

Rematch of Burleson, Camien; Sayers, Knaub in Century Battle

Des Moines, Iowa (AP)—A rematch of two of the nation's swiftest runners should lift the label of mediocrity which has been pinned on the mile run in the Drake Relays.

A clocking of less than 4 minutes is hoped for when former Oregon ace Dyrol Burleson takes on upstart John Camien of Emporia, Kan., State in a special invitational mile in the 54th staging of the track and field classic Friday and Saturday.

The mile rarely has been a feature event at the relays, and the all-time record is a modest 4:06.7 set by Burleson in 1959. Since then Burleson has often broken the 4-minute barrier, but he was upset in the Texas Relays two weeks ago by Camien, a sophomore at Emporia State.

Camien was timed in 4:02.6, with Burleson clocked in 4:02.9. Relays officials are hoping for good weather and a fast track to help the mile rivals to a Drake record.

A star-studded field also will battle in the 100-yard dash, always a favorite of Drake Relays fans.

Roger Sayers of Omaha, Ray Knaub of Nebraska, Bill Kemp of Baylor, Dennis Richardson of Abilene Christian, Billy Foster of Southern Methodist, Nate Adams of Purdue and Trenton Jackson of Illinois head the field.

All have hurried through the century in 9.5 seconds or less. Competition might be stiff enough to push the winner to a performance faster than the Drake record of 9.4 seconds.

A 16-foot pole vault also is a strong possibility, with defending champion Fred Hansen of Rice and lefty Gerald Pratt of Texas Southern headlining the entries.

Hansen, who won the event with a vault of 15 feet 3½ inches a year ago, has cleared 16-1 this spring. Pratt has vaulted 16-0½.

Pratt is one of the many fine athletes from Texas Southern who are again expected to dominate the college division. Last year the fleet Texas Southern runners set college division records in the distance medley and sprint medley relays, and also won the two-mile and mile relays.

In addition to the mile and pole vault, records may topple in the university two-mile, four-mile, mile and distance medley relays and in the discus, shot put and javelin.

Ed Red of Rice, defending champion in the javelin, made a toss of 260 feet 7 inches a week ago. That is seven feet more than the Drake record.

Others who will defend individual titles are Bill Miller of McMurry College in the broad jump; Colin Ridgway of Lamar Tech in the high jump, and Luther Brown of Lincoln in the hop-step-jump.

Celtics Go For Record 5 Straight

Boston (AP) — Boston can become the first team in pro basketball history to win 5 straight playoff championships by beating the Los Angeles Lakers tonight. Coach Red Auerbach says his Celtics will do just that with a combination of "hustle and Russell."

Los Angeles Coach Fred Schaus concedes nothing about the game except that "this is it." By Edging the Lakers 100-105 Friday night, the Celtics took a 3-1 lead in the best-of-7 NBA title series.

Remarkable Bill Russell, Celtics pivotman who controlled the boards Friday night, and hot-shooting Tommy Heinsohn are the players to whom the Lakers must find better defensive answers if their playoff lives are to be extended.

Southpaw Leads by 3 At Houston

Houston (AP) — Slender Bob Charles, the New Zealand left-hander, used a hot putter Saturday for his second straight 66 and a record 54-hole 199 to take a 3-stroke lead over Jack Nicklaus in the 3rd round of the $50,000 Houston Golf Classic.

The 11-under-par 199 by the national left-hander champion was the lowest 54-hole total in the 17-year history of the classic and also was the lowest scored on a PGA tournament this year.

Charles started the round with a one-stroke lead over Nicklaus and amateur Kermit Zarley, lost it momentarily on the front 9 but regained it on the 9th hole and then birdied 3 of the last 6 holes.

Nicklaus, meanwhile, was placing a 68 beside earlier rounds of 65 and 69 for a 202. Fred Hawkins, the El Paso pro who has not won a tournament since 1956, had a 66 to jump to 3rd place at 203.

The 54-hole leaders in the $50,000 Houston Golf Classic:

Omaha Wins, 7-3

Des Moines (AP) — Omaha University broke open a tight baseball game in the 9th inning and extended its winning streak to 9 straight by defeating Drake 7-3 Saturday.

The visitors touched Bulldog relief pitcher Denny Ford for 3 runs in the final inning and handed Drake it's 6th loss in 9 games.

Al Jackson Scores Win For New York

By United Press International

The amazing New York Mets won their second straight game after 8 consecutive losses Saturday by beating the Milwaukee Braves and Warren Spahn, 3-1.

Lefty Al Jackson, former Lincoln Chief, scattered 7 hits and also chipped in with a key hit for the Mets. The Braves scored their only run on a homer by Tommie Aaron.

The Mets presented Jackson with an early 2-0 lead against Spahn, the top southpaw pitcher in National League history. They scored once in the first on singles by Ron Hunt, Frank Thomas and Gil Hodges, then went ahead 2-0 in the second on a homer by Norm Sherry.

In the 7th, the Mets scored their insurance run when Al Moran singled and Jackson, after first fouling off an attempted bunt, looped a hit-run single over the Milwaukee infield. Moran went to 3rd on the hit and scored on Jim Hickman's single up the middle.

Bob Friend of the Pittsburgh Pirates allowed only 4 hits in subduing the Cincinnati Reds, 4-2. The Pirates broke a 2-2 tie with two runs in the 7th inning. One run scored on a sacrifice fly and the other came on a clutch single by Bill Virdon. Vada Pinson homered for the Reds.

Roy Sievers collected a triple, a double and a single in sparking the Philadelphia Phillies to a 6-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. Reliever Jack Baldschun held the Cards hitless for 4 innings to preserve the victory for rookie southpaw Marcellino Lopez.

The Chicago Cubs handed Billy Pierce his first loss at San Francisco's Candlestick Park by blanking the Giants, 4-0. Pierce, who had won 14 straight games at Candlestick gave up 5 hits and all of Chicago's runs before being chased in the 5th inning.

Bob Buhl limited the Giants to a pair of singles but needed relief help from Lindy McDaniel in the 9th inning when he developed a sore shoulder. Buhl highlighted his performance by twice striking out Willie Mays and Willie McCovey.

Catcher John Bateman, who started his first major league game, celebrated with a single and a double that drove in two runs as the Houston Colts downed the Los Angeles Dodgers, 9-6. Five of Houston's runs were unearned, partly as a result of two errors by Maury Wills, who finished the game with 3 miscues.

Mejias Drives in Winning Runs

Bosox End Marathon in 15; Three Runs Top Detroit, 4-3

By United Press International

The Boston Red Sox fought back with 3 runs in the last of the 15th inning Saturday to score a 4-3 marathon victory over the Detroit Tigers.

The Red Sox rally, which came with two out, wiped out a two-run Tiger lead gained in the top half of the inning which broke a 1-1 tie that had existed from the 6th inning.

The Boston rally, off Detroit reliefers Dick Egan and Bob Dustal, came on singles by Frank Malzone, pinch-hitter Billy Gardner, Chuck Schilling, who drove in one run, and Roman Mejias, who drove in the tying and winning scores.

In the top of the inning, Bill Burton's bases-loaded single with two out following a Gus Triandos double and two walks produced the two Tiger runs.

The victory went to Boston reliefer Dick Radatz, who had taken over in the 9th inning. The loss was charged to Tiger reliefer Dustal. Detroit starter Jim Bunning went the first 12 innings, giving up one run on 7 hits, walking only two and striking out 10.

Dave Nicholson drove in 5 runs with a grand slam homer and a triple in powering the Chicago White Sox to a 10-7 victory over the Minnesota Twins. Bob Allison homered for the Twins, who collected 11 hits but committed 5 errors.

The Baltimore Orioles downed the Cleveland Indians, 8-1, behind the pitching of rookie Dave McNally, who scattered 7 hits, struck out 9 and issued only two walks. Luis Aparicio drove in 3 runs with a pair of singles and stole two bases and Al Smith added 3 singles to pace the Orioles' attack.

The Washington Senators, behind the 5-hit pitching of Dave Stenhouse, defeated the world champion New York Yankees, 7-1, and the Los Angeles Angels banged out 13 hits en route to a 7-4 victory that knocked the Kansas City A's out of first place in night action.

Lee Thomas provided the Angels fireworks with two singles, a double and a triple and Dean Chance, with stout relief from Julio Navarro, handled the Angels pitching.

Player-Palmer Golf Exhibition Scheduled July 30 at HCC

Gary Player

A golf exhibition by professionals Arnold Palmer and Gary Player in Lincoln July 30 is the first of many top-notch sports attractions to the Capital City, sponsoring Coffee Club Charities, Inc., hopefully announced Saturday.

The non-profit group said contracts have been signed for the appearance of the world's top-ranking pros at Hillcrest Country Club for an 18-hole exhibition match and a special demonstration of golf shots.

Proceeds will go to the Lincoln Children's Zoo fund.

While outlining details of the golf match, officials of Coffee Club Charities indicated that future events, involving other sports, are anticipated.

"If someone else doesn't get pro football in 1964, we'll try our best," said president Robert L. VanDervoort. He and the other 9 members of the group are all from Lincoln.

"We think we have a great attraction for Lincoln," VanDervoort said of the Player-Palmer engagement.

He stressed that the group felt they had a good cause (Children's Zoo) as well and indicated that future promotions would also be channeled towards such charity.

The Lincoln appearance will be "one of the very few exhibitions Palmer and Player will make this year," according to Russell W. Meyer Jr., of Cleveland, Ohio, legal counsel for Palmer-Player Productions, Inc.

They will probably come to the Capital City after participating in the Western Open in Chicago, July 25-28.

Player recently finished 5th in the Masters Tourney at Augusta, Ga. Palmer, who set a record $80,000 in earnings last year, was 10th, 5 strokes back of winner Jack Nicklaus.

Their fee for the exhibition, which will start early in the afternoon, is $6,000.

Tickets will go on sale June 1 in Lincoln and 14 other cities, according to the Sponsors. A limit of 4,000 tickets has been set.

Sponsors set the limit to insure that all spectators would have a chance to watch the two-some.

Tickets will be sold in Omaha, Fremont, Norfolk, Columbus, Grand Island, Kearney, North Platte, Hastings, Fairbury, Beatrice, Bellevue, Nebraska City, Falls City, and Council Bluffs, Ia., in addition to Lincoln, the sponsors announced.

Other members of the Coffee Club group are Jack Jensen, vice-president; Perry Miller, treasurer; Robert C. Guenzel, secretary; Tom Pansing, Harold Taylor, Stanly Portsche, Bill Beckman, Don Dixon, and John Binning, members of the board of directors. All are from Lincoln.

Wood Memorial Victory to No Robbery

New York (AP) — The Greentree Stable's unbeaten Kentucky Derby candidate, No Robbery, took command at the start and swinging wide entering the home stretch galloped to a 2½-length victory in the $90,600 Wood Memorial Saturday at Aqueduct.

A crowd of 58,064, the largest turnout of the New York season, backed the speedy bay son of Swaps-Bimlette by Bimelech down to odds-on favoritism and they weren't disappointed.

No Robbery stood off a late challenge by Patrice Jacobs' Bonjour and ran the 1⅛ miles in 1 minute, 49 1-5 seconds. This was the fastest time since the Wood was transferred from old Jamaica to Aqueduct in 1960.

Last year, Admiral's Voyage won in 1:45 4-5.

George D. Widener's Crewman, considered the better half of his two-horse entry, proved a bitter disappointment as he finished 9th in the field of 10 3-year-olds.

His stablemate, Top Gallant, came up from last place and gained 3rd place, 2¼ lengths behind Bonjour. The Widener entry was second choice at 5-2 and Bonjour was 3rd choice at 6-1.

The first 3 all are eligible for the $125,000-added Derby at Louisville May 4.

John Hay Whitney, New York Herald Tribune publisher who owns Greentree Stables with his sister, Mrs. Charles S. Payson, and trainer John Gaver said No Robbery definitely will go to the Derby to challenge the two big favorites, Candy Spots and Never Bend.

"We plan to ship him to Louisville sometime during the week," said Gaver. Greentree also has another Derby candidate named, Outing Class, who left New York Saturday to compete in the Blue Grass Stakes Thursday at Keeneland.

Hirsch Jacobs, who trains Bonjour for his daughter, said, "He earned his way to the Derby. If he cools out all right, we'll ship down in mid-week and probably go in the Derby Trial on Tuesday before the Derby."

Sky Wonder was 4th, followed by Bright-Elm Stable's Rockey Ford, Wheatley Stable's Bold Commander, W. G. Helis Jr.'s Cool Prince, Ogden Phipps' Royal Ascot, Crewman and Hobeau Farm's Garbeau.

They all carried 126 pounds.

The winner paid $3.60, $3 and $2.10. Bonjour returned $5.10 and 2.70 and Top Gallant $2.30 to show.

Rotz said No Robbery is "a bit green but he can run. This is the first time he has been around two turns."

Owner Retires Jaipur, Winner of $618,926

Ankle Injury Puts 3-Year-Old Champion in 1962 on The Shelf

Jaipur, who won the Belmont by a nose over Admiral's Voyage, won the Travers Stakes at Saratoga in one of the great races of modern times. He ran head and head with Ridan for the entire 1¼ miles to win that one by a nose.

In 1961 Jaipur won the Hopeful, Flash and Cowdin Stakes. Last year he also won the Jersey Derby at Garden State, the Gotham and Withers at Aqueduct, and the Choice Stakes at Monmouth Park.

"I have no definite plans for his future at present," said Widener. "The only definite thing right now is that he is finished racing."

Trainer Bert Mulholland said there were no broken bones "but it would have meant stopping his training for a long time and then starting all over."

Decidedly Captures Ben Ali

Lexington, Ky. (AP)—El Peco Ranch's Decidedly, last year's Kentucky Derby winner, won the $11,075 Ben Ali Handicap at Keeneland in track record time Saturday.

Carrying 121 pounds with jockey Jimmy Nichols, Decidedly covered the one and 1/16 miles in 1 minute, 41 2/5 seconds, one-fifth second faster than the record set last Saturday by Times Roman.

Times Roman, owned by Fourth Estate Stable, finished 3rd behind Gun Glory Saturday but was placed second after the stewards ruled Gun Glory bore out on the stretch turn and again at the finish. Gun Glory was dropped back to 3rd.

Nichols took Decidedly, a 4-year-old son of Determine, to the middle of the track at the stretch turn after trailing in the early going, easily passed the front runners, and was 5½ lengths on top at the finish.

Gun Glory finished a nose ahead of Times Roman, with Loyal Son nine more lengths back in the 4-horse field.

The winner returned $5.80 and $2.20. There was no show betting. Times Roman, the favorite, paid $2.40.

Longshot Wins Big Prep Race

San Mateo, Calif. (AP) — On My Honor, a longshot eligible for the Kentucky Derby, rallied from 26 lengths off the pace Saturday to capture the California Derby over the 1⅛-mile route at Bay Meadows.

With Paul Frey riding and carrying 114 pounds, On My Honor staged a tremendous stretch drive over a sloppy, wet track to win the $42,900 race in 1 minute, 54 seconds.

Lak Nak, one of the 6 in this 9-horse field not eligible for the Kentucky Derby, took second three-quarters of a length behind in the feature for 3-year-olds.

Beekeeper, the George Pope colt who went off the favorite at 2-to-1 odds, finished 8th, beating only one horse despite the importation of Bill Hartack to do the riding.

On My Honor was 26 lengths out on the back stretch and ran only 7th turning for home before turning on his blazing finish in the mud.

The winner had gone off at 9-to-1 odds and returned $21 for a $2 win ticket.

On My Honor returned $9.60 to place and $5.60 to show. Lak Nak with Bud Giacomelli riding, returned $18.20 and $7.60, while Olypiad King, with James Ruggeri aboard, paid $4.00.

Van Berg's Kurrii San Cops Handicap

Chicago (AP) — Kurii San, a 12-1 shot owned by Marion H. Van Berg of Columbus, Neb., galloped to a 1½ length victory Saturday in the $15,000 Spring Handicap at Sportsman's Park.

A record crowd of 23,461 saw Kurii San lead Wa-Wa Cy and Gay Revoke to the wire in the one-mile race.

Wa-Wa Cy, 8-5 favorite, shared high weight of 121 pounds with Hoop Bound, who was held at 2-1. Hoop Bound finished 6th in the field of 8.

Winning his first race in 4 starts this season, Kurii San paid $26.80, $8.60 and $4.60. He earned $9,750 and with jockey Jack Fieselman aboard was timed in 1 minute 40 1-5 seconds over a good track. Wa Wa Cy paid $3.80 and $2.80 and Gay Revoke returned $3.80 to show.

Iowa State Wins 1st Big 8 Game

Stillwater, Okla. (AP)—Iowa State clipped 3 Oklahoma State hurlers for 19 hits and the Cyclones took their first Big 8 Conference baseball win of the season, 15-10.

Iowa State has a 1-8 conference record. The Cowboys are 3-6.

Iron Derby Stag Slated at LCC

The first Iron Derby Stag of the season at Lincoln Country Club is slated for Wednesday afternoon.

Club pro Bud Williamson said the stag will include golf events and a dinner, with members being allowed to bring a guest.

Participants may find their starting time by calling the golf shop at the Country Club, Williamson said.

Point Blank

By Don Bryant
Sunday Sports Columnist

Chances are South Dakota State football coach Ralph Ginn broke out in a cold sweat when the Jackrabbits arrived home from their baseball series with Nebraska.

Doug Peterson, who suffered a fractured hand trying to haul in Tom Ernst's grand-slam home run, is a star halfback on the Jacks' football team.

There were 4 SDS baseballers who'll be back in Lincoln next September to face Bob Devaney's Huskers in their 1963 debut at Memorial Stadium.

Top Backs

Peterson and Rasmussen are the Jacks' top halfbacks, while Dwyer is a reserve halfback and Farrand is the No. 1 center candidate.

While South Dakota State doesn't approach Big 8 or Big 10 caliber, the Jackrabbits figure to be a much tougher test than South Dakota (53-0) did a year ago in Devaney's debut.

As one SDS baseballer put it, "We expect to have a pretty fine football team again next fall—and we're not planning on playing dead."

Cagers, Too

Not only do they draw rave notices in football and baseball, both were heavy contributors to the success achieved by SDS's 1962-63 basketball team which roared through to capture the NCAA small-college division cage championship.

Nebraska Wesleyan players, who were knocked out of a repeat trip to Evansville, will supply substantiating evidence.

The two halfback stickouts are identical in size, not heavy, but solid 6-1, 170-pounders who possess fine speed, according to baseball teammates.

"They can fly pretty good," one Jack told me.

While South Dakota U., was in the depths of a football collapse last year, South Dakota State is familiar with success on the gridiron.

In 1961 the Jacks had an 8-2 record and last fall they kept the fires burning with another winner.

Attendance, Betting Marks Set At Fonner

The record crowd saw one of the smallest daily doubles of the racing season here, but they also saw 2 large payoffs.

The daily double of Mr. Fidelity in the first and Blue Okie in the second returned bettors only $15.40.

The biggest payoff of the afternoon came in the 5th race with Khalplex paying $42.60 to win. Blue Rave returned $33.40 for a win ticket in the 3rd race with Art Anderson aboard.

Jockey Tom Osment started and ended the day on a winner. Osment was up on Mr. Fidelity in the first race and came back aboard Frontier Boy to win the 9th race.

NU Golfers Win, Lose, And Draw

Manhattan, Kan. — Nebraska, after dropping all 3 golf matches Friday in a quadrangular golf match at Lawrence, rebounded Saturday afternoon to down Kansas and tie the host club K-State before falling to powerful Oklahoma.

The second leg of the Big 8 match was played at the par 70 Manhattan Country Club. The Cornhusker quintet defeated Kansas, 10-5, and tied K-State, 7½-7½. Oklahoma however, whitewashed Nebraska for the second time in two days, winning, 15-0.

Friday Nebraska lost to K-State, 8-7, and Kansas, 14½-½; Oklahoma captured top honors in the golf match, downing each of the other schools in dual competition.

Other scores:

OKLAHOMA — Bob Smith, 72; Gary Jarman, 71; Gary Terry, 71; Jim Autry, 77; Nottingham, 70.

KANSAS—John Hanna, 80; Paul Carlson, 73, Reid Holbrook, 77; Ron Seczygiel, 80, Frank Kirk, 72.

KANSAS STATE—Jim Colbert, 75; Larry Lawman, 71; Jerry Shaw, 80; Bill Boucher, 75; Rod Achey, 80.

The Oklahoma Sooners methodically swept the 3-game series with Nebraska Saturday by coasting to a 7-1 victory at the NU diamond.

The Sooners came into the series tied with Colorado for the Big Eight lead. Now, 9-0, Oklahoma is in sole possession of first.

In rather 'ho-hum' fashion, OU went to work in the second inning to post all the runs they needed. They added one in the 5th and 3 more in the 7th for good measure.

After the second frame, the Sooners sat back and watched the hapless Nebraska batsman flounder at the plate.

OU's Doyle Tunnell easily stifled the NU bats as the Huskers managed 4 hits—and only the two by Don Schindel were really clean.

Tunnell set the Huskers down in order on 5 occasions. He struck out 3 and didn't issue a walk as he masterfully baffled the Huskers. He is now 2-2 for the year.

Jan Wall, lanky Husker hurler, again suffered the fate of NU pitchers of late. Wall pitched a creditable ball game. Although he gave up 9 hits, he struck out 11 dumbfounded Sooners while walking 3 in 7 innings.

His replacement, relief specialist George Landgren was equally successful, blanking the Sooners the final two frames while fanning two.

However, lack of hitting support led to NU's demise.

Schindel paced the attack with two slashing singles. Dave May added a scratch single and Ernie Bonistall lined a shot down the 3rd base line, where OU's Buzz McDonald could only get half a glove on it. It went for a double.

The Huskers managed their 3rd run of the 3-game series when Ernst doubled and Schindel singled him home in the 5th inning. Other than that the Huskers' hitting attack was nil.

Again stubby Eddy Peach led OU's well-balanced hitting attack. Peach banged two singles and drove in a run.

OU started its conquest in the second when they put together two hits, a walk, an error, a wild pitch and a passed ball for 3 tallies.

In the 7th, Jann Christian tripled to right-center and when the relay-throw got by the 3rd baseman, Christian romped home. A walk and two singles produced the other two scores.

Nebraska is now 3-6 in conference play and 6-9 over-all. Next weekend the Huskers host Iowa State in a 3-game set.

From the Dugout: It was a perfect baseball afternoon. The wind had subsided from Friday's icy gusts and the sun shone brilliantly ... Again OU shortstop Christian played like a pro. He made several miraculous plays. He handled 5 balls without a boot ... NU boss Tony Sharpe won't talk about his team's hitting. "That's all the boys are thinking about now and it's starting to affect their play elsewhere."

Missouri Wins 2 From Colorado

Columbia, Mo., (AP)—The Missouri Tigers clipped Colorado 7-1 and 9-0 Saturday to sweep a 3-game Big 8 baseball series over the Buffaloes, who were unbeaten when they came to Columbia.

Colorado's only run of the day was walked in by Keith Weber, who took the mound with two men on in relief of Larry Bohannon in the 5th inning.

Missouri is in second place at 8-1, and Colorado is 3rd at 6-3.

LA Having More Trouble With 3 D's Than 3 R's

New York (AP)—It was inevitable that the discontent, dissatisfaction and dissension among the Los Angeles Dodgers would come to light.

Insiders have known for some time that these 3 D's contributed as much to the Dodgers' collapse last year as did the loss of Sandy Koufax in mid-season and the failure of the team to score any runs in the last 21 innings of the regular season.

The disclosure by general manager Buzzie Bavasi early this week that he had put down a player uprising emphasized what those close to the team already knew—that the club is split in half in its loyalty to manager Walter Alston.

The younger players swear by their manager but a faction which includes a number of veterans, believes coach Leo Durocher should be the manager.

They are convinced the Dodgers would have won the pennant last year with Durocher at the helm.

These silently rebellious players have the highest admiration for Alston as a man but have little respect for his ability as a manager despite his record of 3 pennants and two world championships in 9 years.

Walter Alston

Leo Durocher

In acknowledging for the first time the discord on the club, Bavasi revealed it was Durocher who tipped him off to what was going on. The general manager completely exonerated Durocher from fomenting the dissension.

Bavasi, however, has been aware for some time of the strained relationship between Alston and some of the players and also between Alston and Durocher. That could have been behind his denouncement of Durocher last winter when he accused the Dodger coach and former manager of being disloyal to Alston. Bavasi also declared there no longer was room on the club for both Durocher and Alston.

Bavasi had no serious intention of firing Durocher at that time but he felt Alston, for whom he always been a strong defender, was being made the scapegoat for the Dodger collapse. He knew, too, that Dodger owner Walter O'Malley was a strong admirer of Durocher's managerial ability.

Durocher had reason to believe he might succeed Alston this year following a secret meeting among O'Malley, Alston, the coaches and then team captain Duke Snider in St. Louis 10 days before the end of the 1962 season.

O'Malley, who never before had interfered with Bavasi's and Alston's handling of the team, called the meeting because of his alarm over the steadily shrinking Dodger lead.

Mincing no words, O'Malley charged Alston with being too easy on the players and urged the manager to adopt a get-tough policy.

"We're going to blow the pennant unless you light a fire under them," O'Malley reportedly warned Alston.

Alston, quietly but firmly, disagreed.

"The kids are under enough pressure as it is," he said. "They need encouragement, not a tongue lashing. They feel badly enough as it is. I don't believe we ought to do anything to aggravate them. Most of them are just kids and they might blow sky high."

According to the informant, O'Malley became enraged.

"Aggravate them," he repeated. "These are not high school kids; they're professionals earning good money. I want you to ride herd on them. And if you don't want to take the responsibility, you can put the blame on me."

Alston insisted his way was the best and O'Malley finally capitulated, saying, "Okay, but if we blow the pennant, some heads will roll."

The Dodgers did lose the pennant but no heads rolled. Alston was re-appointed manager and Durocher as coach with an admonition that one more open clash with Alston would mean his job.

While just one blowup between Durocher and Alston was made public last year, actually there were several. At one point near the end of the season Alston accused Durocher of countermanding his hit-and-run signs to the hitters. He stripped the coach of any authority he might have had by having Greg Mulleavy relay the hit-and take signs to the hitters.

Relations between Alston and Durocher became so strained that the coach moved his locker from the manager's private clubhouse enclosure. Durocher also switched his seat from next to that of Alston on the team bus and sat in the rear.

The conclusion is reached that the Dodgers must get off to a fast start this season. Both Bavasi and O'Malley are convinced the personnel is there to win the pennant. Anything less could cost Alston his job.

Durocher?

By mid-season, he could be manager of the Dodgers or be looking for another job.

W Club Invitational in Track, Golf, Tennis Scheduled at NWU Tuesday

A 3-sport spring extravaganza will be staged Tuesday at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

The annual "W" Club Invitational features participation in track and field, tennis and golf.

Six colleges will participate with no limit on the number of entries.

Entering the meet are Dana, Doane, Concordia, Hastings, Midland and Nebraska Wesleyan.

Golfers compete at Pioneers Park Course at 1 p.m.

Track and field men do battle in preliminaries at 3:30 p.m., with the finals at 6 p.m. Track and field events will be held at Wesleyan's O. N. Magee Stadium track.

Preliminaries Tuesday afternoon will be held in the 100-yard dash, 120-yard high hurdles, 220-yard dash and 220-yard low hurdles.

Two record holders return for this year's meet.

One is Wesleyan's sophomore high jumper, Jim Booher. The Ashland product cleared 6-4 in last year's meet.

The other record holder is Clinton Skinner, Doane's great sprinter, who has a record :09.6 100-yard dash and :21.2 220-yard dash to his credit. Both came in 1961.

However, Sinner is a doubtful performer because of a severe muscle pull suffered 3 weeks ago.

Scoring in Tuesday's track and field meet will be 5, 3, 1 in the relays and 5, 4, 3, 2, 1 in individual events.

Preliminaries

3:30 p.m.—100 yard dash
3:40 p.m.—120 yard high hurdles
4:00 p.m.—220 yard dash

Thinclads Will Step Up Pace

High school track faces its heaviest week.

The annual Kearney State item on the prep agenda. Also on tap are 11 conference meets and 5 other invitationals.

The first half of the Kearney meet, moved up a day to Thursday; the Mid-East Conference championships in Lincoln; and Dutch White Relays at Omaha Tech will keep most of the Class A schools busy.

Class A and B teams go at Kearney Thursday. The small schools will pour into the stadium for an all-day session Saturday.

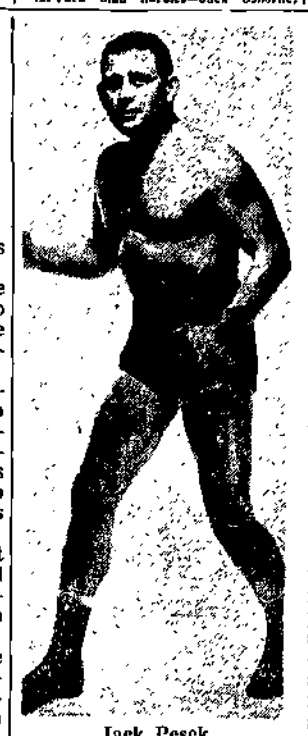
Kearney and North Platte are the top teams in the limited Class A field. Gothenburg should rate high in an effort to repeat as B. champion.

The Mid-East meet will be staged at Nebraska Wesleyan with Hastings and Fairbury expected to battle for team honors. Other teams are Beatrice, Lincoln Southeast, and Lincoln Northeast.

Beatrice and Northeast will begin the week with a Monday dual at NE.

The Dutch White Relays will keep the Omaha schools busy. Lincoln High is among the out-of-town entries.

Monday — Beatrice at Northeast, 2 p.m.; Sutton and Harvard at Henderson.
Tuesday — Cornhassel at Wayne State, Platte Valley at David City, Northeast Nebraska at Creighton, Southeast at Nebraska City, Eastern Nebraska at Freeman, Ak-Sar-Ben at Missouri Valley, O'Neill Invitational, Pioneer Conference at Hastings, Little Loup at Halsey, South Sioux City Invite.
Wednesday — Cloverleaf at Doane, Burwell Invitational.
Thursday — Kearney Invitational (Class A and B teams).
Friday — Chadron C. Club Invite.
Saturday — Kearney Invitational (Class C and D schools), Mid-East Conference at Nebraska Wesleyan, 10 a.m., North Platte Valley at Bayard, Dutch White Relays at Omaha Tech.



Jack Pesek

Jack Just Wants Fair Ring Shot

"All I want is a fair shot at the guy!"

That's the way Jack Pesek looks at his Tuesday night pro rassling match with Waldo Von Erich, the younger brother — and equally as nasty — of the arrogant Hun, Fritz.

Pesek demanded a Pershing Auditorium rematch after losing a highly questionable decision to Von Erich last month.

"Everyone in the place but the referee saw him use the ropes with his feet to apply pinning pressure on me," Pesek fumed. "I want that guy —and badly. Don't misunderstand, I'm not criticizing the referee. He called it as he saw it, I know. But since it obviously was an illegal pin, I deserve a second shot at Von Erich."

After Referee Tom Novak got skulled and hauled to the dressing room, Omahan Frankie Mancuso filled in and failed to note Von Erich's illegal tactic.

The Pesek-Von Erich main event will highlight a 4-match show at Pershing Tuesday, starting at 8:30 p.m.

Spicing the card will be a gals' match between Annette Palmer and Jessica Rogers.

Doug Gilbert and Duke Hoffman are booked in the semifinal spot, while Bobby Managoff and Guy Mitchell will tangle in the one-fall opener.

LNE Tops O. South

Omaha — Lincoln Northeast used a 6-hitter by Jerry Motz and gathered 11 hits to take a 7-4 victory over Omaha South here Saturday afternoon.

Greg Kemist's triple in the second with Stan Grell on first with a single was the big blow in the Rockets' attack.

The win gives Northeast a 2-1 mark for the season with Southeast providing the next opposition in a Wednesday encounter at the Elks Field.

Wymore Sprinter Standout But Auburn Grabs Loop Championship

ROW THEY FINISHED

Auburn	82	Syracuse	28
Tecumseh	53	Pawnee City	25
Wymore	42	Humboldt	10

Auburn — Every running event Wymore's Rick Wood tried in the Southeast Border Conference championships turned into a record.

The swift Zephyr lowered his own records in the 100 and 220-yard dashes to :10.3 and 22.8 then anchored the winning mile relay team to a 3rd mark of 3:43.5. He was 3rd in the broad jump.

Despite the sparkling efforts of the defending state Class C 220 champ, Auburn rolled to the team title in the 6-team loop. Tecumseh beat Wymore out for second place.

IN THE FIELD

Shot — Dave Johannes, Wymore, 41-10; high jump — Gary Warings, Tecumseh, 5-4½; pole vault — Rich Martin, Tecumseh, 10-8; broad jump—Tom Formanack, Syracuse, 19-9½; discus — Ron King, Auburn, 127-8.

ON THE TRACK

Two-mile relay — Auburn, 9:19. Mile relay — Wymore, 3:43.5; (record); 880 relay — Auburn, 1:39.5.

Children's Zoo Big Winner

The city-wide Children's Zoo bowling tournament put $1,341 in the Junior Chamber of Commerce's zoo fund.

This figure was announced by Jim Ager, city Park Dept. superintendent. The proceeds will be used to fulfill the Jaycees' plans for contributions to the zoo. Their principal item is a locomotive.

Winners of the tourney were Guy Thompson and Sandy Hansmire.

In the most pins over average standings, Thompson led the men with a 175 score with Hansmire's 147 pacing the ladies.

The women's division was decided on the last night of the tourney. Hansmire was the women's winner of the daily prize for Friday's best score.

Ed Abbott, 143 pins over his average, was the top man Friday. He earned a tie for 4th in the final standings.

Thompson iced the men's championship with a booming 739 series earlier in the week.

Prizes will be awarded to the top 6 finishers in each division. They were:

Men—Guy Thompson, 175; Erwin Steyer, 157; Jim Crouse, 153; Carl Leising and Ed Abbott, 143; and Carl McKinney, 139.

Women—Sandy Hansmire, 147; Betty Plamondon, 142; Zula Klasek, 137; Barbara Grossnagle, 136; Bert Munson, 132; Arlene Jennings, 126.

York Wins Own Track Invite

York — York scored 97½ points to far outdistance other schools here in the York Invitational track meet.

Central City was second with 54, followed by Seward with 48½ and Geneva at 19.

Winners:

120 HH—K. Stachr, York, 16.4; 100—Welch, York, 10.5; mile—Perkins, Central City, 5:10.5; 180 LH — Kranz, York, 22.6; 440—Jensen, Central City, 54.4; 220— Welch, York, 24.5; 880—Thomson, Seward, 2:07.2; mile relay—Central City (Gerlach, Stanslay, Erickson, Jensen) 3:46.1; 880 relay—York (D. Stachr, Johnston, Kranz, Welch) 1:39.7; two-mile relay—Seward (Pavel, Rutledge, Westerberg, Jensen) 9:19.5.

Discus—Kroon, Seward, 133-8; broad jump—Welch, York and Zikmund, Central City, 18-2¾; pole vault—Harris, York, 10-0; high jump—K. Stachr, York, 5-7¼; shot put—Stickelman, York, 44-4½.

Change of Pace

by Del Black

The Question-Type Letter:

J. A. of Lincoln pens a note asking how many ex-Lincoln professional baseball players are now in the major leagues.

Twenty-four former Lincoln baseballers are currently in the big show.

Thirteen of these are American Leaguers and 11 are members of National League clubs.

Get There in Hurry

One surprising fact in counting Lincoln grads who made the climb to the majors is that all but two of them played in Lincoln during the 1955-1961 stretch.

The two exceptions are Lincoln's all-time favorites, pitcher Bobby Shantz and second baseman Nellie Fox. Shantz is with the St. Louis Cardinals and Fox is the captain of the Chicago White Sox.

This pair played for the Lincoln Athletics in 1948.

Pirates Lead

Sixteen Pittsburgh farmhands used Lincoln as a stepping stone to the majors. Only two of them—Pitcher Joe Gibbon and Catcher Elmo Plaskett—are now with the Pirates.

The others are scattered into both leagues. Pitchers Larry Foss, Alvin Jackson and Don Rowe and outfielder Joe Christopher are with the New York Mets.

Pitcher Jim Duffalo is with San Francisco, Pitcher Ed Bauta and second baseman Julian Javier are with St. Louis.

Howie Goss is roaming the outfield for Houston to round out the list of ex-Pirate farmhands in the National League.

In the American League we find Pitcher Dick Hall with Baltimore, hurler Dave Wickersham with Kansas City, Pitcher Bennie Daniels and shortstop Ken Hamlin with Washington, and first sacker Dick Stuart and pitcher Jack Lamabe with Boston.

Few Chisox Roam

Chicago White Sox farmhands who played in Lincoln have stayed close to the parent club.

Pitcher Dan Osinski is the relief ace of the Los Angeles Angels after brilliant duty in the Lincoln Chief's bullpen.

The Chisox traded him to Kansas City and the A's sent him to the Angels.

Now with the White Sox are 5 ex-Chisox affiliated Chiefs—pitcher Joel Horlen, catcher Jerry McNertney, first baseman Deacon Jones, shortstop Al Weiss and outfielder Mike Hershberger.

Russell's 4:33.2 Mile Top Scottsbluff Mark

Scottsbluff — Five meet records were broken here Saturday afternoon in the 44th annual running of the Western Nebraska Track and Field meet.

Allen Russell of Scottsbluff shattered the oldest meet record with a 4:33.2 mile, bettering the record of 4:39.7 set by Bayard's Lewis Chavez in 1933.

Other records:

—Mile relay by Scottsbluff with Bill Connors, Chuck Hohnstein, Gary Niebauer and Jack Gouch winning in 3:33.9, bettering the old record of 3:37.2 by Alliance in 1961.

—Two-mile relay by Torrington, Wyo., with Dwain Nelson, Bill Schleining, Steve Elliott and Willy Brown turning the distance in 8:45.2. Old record was 8:45.6 by Bridgeport in 1960.

—Mile medley with Sidney's Dave Sherrard, Jerry Swanson, Roland Schobert and Doug Adams timed in 3:46.2, 2.3 under the record set by Kimball in 1940.

—Shot put in group 3 schools on Buzz White's toss of 53-10 for Oshkosh. Old record was 49-4½ by Darrell Golth of Minatare in 1952.

GROUP I

Men's City Loop Softball Meeting Set for Tuesday

The 1963 Men's City League softball season will begin this Tuesday as interested representatives will get together for an organization meeting.

The season will officially open on May 13. The league is open to boys 16 years of age or older.

Tuesday's meeting will be held at the Muny Pool swimming building at 22nd and M and start at 7 p.m.

The league will be divided into 6 leagues. A tournament is scheduled at the close of the regular season.

All entry fees must be in the City Recreation office by noon, May 26.

Schoolboy athletics in Nebraska will stay on a multi-class basis indefinitely.

Many small schools have gotten a taste of state championship cake because of the Class A-B-C-D split and those that haven't at least like the look of next year's frosting.

They can't be blamed for wanting to share the prizes with the sprawling schools who would, year after year, clean up but for the 4 classes.

How else would a school the size of Utica fatten its activities till by $2,000 except with a successful team under the auspices of Class C?

Utica was a fine Class C team. Their chances in an area tourney that might have included Class A Columbus wouldn't even be problematic, however.

More Travel for a Chance

Little schools who would go for a one-class system are as scarce as mother whooping cranes who peck holes in their eggs.

For an example we look at the entry list for the Central Nebraska Invitational Track Meet at Hastings College and Doane College's Invitational, both held Friday.

The Hastings meet is a one-class affair — one of the few in the state. Doane splits its field into two classes (A-B and C-D).

Stars Do Okay

An attraction for Hastings is a small school with an outstanding individual like Dennis Thorell of Loomis. This fine hurdler will do well against all competition but most of his teammates didn't pass the first preliminary heat.

Even though the Hastings meet is run as one class, officials have eased the bite on the small fry by issuing team titles to the highest finisher in each class.

The 4-class system, the lifeline for athletic programs in many Nebraska schools, is here to stay.

Southeast Takes Victory in Golf

Beatrice—Lincoln Southeast, with Steve Bock shooting a 74 and Bob Lau coming in at 75, won a triangular golf meet over Beatrice and Fairbury.

The Knights tallied 230 points with runner-up Beatrice at 241 and Fairbury 261.

Summaries:

SOUTHEAST — Steve Bock, 38-36—74; Bob Lau, 37-38—75; Ron Richards, 39-42—81.
BEATRICE — Don Garton, 38-34—72; Wayne Riecker, 43-39—82; Ken Sebby, 41-46—87
FAIRBURY — Tom Roode, 43-39—82; Mike Backer, 47-37—84; Frank Rose, 48-47—95.

Southeast's reserves won a 242-265 dual victory over the Beatrice reserves.

Reserve summaries:

SOUTHEAST — Bill Fousell, 41-35—76; Greg Andrews, 37-40—77; Scott Mowbray, 41-48—89
BEATRICE — Kelly White, 42-43—85; Steve Windsor, 42-46—88; Ken Anderson, 49-52—92.

Knowledge Can Increase Enjoyment of Trout Fishing

By PETE CZURA

It takes all kinds of tricks to nab a veteran trout even after you have found their hiding places it's no snap to add them to your creel

If you have mastered fishing with a fly rod and have memorized how to tie a fly to a leader, how to choose between wet and dries, the question of where to fish arrives

The first thing you will learn about fishing for trout is the necessity for concealment of yourself

A fish's first instinct is safety He will leave his source of food if alarmed

Even if your fly is presented with the truest likeness of the real McCoy, it will do little good if the trout has scurried for cover

Trout have greater vision in quiet pools than in fast, tumbling waters

Keep low when you approach a stream and walk lightly, for heavy steps along the banks will send trout streaking away

If the trout are rising, dimpling the surface and sucking in insects, the answer of where to fish is solved

Simply fish to the rises and waste no time But if the fish are not rising, the angler is on his own

The fly has to be cast somewhere But where?

For one thing, currents carve deep holes and undercut banks Here's where trout like to lie most hours of the day

Beneath and behind a dead fall, trout are likely to lurk in the heat of midday Cast your fly upstream, in front of the log, and hold onto your hat if he decides to take your offering

Sticks and eddies below protruding rocks can be productive Current carries food close by, within a short dart by the agile trout

Channels between weed growth are good spots to dap a dry fly If a stream contains chubs or suckers, they'll be found here, too

The tail of a rapids — the lower end of fast water that enters a pool — is another prime area to flick a fly

For the fish it is a good feeding station, since the greatest volume of water is funneled through this narrow chute

Grassy banks, even with only a few inches of water below, shade good trout hangouts if the banks are not heavily traveled by fishermen.

A large pool formed by a low waterfall rates tops for dry fly fishing Casting upstream, dap your flies from the tail to the head Try wading to foot of falls and send short casts over the brink

Shallow rapids are another good spot, often overlooked Riffles may provide aeration for both fish and food in the warmth of summer. Pools offer a place of quiet and rest. Deep, undercut holes may provide protection

Catching a few trout will increase your confidence, and soon, perhaps, before the grasshoppers chirp in the meadows you will have begun to "read" the stream yourself

When you have such knowledge, and use it, trouting will have more meaning to you

Hit the holes and undercut banks for the wary trout

Archers swing into action

Prairie Bowmen Will Hold Archery Classes

The Prairie Bowmen field archery club will conduct its annual spring archery classes starting May 1 at the field range south of Lincoln on Highway 77

The classes will begin at 6 30 p m and will be held each Wednesday evening for 6 weeks All persons interested in signing up should contact the club's secretary Bob Ellis, as soon as possible and ask for a registration form

The classes will cover all phases of the sport of archery —field archery target archery and hunting with the bow and arrow The instructors will also touch on the proper methods of fletching arrows, making and repairing bow strings and archery tackle in general Special emphasis will be placed on safety

There will be classes for the beginner and for the advanced archer Classes will consist of men boys, women and girls

Archery tackle will be furnished by the club for those who do not have their own equipment All children under 16 years old must be accompanied by a parent or a sponsor

Hunters Must Police Themselves

"Gun toting" gangsters and owners of sporting fire arms are being thrown into the same pot

And each year more legislation to restrict the possession of firearms finds its way into the bill factories of Congress and state legislatures

The FBI, together with the state and municipal enforcement agencies, has been vigorously advocating for some years the registering of all firearms

Their contention is that it would reduce robbery, murder and general lawlessness

Ridiculous Reasoning

One law, which has proved how fallacious the reasoning of the FBI is is the notorious Sullivan Act in New York

Lawlessness has not decreased one whit in this region Yet, this very law deprives citizens of the right to bear arms but for criminals it's a perfect set up

Old American Tradition

Shooting, other than hunting for competition, has been a popular sport since days of the flintlock and is an American tradition — if that counts for anything

Thousands follow this form of recreation Men, women, and kids shoot clay pigeons in skeet and trap

But there are millions of others who are passionately opposed to guns, and these cry for a curb on firearm ownership

Look at Facts

But these same opponents should take a gander at what navee autos do in the way of property damage and loss of lives

Each fall some asinine reporters give out biased yarns about gun accidents and go so far as to include all heart attacks afield as hunting "casualties"

Mandatory Training Needed

Much as we dislike more laws, the only way we see to overcome the accident onus will be by a mandatory gun safety training before a hunting license is issued

Standards should be tough eyesight, mental attitudes, and physical fitness should be tested

This in itself would improve hunting ethics and the pleasure of those who qualified

During the 1961 Legislative session in Nebraska efforts were made by sportsmen to install a mandatory gun safety training program in this state but it failed to muster enough interest

The future of hunting may not survive if strong measures are not taken soon

High Average

When to Fish SOLSTICE TABLE

Warm winds have awakened the slumbering fish and this week's table looks like angling success on Nebraska waters will be spotty

Reports of good crappie catches from Harlan and Enders walleye from McConaughy and sauger from Gavin's Point Dam spillway should improve the picture later

This week's Solstice fishing table shows some lean times ahead for anglers

Sunday—good
Monday—good
Tuesday—fair
Wednesday—fair
Thursday—fair
Friday—fair
Saturday—good

Keep in mind you have fish deep the early part of the season as fish are not moving too much yet

Fishermen Are Needed

Fishermen are not taking advantage of the 3½ miles of river front offered by the Platte and Missouri at the Plattsmouth Waterfowl Management Area the Game Commission reports

Conservation officer Max Showalter said fishing there has been fair to good since the area opened nearly a week ago Largemouth bass and channel catfish are the two main species being taken

The bass are ranging from one half to 2¼ pounds each while a few catfish are weighing 1½ pounds The best baits for bass are artificial and live baits including minnows and night crawlers

Showalter said 375 fishermen were on hand opening day

Duck Nesting Already Noted

Pintails and mallards are beginning to nest already, waterfowl technicians of the Game Commission said

The first broods will hatch from mid-to late May Peak nesting activity will not occur until late May or early June

The Sandhills are the nesting habitat in the state Water conditions are generally good there at present However, the water situation in the rainwater basin area in south central Nebraska is dismal The good water over most of the area a month ago has largely disappeared Strong dry winds and no appreciable rainfall in more than a month have accounted for the present dry conditions

Scanty early reports from Canada reveal unfavorable water conditions there, too

Doane Easily Captures Quadrangular; NWU 2nd

How They Scored

Doane 92½	Hastings 20
NWU 62½	Seward Concordia 6

Crete — The track depth of Doane College gave the Tigers a whopping 92½ point total to easily win a quadrangular meet here Saturday

Trailing the speedy Doane runners were Nebraska Wesleyan with 62½ points, Hastings with 20 and Seward Concordia with 6

Doane won all 3 relays, and scored individual firsts in all but one track event

Wesleyan's Larry Ribble halted the whitewash by winning the two mile run

Dennis Darnell racked up a double win for Doane by skimming to victories in the 120 yard high hurdles and 220 yard lows

Speed merchant Clinton Skinner of Doane and NWU's Bill Jones raced to a 10 1 tie in the century

Wesleyan showed its prowess in the field events The Plainsmen won 5 of 6

The most sparkling performance of the day was turned in by the pole vaulters

Mike Knaub of Wesleyan soared 13 7½ to win the event. Terry Discoe pressed him with a 13 6 vault

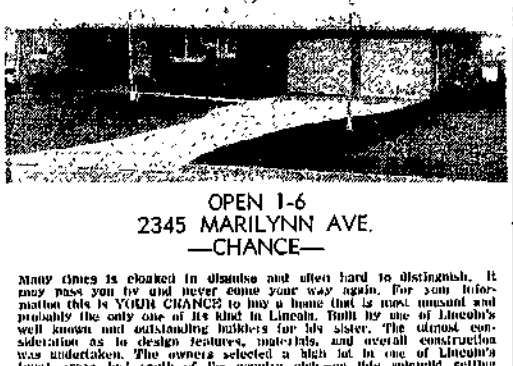
THE PORTSCHE CO
Presents



OPEN 1-6
—CHANCE—

Many times is cloaked in disguise and often hard to distinguish. It may pass you by and never come your way again. For your information this is YOUR CHANCE to buy a home that is most unusual and probably the only one of its kind in Lincoln. Built by one of Lincoln's well known and outstanding builders for his sister. The utmost consideration as to design features, materials, and overall construction was undertaken. The owners selected a high lot in one of Lincoln's finest areas just south of the country club—on this splendid setting built this lovely home—a 3 bedroom brick. Fully carpeted and draped. A beautiful kitchen with built-ins, a huge fire place upstairs and double fireplace down. The basement is well planned with excellent walkout entrance. Seasons are enjoyed in comfort for this house has Chrysler air conditioning and heating. This system was installed with it's design to co-ordinate the house design—not an after thought as in many cases. Showing even more detail planning is the built in sprinkler system: to water the lawn is certainly a pleasure. Drive by this splendid house today. When you see this red brick ranch type home with its double attached garage—you'll say "THIS IS OUR CHANCE".

HOUSES OF QUALITY BY PORTSCHE'S

Drop out and inspect for yourself our show homes now all completed and ready to move into. We have 4 different styles to pick from and 3 vacant lots in Orcutt Acres plus more lots on S.E. corner of 56th & Vine that we can put your home on.
Our show homes are all brick, 1 story 3 bedrooms and finished recreation rooms, attached lined garages. The large kitchens are out of this world with indirect lighting and the best of built-in appliances—finished in oak and mahogany . . . also slate entry ways. Tiled baths, and too many other extras to mention. In an area of excellent homes on quiet secluded street. Drop out and see for yourselves.

DANGER—BEWARE THERE'S A CARBUG* LOOSE AT MOWBRAY'S

* A CARBUG is an invisable insect that attacks adult males and females over 16 years of age when exposed to clean reconditioned used cars that are reasonably priced.

So . . . with MOWBRAY'S exceptional cars and prices their lot is INFESTED!

If you'd like to be bitten . . . STOP BY!

'60 Buick

Andrews Captures 'Y' Handball Title

Jack Andrews won the 1963 YMCA handball championship as he defeated Joe Cypher two games to one in the final match.

Richard Skold finished 3rd and Bill Beachley won the consolation bracket.

Andrews and Cypher teamed to take the Class A doubles with a final round win over the Joe Rosenberg-Roger Koenig duo.

Third place honors went to the Dale Adams-Gale Gade team.

Other results:

Class B singles—1, Larry Thorn; 2, Ray Wittrock; 3, John Bennett.

Class B doubles—1, Larry Thorn-Bob Stevenson; 2 Bill Holloran-Ray Wittrock.

Class C singles—1, Dick Johnson; 2, Monroe Usher, Jr.

Class C doubles—1, Norm Hoelk-Phil James; 2 Pete Rose-Dale Jannsen; 3, Del Whitefoot-Vernon O'Neal.

Sports, Gambling, and Investigations Will Go Hand in Hand in Future Years

New York (AP)—"We have not scraped the surface of our gambling scandals," a prominent college athletic official said recently. "Mark my words, there will be many more of them and they will infest every sport.

"But what can we expect? We have undermined the principles of our finest young men. Our colleges stoop to the lowest, reprehensible methods to grab a star athlete. They pay him off under the table. They make him a toy god.

"The emphasis is on winning. So we lose all sight of ethics and codes of honor."

These words, by executive director Al Duer of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics, have been echoed by such men as Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, and Judges Saul S. Streit and Joseph A. Sarafite, who dealt out sentences in 1951 and 1961 basketball scandals.

They came to roost again this week when two of the most prominent players in the National Football League—Golden Boy Paul Hornung of the champion Green Bay Packers and giant tackle Alex Karras of the Detroit Lions—were handed indefinite suspensions for betting on games.

Five other members of the Lions were fined $2,000 each for making a friendly wager on the outcome of the Green Bay-New York title game. The Detroit club was slapped with a $4,000 penalty for failing to take proper action.

This is the most widespread disciplinary action ever for the exciting gridiron sport, whose mushrooming popularity is filling vast ball parks on autumn Sunday afternoons and challenging baseball as the national pastime.

But people are asking: Is this the extent of the pro football mess? Where and when will the betting scandals hit next? Can baseball, zealously guarded and almost inviolate since the "Black Sox Scandal" of 1919, be drawn again into the ugly web?

Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark), chairman of the Senate Investigation Subcommittee, is taking little for granted. "We're still investigating the overall picture," he warned.

It's a broad, evasive and apparently insolvable problem.

Betting is in the nation's blood, whether it's nickels or $1,000 bills, legal or illegal.

Close to $3 billion is poured through parimutuel machines yearly at the thoroughbred and harness racing tracks, with Uncle Sam's full okay.

Weekend golf foursomes think nothing of playing two-bit or $10 Nassau. At the big golf tournaments, players are sometimes auctioned off openly with an unofficial bookie at the 19th hole.

By far the heaviest illegal betting, however, is on football games—pro and college.

The big bettors are the men who follow the pros. They consult handicappers and take their plunge on one game at a time, giving or taking points.

This has popularized the "point spread," which has become an everyday commodity provided by a sports information service operating out of Minneapolis. They figure the odds. If you bet Green Bay, for example, you score on any differential, win or lose, underneath the spread.

Then there are the dime and dollar bettors — the college boys, soda jerks and office workers—who try their luck with the football cards, which flood the country in season.

These cards, with appropriate odds, offer a list of 25 or 30 games. The bettor circles 4 or more choices and gets a receipt. If he picks 4 correctly, he is paid off at the rate of 10-1. Ten out of 10 choices can bring as much as 150-1.

The cards are sent to local pushers, often students on campuses, who take bets from 10 cents to 10 dollars or more—although seldom more.

It was this seemingly innocent enterprise which trapped and ruined the careers of two University of Michigan athletic stars back in 1958.

They were Tony Rio, a first string fullback, and Jack Lewis, the basketball captain, arrested with 5 other students for operating a ring which sold football cards on the campus. The product netted about $10,000 a week on the Michigan campus, police said.

It was the innovation of the point spread which turned college basketball into a monstrous scandal that sucked scores of the nation's finest players and most reputable teams into its clutches.

In 1951, 33 players representing 7 colleges—including championship teams such as Kentucky, CCNY and Bradley—were accused of having a part in helping fix 86 games.

Ten years later—in 1961—the scandal erupted again. This time 39 players were involved with 24 colleges and 48 games. Jack Molinas, a onetime Ivy League star at Columbia, only this year was sentenced to 10 to 15 years as the "master fixer."

"You are a completely amoral person," Judge Joseph A. Sarafite said, in handing down the sentence. "You callously used your prestige as a former All-American basketball player to corrupt players and the public."

Few sports have been free from the gambling influences.

In college football, attempts were made to fix games involving the University of Maryland and Louisiana State, later the Florida State-Florida and the Oregon-Michigan contests.

In each case, honest players blew the whistle and the would-be fixers were arrested.

The major pro football scandal before the present one involved the New York Giants-Chicago Bears title game back in 1946. Frank Filchock and Merle Hapes reported they were offered money by Alvin J. Paris to fix the game. Both players were suspended but later reinstated.

Pro basketball has been affected. In 1948, Joe Fulks, star of the Philadelphia Warriors, swore out a warrant against a Philadelphia pool hall operator whom he charged with attempting to get him to throw games. The operator later was cleared but Pennsylvania, as a result of the case, put in a law fixing stiffer penalties for bribery attempts.

Former middleweight champion Rocky Graziano admitted in 1947 he was offered $100,000 to lose a fight to Reuben Shank. The fight never was held. Rocky's license was revoked.

In baseball, 5 players once were suspended from the Class D Evangeline League in Louisiana for alleged links with bookies. In 1948, the National Hockey League expelled Billy Taylor, a New York Ranger, and suspended Don Gallinger of the Boston Bruins for association with known gamblers.

So no sport has a monopoly on betting scandals, and it's not just an evil of the times. As long as men are greedy and want to make an easy buck, they're bound to continue.

Pro Football Big Favorite of Today's Bettors

New York (AP)—It may come as a surprise to lots of people to learn that there is more betting in one month on professional football games in Las Vegas than there is in an entire season on baseball.

The authority of this information is one of Las Vegas' leading bookmakers, who says the sport which attracts the fewest bettors is college basketball.

"That's because of the scandals which have surrounded college basketball in recent years," said Jasper Martin, who looks and talks just like you'd expect Nathan Detroit of Damon Runyan fiction to look and talk.

"People in Las Vegas are not too much concerned about the baseball teams in the East," said Martin, a lean, dapper man in his 40's who likes to wear black, from hat to spats. "They're mostly interested in the California teams, the Dodgers, Giants and Angels.

"I think the main reason, though, why there is more betting on football here than on baseball is because of the time element. We're 3 hours behind and most people are still asleep when the betting line on the baseball games becomes available, which is about 8 o'clock in the morning.

"Everybody here lives casually. Nobody likes to be rushed. They prefer football betting because it's a once-a-week sport and they've got all week to make up their minds."

There are 8 betting parlors in Las Vegas and all do a land-office business. Odds are posted on virtually all sports but Las Vegas bookmakers are not permitted to carry betting lines on college or high school activities in Nevada. Neither are they allowed to bet on political elections in any part of the country.

Betting, of course, is legal in Nevada but no interstate wagering is permitted. A bettor must be there in person. He may not call in a bet long distance from outside the state.

The bookies' chief gripe is a 10% federal tax on all wagers. This assessment is in addition to a $50 license purchased annually and a 3% state tax on gross winnings.

The $50 is paid at the beginning of the year, the state levy is paid quarterly and the federal tax is paid at the end of the year.

A 10% federal bite is passed on to the customer, who is given a ticket for every bet.

For example, the odds on a game are 11 to 10. On a $100 wager, the bettor lays $110 to $100 but is obliged to put up an additional $11. This automatically boosts the odds to slightly over 6 to 5.

"I don't mind the state tax or even the $50 license fee but it's that federal tax that's killing me," moaned a bookie. "I lose lots of business because of that tax. And I make enemies, too. My customers take it out on me.

"The federal tax is also bad for the state of Nevada. The state loses lots of revenue. That's because some people just don't want to swallow the 10% tax bite.

"They feel as long as betting is not regarded legal by the federal government why should they be forced to pay a tax? When I ask them for the additional 10%, they get mad, tear up the ticket and tell me to forget about the bet.

"If I want to keep the customer, I've got to absorb the tax myself. I find it costs me about $10,000 a year out of my own pocket."

Not all the bookmakers complain, however. As Martin explained:

"I have no gripe. This is a good town. We're treated very well here. It's a good place to raise a family. There's less juvenile delinquency here than in any other state."

Martin doesn't like to be called a bookmaker.

"When I fill out my income tax," he reminded you, "where it says 'occupation,' I write 'sports analyst.'

"After all, betting is legal in this state just like any other legitimate business. We regard ourselves just like doctors and lawyers. We're professional people."

Golfers Frequently Bet to Win

Why Not Says Pair of Top Professionals

Houston (AP) — Contracts for PGA sponsored golf tournaments prohibit gambling in the form of calcutta pools or pari-mutuels but 3 big name golfers said Saturday it is difficult to keep gambling off the nation's courses.

Jimmy Demaret said he bet on himself the year he won the Masters when his odds were 10-1.

Mike Souchak said gambling is a pro golfer's own business as long as he does not bet against himself.

Jack Burke Jr., the 1956 Masters champion, said there is more gambling among golf fans in Houston than in any city, including Las Vegas.

"Yet golf is the riskiest of all sports to bet, because it's so unpredictable," said Burke, a Houston native who for many years has been concerned about the gambling element in golf. Only this week Burke declined another invitation to compete in the Tournament of Champions at Las Vegas because he does not consider the atmosphere conducive to tournament golf.

"Sure I've bet on myself in a golf match," Demaret said. "Haven't you?

"I see nothing wrong in betting on myself. If I have enough confidence in my own ability, why shouldn't I bet? But if I bet against myself, I should be thrown out of golf.

"One year at the Masters I was 10-1, and I had my game in good shape. I knew I better get a few bob down on myself at those odds, and I did. I went on and won the tournament."

Demaret won the Masters in 1940, 1947, and 1950.

Both Demaret and Souchak said they would resent someone—the PGA, the sponsors, or a commissioner of golf—telling them they cannot place wagers.

"If you say I can't gamble then you're telling me how to spend my money," Souchak said.
